I agreed that appropriate patient selection is imperative when prescribing opioids to patients. I asked if he finds that he is referring more to pain management. He said he thinks he probably is. I asked what generally causes him to refer. He said he has some patients who have confirmed, real pain, who he has treated for various other things for a long time who he will maintain on pain medications himself. He added that it is the patients who are new, who come with the chief complaint of chronic pain that he refers out. Discussed Butrans appropriate type/range, & OxyContin q12h as an option for appropriate patients beyond that range. He asked me to review dosing. I showed him dosing & how he would start a patient on either 5mcg or 10mcg depending on their current dose of opioid medication. Dr Charles asked if patients can roll Butrans up & smoke it. I told him while I have not heard of that, Butrans is a CIII opioid medication & should be prescribed with the same type of caution he would Dr Keith said he had to go early today so he couldn't stay long to talk. I reminded him of our previous conversation about Butrans. Reviewed dosing once weekly, pointing out that Butrans is the only opioid analgesic in the CIII class that delivers medication for 7 days. I asked if she finds that pain management often sends patients back to them for their medication. Dorothy said this happens all the time. I asked what happens then. She said they just refer most of them to someone else who will prescribe the patient their medication.

I asked how he is seeing OxyContin being dosed. He said sometimes q12h but many physicians write it q8h. I asked if he ever suggests to those physicians that they increase the tablet strength of OxyContin instead of the dosing interval. He said he has done this, but the doctors always seem to want to keep it q8h. I told Marko OxyContin has only been studied & is only recommended to be dosed q12h.

I asked what sparked this change in his practice. He said this is all due to House Bill 93. He said he just does not want to have to deal with pain medications anymore. I asked him if he thinks there is even a place for Butrans & OxyContin in his practice anymore. He said he maintains some patients. He added that if he has a patient who he knows & has treated for years, who he knows has legitimate pain, he will treat them, especially if they are an older patient. I asked him what about patients who are between the ages of 55 & 60- if they have a legitimate complaint about pain, if he trusts them, would he treat them? He said he would. I asked him what he is currently doing with patients who have legitimate pain who are no longer controlled on NSAID's or COX-2's. He said he would feel comfortable prescribing an opioid for them. I showed him "Jessica" patient profile. Positioned Butrans for patients like this. I told him even if he recommends that they see pain management, he can give them a Butrans 5mcg prescription, if appropriate, to give the patient something in the event that it takes awhile for them to get into pain management for an appointment. I said are you writing them in patients who are coming in on short acting like the ones in the profiles under 80mg morphine equivalent, and he said some are, he said that doesnt mean anything, if it is the right product and it works for him, than he writes it. HE said he has patients who are on Vicodin and they are making them go to the new one that has less acetaminopjon and it is brand. The patient said when she went back to get a refill, the co-pay was too high. Dr Gigliotti said the patient did report good pain relief with Butrans. He said her story sounded unusual & asked if I thought it sounded right. I told him patients are entitled to a box of 4 patches for the trial offer, unless he wrote the prescription for only one patch. He said he did not do this & wrote it for a month's supply. I told Dr Gigliotti if the patient was able to use the trial card, she also should have been able to use the co-pay card, which should have brought her co-pay down to $15-20. I asked what pharmacy & what insurance plan. He said he was not sure. He said maybe the patient was not telling the truth. He asked Jazz if she knew about it but she said she did not. Jazz said the patient is coming back in 2 weeks & said she would ask the patient more questions & would let me know what was going on. I asked Dr Gigliotti if he would continue to look for appropriate Butrans patients & he said he would. Discussed OxyContin savings cards with him & asked about recent fills of Butrans and OxyContin. The pharmacy has filled Butrans for Shah and OxyContin for Labadini in recent weeks. Provided Butrans Medco/ESI wins and asked if they see any patients from Goodyear. He said he always is concerned about being perceived as an inappropriate prescriber just for having a few appropriate patients on pain medications because the government scares doctors into thinking that. He said the speaker made him feel a bit more comfortable with prescribing if absolutely necessary for some appropriate patients. He added that he does, however, still refer almost everyone to pain management. He said he is just not comfortable with patients on more than 1 or 2 pain pills at bedtime. Reviewed appropriate patient type & asked Dr Pai to think about Butrans for appropriate patients who he is referring out as an option to offer while the patient is waiting to get in to see pain management. I asked if he thought this was a place he could use Butrans. He said maybe. He added that if Butrans were covered on Medicare D plans, he would have a larger place for it as he is somewhat more comfortable writing pain medications for elderly patients, although he is still cautious. I asked if this is the population he generally uses OxyContin in & reminded him of favorable coverage. He said if he uses OxyContin, it is generally for severe cases & elderly patients.

He said they should be using Butrans before sending patients to him. I let him know this is an area I am working on & asked if he has suggestions for how to get primary care physicians to try it. He said he is not sure because they are all so different. Spoke with Christina & updated her on Medco & Express Scripts tier 2 coverage for Butrans.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	8/1/2012	Went through the first 2 vignettes for OxyContin Conversions program. I asked if these were patients like those he would put on OxyContin. He said he actually is referring more to pain management. I asked him what it is usually that causes him to refer patients- is it a certain level of medication, length of treatment, or other factor? He said anyone who he has on CII medications for pain is getting referred. He added that this is largely due to the House Bill. I asked if he is saying that everyone who he has on OxyContin is now being seen by pain management instead of getting their medication from him. He said not necessarily. He said that often times, he just sends them to pain management so that he has documentation of the patient being seen by pain management. He said he sometimes just wants the pain management specialist to see what he is treating the patient with & verify that he agrees that this is the right treatment for the patient. Dr Sevier said he then will continue to prescribe the medication for the patient. He said it is a matter of checks & balances. I asked where he sees a place for Butrans, with it being a long-acting opioid in the CII class. He said for patients with osteoarthritis or back pain. I asked if he would use it after tramadol? Or after Vicodin? He said most likely after Vicodin. He asked for a reminder literature piece to keep with him. He said it is just a matter of him thinking of it instead of automatically prescribing short-acting.

I asked dr if she would consider initiating a patient on Butrans after Ultram for a patient with chronic pain? Dr said she will consider it but doesn't like prescribing extended release products. I asked if the Butrans patch made sense? Dr said it does and she will give it a try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	8/1/2012	I asked dr if she has had any recent starts with Butrans? Dr said she has not and the office has decided to begin referring patients to pain management earlier in their treatment. I asked dr what "earlier" means? Dr said the patients they believe are seekers or abusers are being referred and will not be seen along with patients who take too much IR opioids. I asked dr what too much is and she said that all the criteria has not been established yet. I asked dr to initiate Butrans on a patient who is taking 2-3 vicodin q4 or q6 who may need additional analgesia to initiate Butrans. Dr said she will let me know when they make the decision.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/2/2012	I asked if he believes Butrans would produce results similar to the pain scale reductions I spoke about in the FPI and if he had any reservations in using Butrans. She said she hasn't seen anyone lately who has needed long-term treatment with opioids. I asked what she means by "long-term". She said for example, she would not prescribe Butrans for patients who only need opioid therapy for a few months. She said is thinking of patients who need opioid treatment indefinitely. She said if someone needs something for a few months, she would not use Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/2/2012	I asked dr what he can tell me about his patients on OxyContin and if he is still starting new patients? A new prescription for another 15 days can be prescribed. If the patients needs more IR opioids after 30 days, an ER opioid must be prescribed going forward. Dr said that he agrees with it and all states will adopt this plan. Dr said he still prescribes new OxyContin and does titrates often and has many patients on 80mg. I asked dr to prescribe OxyContin for his Medical Mutual patients since a large amount of his patients use that plan and it is $20-25 per the OxyContin formulary grid.

I said do you feel like you do not see patient types like the ones in the profiles and she said she does. I said I feel as if there is something preventing you from writing Butrans and she said no, just habit. We reviewed patient types again and I did show her the graph in vis aid on page 6 on removal. We discussed titration and supplemental as well as managed care coverage. I said for you patients who are on higher doses of Vicodin she has the option of Oxycontin low dose.

He said he does & that is still true, but that patient has not been in yet. He assured me that this will be his next Butrans patient. He went on to say that patients do not seem to "want" to try Butrans. He said when he tells patients about it, they say they do not want to try. I asked him if these are patients who are doing well on what their current therapy is or if they are patients complaining that their current medication is not working. He said some of both. I asked him his thoughts on patients who are saying that what they are on is not working, yet they are unwilling to try something new that could potentially help them. He said this makes him think that patients are taking the oral medications just to get a high. I reminded him that Butrans is still an opioid & still carries abuse & addiction potential. I asked him why not at least have the patient try Butrans, reminding him they can take supplemental analgesia if necessary. Dr Roheny said this makes sense. Reminder for 7 OxyContin tablet strengths for individualization of dose. Left OTC samples.

We also talked about the opioid naive patient and he seemed concerned about 7 day patch and I showed him vis aid and 50% leaving after removal and he said that is good, but he didnt think our graph was too impressive with the mean Buprinorphine levels he said there is alot of drop off. I asked if his patients complained of it dropping off or not lasting and he said no. I reviewed managed care with Butrans as well as Oxycontin as an option.

His staff (Mary Ellen & Mary Ann) said they would help him do this & would encourage it. Dr Fedorko said one of the problems with medications is prior authorizations, cost, & insurance. I told him this is why I encourage him to think of patients ages 40-60, still working, who fit the indication. Reviewed commercial coverage, as well as BWC. DR said it does sound like a good option because an extended release product would be best. I discussed the initiation and titration schedule, indication, application sites, and conversions from IR opioids. He said this does not make sense. Discussed importance of appropriate patient selection & OARRS. Updated him on Butrans coverage on Medco & Express Scripts & reviewed broad formulary access for OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/8/2012	I asked Dr Hernandez how he determines whether to increase someone's short-acting opioid or change/add a medication. He said it depends on many factors. I asked him, for example, if a patient came to him on 3 Vicodin & was saying it was not working, what would he do. Dr Hernandez said most of the time, he will change the medication & would choose Butrans for this patient. I explained that many primary care physicians say their patients will not want to make that change. I asked Dr Hernandez if patients really do say this. He said it is very common. I asked what he does in this situation. He said he tells the patient that he is not willing to prescribe the amount of short-acting they are asking for. He said he tells them it is their choice. They can choose to try Butrans or they can choose to find a physician who is willing to just give them what they want. He said he explains to patients that they are coming to him for pain relief & that Butrans may provide that for them. He said he tells the patients that he is the doctor & that it is their choice. I told him it sounds like he is doing the right thing. He said patients generally do well on Butrans. I also asked him to continue to prescribe OxyContin for appropriate patients & he agreed.

Dr said because they want it. I asked him if he was to prescribe Butrans that the studies showed in the 20mcg dose that about 50% of the patients received a 30% reduction in pain. I asked if he would be happy about that? Dr said that a percentage of pain relief is subjective and its hard to tell. Dr said if the patient can afford the medicine and it works he will use it. I asked what he does with patient the patients that say they want their pills? Dr didn't really answer but said pain relief is subjective. I told dr to identify patients that have been on an IR opioid for 3+ months that have Medco or Medical Mutual insurance that may need a dose adjustment. These are patients appropriate for Butrans.

Discussed with dr the appropriate patient types and asked what his previous experience is with it. Dr said he remembers using it but the cost was too high and he changed them to something different. I reviewed the formulary for Butrans with dr and focused on under 65 year old patients with private prescription insurance. Dr said he has not used it again because they haven't see a rep in a while. Dr agreed to use it again.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/9/2012	I asked Dr Kansal to tell me a little about the patients for whom he prescribes OxyContin- what patient types does he find it to be effective for. He said he has decreased the number of OxyContin patients he has & that he has gotten rid of many of them. I asked why. He said because he did not trust them. I told him patient screening & appropriate patient selection were very important & that he should be cautious when prescribing any opioid. Dr Kansal said he is weaning patients off OxyContin. I asked if he is talking about all CII opioids or just OxyContin. He said just OxyContin. I asked why he is targeting that specific medication. He said he does not want to be associated with the name. He said the negative media attention OxyContin has received has lead to a very bad stigma that he does not want to be associated with. I reminded him that he has told me in the past that he thinks it is a good medication for the right people. I asked if he feels that OxyContin is effective & safe. He said he does not have a problem with OxyContin clinically. I asked if he thinks Butrans has a place in his practice. She said she has offered it to patients, but they have not wanted to try it. She said she thinks patients do not think a pain medication that is not a pill will not work. I asked if the patients she is offering it to are ones who are not being well-controlled on their current medication. She said yes. I asked what her thoughts were on patients who are not getting relief, yet are unwilling to try a different option. She said it leads her to believe the patient is seeking pills for the wrong reasons. I reminded her of the ability to use supplemental analgesia if necessary, reminding her that patients do not have to "give up" anything when starting Butrans. She said this was a good point. Reviewed appropriate patient type, showing her "William" profile. Also reviewed managed care coverage, focusing on BWC & Medco/Express Scripts. I asked her to continue to try Butrans, reminding her that she is the expert, not the patient. Roberta said she would do this. She said she had recently given out an OxyContin savings card, but does not Spoke with Amy and asked her if she has seen any patients recently that she has filled Butrans for? Amy said that she did have a patient in just the other day as a new start on Butrans 5mcg from Dr Hegde. I asked if the patient was under 65 and what her copay was. Amy said the patient was over 65 but had private insurance through her husbands work and paid $15 for 28 days of Butrans. I asked about fill rates of OxyContin. Amy said they have all 7 doses because they have at least one patient on each dose. I told Amy about the new formulary wins with Butrans about Medco/ESI. Amy said that Medco typically allows the patient 3 fills at the local pharmacy level then they require them to do mail order for the maintenance prescriptions.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Highland Heights	OH	44143	8/9/2012	Quick call...I showed doc the butrans demo and asked if he has had to titrate the dose of the patch often. He said not too much and that he usually gives them a short acting for breakthrough pain. I reminded him that 20mcg is the max dose and that a low dose of oxycontin might be appropriate. He grinned.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	8/9/2012	Dr Yokiel said it seems that BWC will not pay for anything anymore. He said patients can't get OxyContin without trying ER Morphine first & other long-acting opioid have even further restrictions. He said that is probably 25% of his patient population here. I let him know BWC is paying for Butrans, as is Medco & Express Scripts. He said that was good. Showed "William" patient profile with initiation guide. Reviewed dosing, pointing out that most of his patients would probably start at 10mcg, with some possibly titrating to 20mcg. He said he does want to try it more. Spoke with nurse, Vicki, who handles prior authorizations. She said BWC is not paying for Butrans. I told her that last I heard, there were no restrictions on Butrans for BWC patients. She said she had a denial on BWC. I asked if it was State BWC or private insurance. She said she could not remember & that she wished she would have written the patient down to refer to it. I gave her my card & asked her to alert me if she continues to find this is a problem. I told her her case was the first I had heard of BWC not paying for Butrans. She said she would keep trying & would let me know.

Started to explain e-voucher for Butrans & OxyContin, but he got called away to help a customer & could not finish the conversation.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/10/2012	Spoke to Shelby about Butrans and OxyContin. Shelby said they have a couple of patients on Butrans and thinks one of them is Dr Narouze. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	8/10/2012	Dr came back to lunch room and asked if I needed a signature. Told dr that I have scheduled medicines and I have Butrans and OxyContin. I asked dr what she typically does when a patient comes in complaining of pain and is on tramadol or vicoden? Dr said it depends on their condition but she would insured patients like Medco/ESI/medical mutual. Dr said she will consider using and likes the 7 days.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/10/2012	I asked dr what conditions he treats OxyContin for. Dr said he is not prescribing ER opioids much at all anymore. I asked why and he said that most of his patients are controlled on IR opioids. The precall from the LRx report confirms his limited use of SEO opioids. I showed dr the initiation and titration guide for Butrans and asked what he does for patients on Ultram complain of being in pain. Dr said he is referring out earlier now. I asked if a CIII, 7 day transdermal system makes sense to switch a patient to? Dr said that it does make sense and he might use it in that location. I asked dr to try the product so he can make a clinical opinion on its efficacy and safety.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/10/2012	I presented Butrans inclusion/exclusion criteria for Butrans with dr and followed up with EMMA case study. I asked dr if using Butrans in a patient complaining of pain on Ultram instead of titrating? Dr said it does make sense especially in the patients he believes to be chronic. Dr said he will remember to use. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/10/2012	Spoke with Anna(pharmacist) about Butrans and OxyContin. Pharmacist said she has not filled any Butrans from what she can remember and does not have any on the shelf. Anna did say that she fills OxyContin regularly. I reviewed the conversions from IR opioids and she said she can't understand why so many doctors are prescribing so many IR opioids but don't prescribe OxyContin and the Q12h option. Anna said that she has a patient of Dr Anne Grantham who is taking Ultram, vicoden and percocet all at the same time. Pharmacist said she is not going to fill them anymore and request the patient starts with OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	8/10/2012	Dr out on Fridays however did speak with staff and the MA about Butrans and OxyContin. Staff did not know much about Butrans. Provided all key selling messages and gave quick review of formulary status.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/10/2012	I asked dr if he has initiated Butrans yet. Dr said no. I asked dr if he believes in the product and if there is anything holding him back? Dr said no and he just has not found a patient yet. Dr admitted that his practice has really slowed down and that it is going to take longer to find a patient on an IR opioid that he believes needs an ER opioid product. I told dr that I understand that and asked him to focus on the patient under 65 who has private commercial insurance and explained the average copays.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/13/2012	Spoke with pharmacist, updating her on Butrans tier 2 preferred status on Medco & Express Scripts. She said they have a lot of customers with those plans. PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	8/13/2012	I asked dr Oyakawa what criteria he uses to determine of OxyContin is appropriate for a patient. Dr said if the patient has a chronic condition such as low back problems, osteoarthritis or cancer pain. I asked dr if he has patient with cancer pain and he said he has a few and they are on OxyContin. I used the main visad to show appropriate patients and conditions. I asked if he feels comfortable titrating every 1-2 days if necessary. Dr said he typically will start low but does try to equate the IR opioid to OxyContin. Used conversion and titration guide to discuss conversions. Reviewed managed care with CCRx and AARP along with commercial plans. Used Butrans main visad to discuss appropriate patients. I asked dr what he typically does with a patient on tramadol or vicoden whom he is considering an adjustment? Dr said he either titrates the dose or use another product and said that Butrans seems like a product that would fit in that place. Discussed case studies with Emma and William. Reviewed managed care coverage with Medco/ESI, BWC. Dr said he thinks Butrans is a great product but he just needs to remember it. I gave dr the conversion scale to have him put it in his lab coat.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/13/2012	Discussion with dr as he was getting to office in morning. I showed dr the CCRx and AARP OxyContin formulary cards. I asked dr if he has patients with these plans? Dr said he has many of them and is aware how good the coverage is. I asked about his Butrans patients and how they are doing? Dr said he has not heard about any problems and likes the outcomes so far. I asked dr to continue to find those appropriate patients we have spoken
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/13/2012	Reviewed Butrans core messages with Dr Popa. Dr Popa said she "hates" patients with pain & she doesn't "deal with" them. I asked if she is referring to pain management. She said sometimes, or she just tells the patients to get off all narcotics. I asked if that was realistic for every patient on opioid analgesics. She didn't answer. Positioned Butrans once weekly transdermal system for appropriate patients who she is sending to pain management, especially if they have to wait for a month or more to get in to see the specialist. She agreed to write a script of Butrans for patients who she is referring. Showed initiation guide pg 6 to show how different patients would be initiated on Butrans if appropriate. Updated her on Butrans coverage at tier 2 preferred for Medco & Express Scripts. Dr Popa said drug reps do not understand that even when a patient only pays $15 out of pocket for a preferred prescription, it ultimately still leads to higher costs for health insurance, so it is really not a savings for the patient. She said it is for this reason that all her patients are on generic medications at $4. Reviewed broad formulary coverage for OxyContin. She said she has no patients on it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/13/2012	Responded to a call from Dr Keppler/Roman's office requesting Butrans trial/savings cards. Roman said he has been giving out Butrans trial/savings cards & instructions. He said he educates patients about Butrans & gives them the information. He said he hasn't had any feedback recently but has been giving it out. He said he will let me know. He said he did not need OxyContin savings cards as he still has enough.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/13/2012	Caught Dr Keppler in the hallway. I asked if he has been finding patients for the Butrans Patient Experience Program kits. He said he thinks Roman has given them out as he does most of the medication prescribing. He said he hasn't gotten feedback about Butrans that he can think of. He then thanked me & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/13/2012	Passed back Butrans Medco/Express Scripts announcement to Dr Laluk. Also reviewed broad formulary access for OxyContin, including Medicare. Spoke with Donna & reviewed formulary coverage for both products.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/13/2012	Spoke with Edwin, pharmacist, & reviewed savings programs for Butrans & OxyContin. Discussed eligibility requirements for usage of cards. He asked for Butrans cards, so I gave him one package. He said he recently spoke with a physician who said he could dispense fewer than a full box of Butrans patches at a time. I told Edwin that that is correct, that physicians can prescribe as few as one patch at a time. He asked how that can work, since there is only one package of disposal units. I told him there are 4 disposal units in that package, so he could open that & dispense whatever number of patches the doctor wanted plus that number of disposal units. He said this was good to know & that it made sense.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/13/2012	Caught Elaine between patients. She said she has written Butrans a few times lately but didn't have any feedback yet. She then just thanked me & walked into a room. Spent time with Dawn, reinforcing Medco/Express Scripts preferred status for Butrans as well as BWC & Caresource prior authorization requirements.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	8/13/2012	Spoke to Su and met new pharmacist Gilbert. I gave the pharmacist about Butrans discussing CIII, 7 day transdermal system, dosing and titration. Discussed Medco/ESI wins. Pharmacist said he has seen it at other pharmacies. OxyContin dosing and conversions. pharmacy good on all copay cards. No news on Dr Lisa Brown.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/13/2012	office called and said they need more Butrans copay cards. provided cards and asked dr how his patients are doing? Dr said most are doing well. I asked if he is titrating if a patient needs additional analgesia? Dr said the 10mcg is still the dose a majority of his patients are on. I told dr to titrate to 20mcg when necessary. Gave Medco/ESI message.CHUDAKOB's query on 08/24/2012Using the clinical study data to show why patients might be titrated to the 20ug may help him see the clinical rationale for doing it. What are your thoughts?REICHEL's response on 08/29/2012I agree and I will provide that on a future call to back up titrating to 20mcgCHUDAKOB added notes on 09/04/2012Thanks Cliff. I hope it works out for you!
PPLPMDL0020000001	akron	OH	44333	8/13/2012	I asked Dr Bashor to provide me with an update on his Butrans patients. Dr said he has prescribed it twice and his first patient he titrated to the 10mcg and has also increased his vicoden for supplemental. The patient has cancer and is in a lot of pain. Dr said he sees himself having to titrate to the 20mcg dose. The second patient is also on the 10mcg dose and is doing excellent. I reminded dr that he can adjust the dose every three days if necessary. Discussed managed care updates for Butrans and told dr about excellent coverage with OxyContin on CCRx and AARP.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	8/13/2012	I asked Jason if he has had any recent Butrans fills? Jason said he had one from Narouze last week and it was a titration from 5mgcg to 10mcg. I asked Jason about OxyContin fills and he said that they fill on a regular basis but not many new starts. I asked Jason about Medco patients required to do mail order after 3 prescriptions locally. Jason said that is correct however it all depends on what the employer dictates. Some require it and some
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/13/2012	Dr Mandat said he started two patients on Butrans last week. I asked him what it was about those patients that made him think Butrans was the right option for them. He said in both cases, the patient was on Ultram chronically. He said they were each taking it 3-4 times per day & mentioned to him that they were "tired" of taking the pills every day. I told him it sounds like he chose ideal candidates. I told him he is positioning Butrans in a great place & asked him to continue to identify patients like this & offer them Butrans if appropriate. He agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/13/2012	Dr Taylor said she just cannot make any money in private practice anymore. She went on to say that she is considering going to Daytona, FL to join a practice there that she thinks is a good opportunity. She said that government regulations are making it more & more difficult to stay in business. She also said House Bill 93 came out & made such rapid deadlines, that she did not go through the paperwork to become an official pain management practice, but now regrets doing so. I reminded her that she has patients with legitimate pain issues that she helps them with. Discussed Butrans & OxyContin as possible options for some of those patients, also reviewing with her that Butrans is the only long-acting CIII opioid analgesic. Reviewed abuse/addiction potential & asked her to remain cautious in prescribing any opioid medication. Medco/Express Scripts Butrans tier 2

PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/14/2012	Quick call- I reminded Dr Fedorko of our lunch conversation when he told me that he would be willing to write Butrans for appropriate patients who have coverage through BWC. He said he had already forgotten, so it was good that I was there to tell him. He added that as soon as he has a BWC patient who comes in for a painful condition, he will prescribe Butrans for them.
	Waterford	OH	45786	8/14/2012	W - Continues to prescribe and consider Butrans for patients. Likes that she has a CIII long acting option to prescribe. Once patients are uncontrolled on vicodin then she likes to either consider Butrans or refer these patients to a pain specialist for recommendation of therapy. I - Review of Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids once a therapeutic change is requested. PPLPMDL0020000001	Waterford	OH	45786	8/14/2012	W - Vicki has one patient well controlled on Butrans 5mgc/hr and continues to consider it an option for patients once they have uncontrolled pain on short acting medication. I - Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids once a therapeutic change is requested. Review of Jessica/Emma profiles in order to help identify appropriate patients. Review of appropriate starting doses for patients based on patients current therapy. Review of the ability to titrate after 72hours and the ability to prescribe supplemental analgesia as needed according to section 2.4 of the FPI. Review of formulary coverage and savings card program for Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Euclid	OH	44119	8/14/2012	I reviewed the Emma patient profile and asked doc if he has any patients like this. He said he does and he is going to put them on butrans. I asked him seriously, if he thinks he will ever start an appropriate patient on butrans. He said one day soon. I explained the 5 and 10mcg starting doses and the preferred commercial coverage with medco and express scripts.
	Waterford	OH	45786	8/14/2012	W - Continues to prescribe OxyContin for patients who need an extended release product due to uncontrolled pain on short acting medication. Formulary coverage becomes the deciding factor for patients because cost is a major issue. Does have patients on Butrans as well and continues to consider both products. I - Review of OxyContin for appropriate patient conversions from short acting opioids once the indication is met. Review of Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids requesting a therapeutic change. Review of inclusion criteria and reduction in pain scores for patients after 12 weeks of Butrans therapy. Review of Emma/William profiles in order to help identify appropriate patients for Butrans. Review of formulary coverage for both products and savings card programs. Butrans has BWC coverage without the need to do a prior authorization, 2nd and 3rd tier coverages with commercial plans and some Medicare part D plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Norton	OH	44203	8/14/2012	Good discussion around appropriate patient types for Butrans and OxyContin. Reviewed the case studies for Butrans and asked him what he typically does for patients on tramadol or low dose vicodin who may need a dose adjustment? Dr said he will either titrate the dose, choose another medicine or refer out. Dr said he understands where he needs to use Butrans and wanted to know about patients for OxyContin? I showed the main visaid page discussing appropriate patient types. Reviewed conversions from IR opioids. Dr had to go to see a patient and said he will use Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Hudson	OH	44236	8/14/2012	Dr Seiple said he just prescribed Butrans for a patient last week. I asked him to tell me about this patient & why he chose Butrans for him/her. He said she is a nursing student who has had chronic pain for many years, suffering from stage 4 endometriosis. He said she was not currently on any type of narcotic therapy for it but has been in the past. Dr Seiple said the patient actually asked him if he thought Butrans would be a good option for her because she had heard about it & had spoken to other nurses about it. He said after discussing it further with the patient, he thought it would be a good option for her & so he wrote her a script for 5mcg to start. He added that he realizes he may need to titrate, but has not heard back from her yet to see. Dr Seiple went on to say that the reason he does not have more patients on Butrans is not because he has a problem with it clinically, but rather that he just does not have a lot of patients who say they are not doing well on what they are currently taking. He said he doesn't see the point of switching patients who are doing well on their current medication. I agreed that there would likely not be a reason to switch those patients who are doing well. Dr Seiple said he will continue to offer Butrans to patients. Discussed OxyContin q12h as an option for appropriate patients who may benefit from q12h dosing of oxycodone.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/14/2012	Positioned OxyContin q12h for appropriate patients who may benefit from a q12h dose of oxycodone & reviewed broad formulary coverage. Showed Butrans core visual aid pg 17 & positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are taking less than 80mg equivalent oral morphine per day, especially if they are not well-controlled on their current pain medication regimen. Dr Diab just thanked me & walked into a room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Garfield Hts	OH	44125	8/14/2012	Dr Sadowski said he did try to write Butrans, but "it was rejected". I reminded him that Medicare coverage for Butrans is not generally very good, requiring prior authorizations that may or may not be approved. Reviewed formulary coverage for Butrans, reminding him that commercially insured patients will have the most access to Butrans, as well as patients with BWC & Caresource with a more reasonable prior authorization. Also pointed out that appropriate patients may be candidates for OxyContin, which has broad formulary coverage, including Medicare. He said he plans to find more patients for Butrans & said he does not have a problem with the medication itself. Dr Sadowski asked me how long it takes for Butrans to start working. I told him we have no onset of action data/studies & reminded him that Butrans reaches steady state in 3 days. He asked if it is acceptable to give short-acting medications during the first few days of starting Butrans. I told him this was advisable & showed Butrans core visual aid pg 17 (first bullet point under charts) as evidence.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Hudson	OH	44236	8/14/2012	Reviewed core messages for Butrans with Dr Spittler, also discussing appropriate patient type/range, including OxyContin for appropriate patients beyond the Butrans range. Discussed Butrans as a long-acting CIII opioid analgesic with abuse/addiction potential. I asked him if he currently has patients who take tramadol or hydrocodone around-the-clock for a chronic condition causing pain. He said he does. Reviewed dosing, use of supplemental analgesia, & managed care status, updating him on Medco & Express Scripts. I asked if he refers to pain management. He said he does often, but finds that patients often have to wait a month or more to get in, so he ends up refilling their scripts for them in the mean time. I asked his thoughts on giving those appropriate patients a prescription for Butrans when he refers them. He said he thought this made sense & said this is where Dr Tosino walked into lunch & stated that he has a few patients on Butrans who are doing well. He said it seems that if the patient is willing to try it & have reasonable expectations, that Butrans is effective. He said the problem is that many patients are not receptive to changing from around-the-clock oral medications to a once weekly transdermal system. He said in their mind, it will not work. I asked if this is even the case with patients who are not doing well on their oral medications. He said yes. He said sometimes he refers to pain management, but this can be tricky because so many patients are trying to get in to pain management, that it takes over a month for them to be seen. I asked his thoughts on giving appropriate patients a prescription for Butrans when he refers them- that way, if it works, he is sending a good referral, & if it doesn't, it confirms that that patient was a good candidate for pain management. He said this makes sense. Discussed setting appropriate patient expectations. He said he will also keep offering it/suggesting it to other patients who he thinks would be good candidates. Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone for appropriate patients who could benefit from this dosing. He said he still uses OxyContin for some patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Hudson	OH	44236	8/14/2012	Updated pharmacist on Butrans coverage on Medco/Express Scripts. Also reviewed savings programs for Butrans & OxyContin & discussed e-voucher for eligible patients.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Euclid	OH	44117	8/14/2012	Quick call....Doc said he was late for a conference call. I gave him a formulary grid and conversion guide. Nothing learned and was asked to come back.
	Highland Heights	OH	44143	8/14/2012	Doc asked if butrans is covered by workers comp. I explained that the state workers comp is covering butrans but self insured employers may not. He said that they have submitted a PA 2 or 3 times but they have not gotten a response yet. He said he does not recall who the patient works for. I gave him a formulary grid and pointed out the medco and express scripts coverage. Also gave him an oxycontin conversion guide and reminded him of the low dose options of oxycontin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	8/14/2012	Dr is out of the office until 8/20/2012. Spoke with Cindy & discussed patient information booklets for Butrans. She said she needed more of them because they have been taking them to Northfield's office as he uses Butrans for many of those patients.

They did not need any savings cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44124	8/14/2012	I gave doc a formulary grid and asked him how many of the 7 strengths he is prescribing. He said the 20, 40, 80mg. I explained that if patients are converted sooner they can start on a low dose of oxycontin such as the 10, 15, or 20mg. Gave more savings cards as he said the nurses give them out.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	8/14/2012	I asked receptionist to see the dr to get his take on all the Butrans materials I have left for him. She said he was busy with patients. I left him another FPI and told her I would love to get his professional opinion of Butrans. nothing else learned.

I handed him OxyContin conversion guide & let him know he could use it as a guide in converting appropriate patients to OxyContin. Also reviewed broad formulary coverage. Spoke with Kim, his MA, who said she had tried to get her Butrans prescription filled, but the co-pay (even with the trial card) was so high ($145) that she did not get it. She said she has Aetna insurance & did do the prior authorization, which got approved. She said she just could not pay that kind of co-pay & added that she was really disappointed because she thinks Butrans sounds like something that could really
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/15/2012	Dr Hernandez said he is glad that Butrans is available because it has been so good for his patients. He said the patient who had just left was on Butrans & has been for several months, doing well. I asked Dr Hernandez what patient type(s) he uses OxyContin in. He said he does not like to have patients on it indefinitely because he does not feel that is good for someone. He said if someone needs pain control indefinitely, he would want them on something less strong. I asked who, then, is an appropriate patient for it. He said generally, he puts patients on OxyContin as they await surgery. He said sometimes BWC makes them wait awhile to get a surgery, so he gives them OxyContin in that time frame. He said following the surgery, he would expect the patient to no longer need pain medication & if they do, he would want them on something like Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44122	8/15/2012	I reminded Dr Rastogi of our last conversation when he shared with me that he typically uses OxyContin in his nursing home patients or in office patients if he knows their condition is chronic. I asked if there are any specific patient types or conditions that he finds OxyContin to be effective in. He said usually he uses it for patients who have osteoarthritis. I asked if these patients are typically on some sort of short-acting opioid medication first. He said yes. I gave him an OxyContin conversion guide, showing him how to use the guide. I asked what he remembers about Butrans. He said that it is a once-a-week patch of buprenorphine. He asked if he would have to do a prior authorization for patients to get it. Discussed coverage, asking him to focus on appropriate patients who have commercial insurance. Also updated him on Medco/Express Scripts coverage. Also reviewed trial/savings cards. I showed him Butrans initiation guide & slide-out tool, demonstrating how he can use it to find the appropriate starting dose of Butrans for patients. I asked if he would try Butrans for a few appropriate patients, perhaps those aged 40-60, with a chronically painful condition. He said he would.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma Heights	OH	44129	8/15/2012	Spoke with Cathy, pharmacist, & updated her on Butrans coverage on Medco & Express Scripts. She said they fill scripts for both those plans. He said he feels that Butrans has been a good addition to his practice & that his patients have good success with it. He said he is careful to always discuss it at length with them when he is starting them on it so they understand what to expect. I told Dr Moufawad it sounds like he is doing the right thing. I asked him to continue to identify Butrans & OxyContin patients & prescribe each when appropriate & he agreed.

I gave him a conversion guide and reminded him that there are low dose options for of oxycontin like 10, 15, and 20mg.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44143	8/15/2012	I asked doc if he is still initiating patients on oxycontin for those that might require ATC treatment for their chronic pain. He said he has a few regular patients on it. I asked him what strengths he uses most. He said 10 and 20mg. I showed him how a 20mg would be comparable to 4 tabs of 10mg of percocet per day. He said he is having more trouble getting it to go through insurances. I explained the commercial plans and those of Med D plans covering at a preferred tier 2 status. I explained that medicaid may require a PA. Provided formulary grid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	University Heights	OH	44121	8/15/2012	I asked doc if he thinks that transdermal analgesics have a place for his cancer patients. He asked if it would be strong enough. I explained the butrans indication is for moderate to severe chronic pain. He asked about the dosing options. I showed him the 5 and 10mcg starting doses dependent upon patients current therapy. I asked him to try one patient. He said if patients can afford it. Nothing else learned. Left him a formulary grid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/16/2012	Handed Dr Sundaram Butrans Medco/Express Scripts announcement & let him know coverage for Butrans is improving. I asked if he felt that formulary coverage was a hindrance for him in prescribing Butrans. He did not answer. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients ages 40-60, with legitimate pain, for whom he is considering a pain medication change or adjustment. OxyContin broad formulary coverage message.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/16/2012	Spoke with floater pharmacist & updated her on Butrans coverage with Medco/Express Scripts. Also reviewed Butrans dosing & delivery system. Discussed ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans. Reviewed savings cards & e-voucher for Butrans & OxyContin, also reviewed eligibility requirements. She said she would leave my information for Regina.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/16/2012	Quick call- Handed Dr Moysaenko OxyContin formulary grid & pointed out broad favorable coverage. Also gave him Butrans Medco/Express Scripts announcement & told him it is evidence that Butrans coverage is improving with managed care companies. He just thanked me & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/16/2012	Quick call- Saw Dr Paat at the window. Passed back OxyContin formulary grid & pointed out OxyContin's broad formulary access for a variety of plans. Also handed back Medco/Express Scripts announcement & let him know coverage is improving. He just thanked me & walked away. Spoke with Shari & reviewed coverage for Butrans & OxyContin. She said she would try to keep reminding Dr Paat.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/16/2012	Dr Pai said he just wrote a prescription for a patient for OxyContin. I asked him to tell me more about this patient. He said she is 92 & suffered a back fracture, so he gave her OxyContin 10mg & allows her to take Percocet for breakthrough pain. I told him it sounds like he chose a good patient. I reminded him of previous conversations when he has told me that he typically prescribes OxyContin for patients who are no longer well-controlled on 4 Percocet per day. He said this is true. I asked him if patients basically start on a low dose of a short-acting opioid & then are escalated, ultimately to 4 Percocet per day over time. He said yes. I asked him what the rationale is for starting a patient with a condition that is known to cause pain chronically on short-acting opioids, then escalating them instead of just prescribing a low dose of a long-acting option, such as OxyContin 10mg, to begin with. I asked if this is just a comfort level issue, or a habit, or something else. Dr Pai explained that for him, he likes to start a patient on short-acting first to see what level/amount of medication they are going to require. He said, for example, a patient may only need to take 1-2 Percocet per day, so there would not be a dose low enough to start them on. He said this is not the case with just pain- that even with diabetics, doctors typically start with a short-acting insulin instead of going to a long-acting option right away. He said he still only has one patient on Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/16/2012	Quick call- Passed back Butrans announcement for Medco/Express Scripts to Dr Reddy & pointed out improving coverage. Started to review dosing but he waved & walked away. Spoke with MA Kathi & reviewed coverage, dosing, & patient type.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	8/17/2012	Dr Mike asked me to tell his medical student about Butrans. Delivered core messages & gave him an initiation guide. Discussed appropriate patient type. Dr Mike said almost no one is in real pain. He said it is unfathomable that a patient could have normal imaging but be in real pain. I agreed that appropriate patient selection is important with all opioid medications, but reminded him that there are patients in true, sometimes severe pain, who benefit from opioids. I asked if he refers patients claiming to have pain to pain management. He said he refers a fair amount, but often the pain management physicians "get patients hooked on drugs" & he said he then has to get the patient off the pain medications.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/17/2012	Dr Scanlon said he just wrote Butrans for a patient yesterday. I asked him to tell me more about the patient. He said they were on Vicodin before but were not well-controlled on it, so he gave them Butrans. Discussed Medco & Express Scripts tier 2 coverage & savings cards. I asked Dr Scanlon what type of patient(s) he has found OxyContin to be effective for. He said he is sure to do "a work up" of everyone who he prescribes OxyContin for. I asked what all that entails & asked if it includes checking OARRS. He asked what OARRS is. I gave him information on signing up & encouraged him to register as a measure to protect his practice. He said that sounded like a good idea. Discussed importance of appropriate patient selection for all opioid medications. Dr Scanlon said he would find more Butrans patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/17/2012	Dr Gigliotti said he has had no further feedback about Butrans. He said one patient who he had started said that she only received one patch for the Butrans trial offer instead of 4. He said he wasn't sure if he should believe her. I told him I would let the company know in case it was some sort of manufacturing problem. He said she may have been lying. I told him it is always best & safest to report such events. Dr Gigliotti said he will keep finding Butrans patients. I asked him to also continue appropriate patients on OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/17/2012	Roman's staff called me & asked me to come to the office. He said there must be a problem with the Butrans trial cards. I asked him to clarify. He said he has had 3 calls today from patients saying that the pharmacies are saying they still owe over $100 even with the trial card. I asked Roman if these patients all had commercial insurance. He said he doesn't know, he just asked if they had insurance. Explained coverage for Butrans, letting him know patients with commercial insurances have the most access to Butrans as Medicare plans have more difficult requirements. Roman said he will do a better job at clarifying to ask if the patient has commercial insurance. Reminded him that OxyContin has broad formulary access for appropriate patients with a variety of types of insurances, including Medicare plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Hts	OH	44124	8/17/2012	Told doc I wanted to share one clinical reason to use butrans for the appropriate patient. I discussed the opioid experienced clinical study, explained the design and the 30% improvement in 50% of the patients studied. I asked him if that was impactful. He just said maybe. Reminded him of the commercial plans and BWC.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Brooklyn	OH	44144	8/17/2012	I reminded Dr Miguel how he has told me that he has a few patients on Vicodin who he thinks may benefit from Butrans with once weekly transdermal dosing. He said he has a lot of patients on Vicodin who he would like to not have on it anymore. I showed him initiation guide slide-out tool. I asked what dose of hydrocodone per day he would say the majority of these patients are on. He said probably 10-20mg per day. I showed him on the tool how he could initiate Butrans in some of these appropriate patients at either 5mcg or 10mcg, depending on their current medication quantity. Discussed Butrans range & reviewed OxyContin q12h for appropriate patients beyond that range. Dr Miguel asked if he could keep the initiation guide. He said he promises he is going to use Butrans- he just has to remember it when he sees those patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/17/2012	Reviewed Butrans core messages with Dr Rakhit. He said the United States government has ruined pain management in this country & has just ended up creating a bunch of people addicted to pain medications. He said patients get addicted to the spike in medication when they take a short-acting opioid. I agreed that physicians should be cautious when prescribing any opioid medication as all do have abuse & addiction potential. Discussed Butrans once weekly transdermal dosing. Dr Rakhit said patients always end up asking for more & more medication. I asked him what the clinical benefit is of increasing the dose of a patient's short-acting opioid medication if that medication is not adequately controlling their pain in the first place- why give more of a medication that isn't working. He said there is no benefit. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on their current short-acting opioid medication instead of giving them more of that short-acting opioid. Dr Rakhit took notes on dosing. He asked what else I have. I told him OxyContin. He said he thinks it is a good medication only for terminal patients with cancer in severe pain. He asked me if Percocet is like OxyContin, but "at a much higher dose". I showed OxyContin conversion guide & pointed out that both are oxycodone & the difference is how often they are dosed, with OxyContin always being dosed q12h. Showed that the potency is the same & patients can get the same amount of oxycodone q12h.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Northfield	OH	44067	8/17/2012	Updated Sun Li on Butrans coverage at tier 2 preferred for Medco & Express Scripts national formularies. She said she has customers with those plans. Reviewed trial offer & savings cards, also reviewing e-voucher for CVS customers. Discussed OxyContin savings cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	8/17/2012	I reviewed the Emma and William patient types and reminded him that he said he didn't want to prescribe vicodin and percocet. He said that butrans was expensive. I explained that patients with commercial plans can get butrans for as little $15 with a savings card. Provided a formulary grid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Hts	OH	44124	8/17/2012	Doc asked about co pay with butrans - how much it is. I explained that 3rd tier co pays may be $55-60 but the savings cards could save up to $40 every month. I showed him the formulary grid and that medco and express scripts are covering butrans at the lowest branded co pay. He asked to make sure he has plenty of savings cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Middleburg Heights	OH	44130	8/17/2012	Spoke with Wanda (MA) & reviewed OxyContin formulary grid. Also reviewed Butrans core messages. Scheduled first available lunch.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	8/17/2012	Quick call...I asked if coverage is the issue with him not trying butrans more. He said it's a concern. I showed him the formulary grid and that medco and express scripts will cover butrans at the lowest branded co pay which means $15 copay with the savings cards for eligible patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/20/2012	Quick call- Dr Roheny said it was his first day back from vacation so he really didn't have time. Handed him Butrans Medco/Express Scripts announcement & let him know Butrans coverage is improving. I asked him what he has to lose by prescribing Butrans for an appropriate patient on one of those plans. He didn't answer. Also reminded him of favorable broad formulary coverage for OxyContin for appropriate patients.

She took the Butrans Medco/ESI announcement & put it in her office before walking into a room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/20/2012	Reminded Dr Taylor of our past Butrans conversations & how she has expressed interest in trying it for some patients. I asked her what she is waiting for. She said she does think she has tried to write Butrans for a few patients, but it seems they must have been Medicare patients because none of them have actually been able to get it due to insurance. I reminded her of recent change in Butrans's status to a tier 2 preferred on Medco & ESI. She said she had forgotten that. Also reminded her that BWC has been paying for Butrans. Also reviewed trial/savings cards. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range. She said sometimes patients are resistant to trying Butrans because they do not want to get rid of their current oral medication. I asked her how she feels about this. She said she wishes they would try it. I asked her what they have to lose, if they are appropriate patients & have commercial insurance or BWC by simply trying Butrans for a month. Reminded her that this patient population would have access to Butrans for the first 28 days for little or no out-of-pocket cost & that they do not have to "give up" their current medication. Also reminded her that if a patient is not well-controlled on their current medication, they should be open to trying something that may help them. She agreed & said she would try more patients although most of hers are stable on their medication. Also discussed OxyContin patient type/range. She said it seems less accepted to write CII medications.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	8/20/2012	Dr Warren said he thinks he did try to write Butrans for a patient but he didn't think they were able to get it due to insurance. I asked him if he knows if the patient had a Medicare plan. He said it was possible. Reviewed Butrans coverage with him, letting him know patients with commercial plans will have the most access to Butrans without prior authorization. I let him know that OxyContin is, however, covered on many Medicare D plans. He said it seems that OxyContin isn't being prescribed as much anymore. I asked if he notices this specifically with OxyContin or with all CII medications. He said CII medications in general. He said he does have about 5 patients who are on it. Discussed importance of appropriate patient selection & asked if he has found OxyContin to be effective for these patients. He said yes & agreed that it is a good medication for the right people. Reminded him that he has said that he wanted to try Butrans for patients who could not tolerate NSAID's or for those who he is trying to decrease them from fentanyl to another option. He said this is true. I asked if he can think of some patients like this who have commercial insurance. He said he thinks so. I asked him to prescribe Butrans for them if appropriate & he agreed. Discussed dosing, titration, & supplemental analgesia. I asked him again to prescribe & he agreed. <font color=
PPLPMDL0020000001	Northfield	OH	44067	8/20/2012	b>CHUDAKOB added notes on 08/29/2012Nice job of weaving OxyContin in the call. It looked the call flowed very well and you got in two solid presentations. Spoke with Maggie, nurse, & reviewed Butrans appropriate patient type. I asked her if she has asked Dr Marshall about meeting with me to discuss Butrans & OxyContin. She said she is working on it. I asked if Dr Marshall has a lot of patients taking short-acting opioids such as Percocet or Vicodin daily. She said yes. Showed her patient range for Butrans & discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone, offering the same molecule as Percocet in a q12h tablet. She said she would talk to Dr Marshall again.

	Akron	OH	44310	8/20/2012	I asked dr how his patients are doing on Butrans. Dr Goswami said they are doing well. I asked if he has gotten any feedback from them with their reduced pain level. Dr said he doesn't recall seeing one of them recently but he did say that their pain level had decreased. I asked if either of the patients on Medicare had any issues with cost. Dr said they did not because they have a secondary insurance which helped pay for it. I showed dr Emma and asked what he typically does with a patient like her where a dose adjustment may be necessary? Dr said he will continue to think of Butrans in that place as long as they meet the indication.CHUDAKOB's query on 08/30/2012Has he written any Butrans for him to know if they are doing well?REICHCL's response on 08/31/2012yes he has. They were both Medicare patients and I never got credit for them. The same goes for Bashor. he has also prescribed it twice and I have never seen them appear on earlyview. Do you know why?CHUDAKOB added notes on 09/04/2012We can discuss the reasons why in person. Glad to hear you are having impact with them.

I asked him if he would consider a product like butrans for patients needing a dose adjustment to their short acting analgesic. He asked about coverage. I explained the commercial plans including medco and express scripts and the savings cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/20/2012	Spoke with James(pharmacist) and Laurie(tech) about Butrans and OxyContin. I told James that I spoken with Donna on a few occasions. Gave James an overview of Butrans and asked him if they filled Butrans recently? Laurie said they filled the 5mcg today and ordered the 10mcg and 20mcg and will be in tomorrow. I asked who the prescription was from and Laurie said it was from Dr Fouad. James said he did not know any employer information. Provided OxyContin conversions and titration guide and James seemed that he did not want to engage in a conversation about OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	akron	OH	44333	8/20/2012	Gave a quick review of Emma and William and asked if he could thinks of patients that fit that description. Dr said he is somewhat limited with patients that fit that description but agreed to continue finding patients. I reviewed the titration time period and the Medco/ESI wins.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	8/20/2012	Spoke with Steve about Butrans and OxyContin. Steve said he has filled Butrans a couple of times and has heard good things from patients about it. PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	8/20/2012	I asked what doses of OxyContin they are filling the most. Susan told me that they fill a lot of 20, 40, 60 and 80mg doses are patients do tend to titrate up but it depends on the dr. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/20/2012	I asked dr if he could provide me any information on how his patients are doing on Butrans. Dr said they are all doing well and he likes the results. I asked if the results exceeded his expectations at times. Dr said he knows what to expect from Butrans and it is controlling pain well. I showed dr the OxyContin conversion and titration guide and asked him if he feels comfortable prescribing it? Dr said he does in situations where patients are taking higher doses of IR opioids. Dr said he likes the controlled release Q12h availability with OxyContin. Gave dr the most recent formulary grid and told him that it has been studied in patients over 75 yrs and it is preferred on AARP and CCNY.
PPLPMDL0020000001	University Hts	OH	44118	8/20/2012	Window call....Reminded doc of the oxycontin patient type and the flexibility of the dosing. I showed him the conversion guide and that 10mg of oxycontin q12 might be comparable to 5mg q6 of percocet. Provided formulary grid and explained the lowest branded co pay for many med d plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland Heights	OH	44118	8/20/2012	Window call.....I asked doc if he sees patients with medco prescription plans. He said that he does. I informed him of the recent update with butrans on express scripts and now medco. He said that he has more medicaid and medicare. I reminded him that caresource will cover butrans with a PA after failure on an IR opioid or tramadol.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	8/20/2012	Spoke with Alan, pharmacist, who requested more Butrans savings cards. Reviewed eligibility requirements. I asked what feedback he has received- either via physician or patient. Alan said he hasn't heard any feedback, but he can think of 3 patients who are on Butrans & who get refills month after month, so he said they must be doing well on it. Showed patient information booklets & discussed using them if/when patients have questions. Alan said he has some & will use them if he gets a new patient on Butrans. He said he is surprised there haven't been more patient questions because the patients who he can think of who are on it each were switched from other opioid medications. Discussed OxyContin q12h & savings cards. He said he did not need any cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/20/2012	Spoke with floater pharmacist & updated her on Butrans tier 2 preferred status on Medco & Express Scripts national formularies. Also reviewed savings & trial cards & eligibility requirements for card usage. She said she thinks she has dispensed Butrans once or twice at various locations. Discussed OxyContin q12h & savings cards. She said she would give my information to Margarita.
PPLPMDL0020000001	North Hampton	OH	45349	8/20/2012	DR said she prescribed butrans the day after I had lunch. She said she isnt sure if the patient was able to get it filled but believes that she has more patients that will qualify for butrans 10 mcg
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland Hts	OH	44118	8/20/2012	Doc said he has a couple of patients on butrans but hasnt been able to find anybody else that is willing to try it if they dont have the right coverage. I showed him the formulary grid with updates to medco and express scrips which means the lowest branded co pau for patients with those plans. I asked him to try butrans again for patients failing on tramadol or vicodin and with the right coverage. I said he would try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/20/2012	Dr moved from UH in Cleveland to his new office in Fairlawn. Dr said that he wanted copy cards for Butrans and OxyContin as he has used Butrans in the past and has seen great results. Dr said he has used it for patients on tramadol and low dose vicoden who need more analgesia. Discussed Butrans patient experience kits with dr and he said he has used them and will use the ones already in his office.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/21/2012	Dr Fedorko said he had just been thinking of me this morning. I asked if it was because he had an appropriate patient with BWC for whom he prescribed Butrans. He said that wasn't it. I reminded him of our previous conversations when we have discussed Butrans coverage & how he has expressed interest in writing for an appropriate patient with BWC. I asked what he is looking for in his next Butrans patient. He said he just hasn't had anyone in lately for pain with BWC. He said he is sure that will eventually happen. I reminded him that the patient doesn't have to be BWC- reviewed favorable coverage on commercial plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/21/2012	Positioned OxyContin for appropriate patients who could benefit from q12h dosing of oxycodone & Butrans for patients on the more moderate side of pain, taking less than 80mg equivalent of morphine per day, for whom he is considering a medication adjustment. Dr Diab just waved & walked into a room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/21/2012	Myra said she has found some success with Butrans. She said some patients do very well on it. She added that some patients can be reluctant to try it & she thinks this is because they get "trained" to think that they need to take a pill every few hours to help their pain. Reminded her that patients can take supplemental analgesia with Butrans. She asked if there is any issue with them taking hydrocodone with Butrans. I told her they can take immediate release opioids or non-opioid medications for supplemental analgesia. She said this was a good reminder. Discussed counseling patients & setting their expectations. I asked if she has patients rate pain on a scale of 0-10. She said yes. I asked if they talk about a specific goal for reduction in the rating. She said yes, although some patients expect that they should feel no pain at all which can be unrealistic. Discussed Butrans appropriate patient type/range & OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone for appropriate patients beyond this range. Myra asked me to review managed care coverage. Discussed Caresource prior authorization requirements & reviewed BWC & commercial insurance coverage. She said she plans to prescribe Butrans for more patients. She also said she will contact the new head of the OAPA to start setting up a Butrans program for them.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	8/21/2012	I asked dr if she has initiated Butrans yet. Dr said that she has not. I told dr that I guessed she has patients on tramadol or vicoden that may need a dose adjustment? Dr agreed that she probably does. I asked dr to prescribe Butrans at that point for patients that have chronic pain. I reviewed inclusion criteria and asked if she treats those conditions? Dr said she has many patients with low back pain and osteoarthritis. I asked if Butrans make sense and if she sees a down side to using Butrans? Dr said she believes it is a good product she just needs to remember to use it. I provided her with the conversion scale and she put it in her lab coat.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/21/2012	Spoke with technician who said Dave was too busy today to talk to me. I asked if the technicians are generally the ones who put a customer's prescription insurance information into the computer. She said usually. I asked if they give out savings cards when they have them for medications. She said they try to remember to do that. Discussed Butrans & OxyContin savings programs & reviewed eligibility requirements, reminding her that patients with any type of government insurance cannot utilize the cards. She said she would give my information to Dave.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	8/21/2012	Spoke to barb and Lynn about Butrans and OxyContin. I asked Barb if they have filled Butrans recently. She said they did but the patient was not on it for more than a month or two and couldn't remember who prescribed it. I reviewed the Medco/ESI coverage and asked about local employer groups with one of those plans. Barb said that she knows the City of Green and General tire both have ESI. I reviewed the managed care coverage for both products and asked about OxyContin fills. I was told by Lynn that they keep all the doses of OxyContin in stock and have a lot of dr Lababidi's patients. Explained the Butrans and OxyContin copay cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/22/2012	I asked Dr Hernandez when he prescribes Butrans, how long does he generally expect the patient to be on it. He said forever. He said for patients with a chronic condition, it is just what makes sense. He added that he has had great results so there is really no reason to not put someone on Butrans. He said he has had success switching patients from Vicodin to Butrans & Opana to Butrans. I told him it sounds like he is doing the right thing & has great clinical experience. Asked him what if a patient needs more than 20mcg Butrans, what does he do at that point. He said he would add more Butrans even though he knows that 20mcg is the maximum recommended dose & that it is not recommended. He said he is comfortable prescribing larger doses because he uses buprenorphine in larger doses with Suboxone. He said again he knows the company does not recommend this. I asked him to continue to prescribe for appropriate patients & he agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	8/22/2012	I asked dr what conditions he prescribes OxyContin for? Dr said he has patient on it with Cancer pain and many different types of low back pain. I showed dr the OxyContin visaid with the conditions it was studied in. Dr said he likes it and it works well. I showed dr the Butrans patch and dr said he knew it was Butrans. Dr said he has not used it yet. Reviewed indication, 7 day transdermal system, and discussed appropriate patients on Ultram or low dose vicoden who he has a dose adjustment. I told dr it is covered on Caresource with PA, Medco, ESI and Medical Mutual. Dr told me to leave Butrans information. Left the Opioid experienced trial and initiation and I asked Dr Bonyo why he need to use Butrans again? Dr said he didnt know but that he will. I used the initiation and titration guide along with Emma and William profiles to show appropriate patients for Butrans and to show initiation from IR opioids, and titration. I asked dr if he will gain some clinical experience with Butrans in 2012? Dr said he will.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	8/22/2012	I asked Bill if he has filled Butrans recently. Bill told me that he filled one of Dr Patel in Barberton within the last month and initiated on the 5mcg dose. I reviewed dosing, titration, and appropriate patients. I asked Bill which doses he has of OxyContin and he said he has all doses except the 15mg dose. Reviewed dosing and conversions with Bill and he said he is still seeing it but not as much as he used to. B ill said he is seeing an increase in vicoden and percocet.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	8/22/2012	I provided pharmacist with Butrans FPI information. Told her about steady state, appropriate patient types and adverse events. The pharmacy has not filled Butrans recently but do have the 5 and 10mcg in stock. OxyContin dosing information and conversion discussion.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	8/22/2012	Provided overview of Butrans and OxyContin and asked about stocking of the products. They have all OxyContin except for 15mg and the Butrans 5mg. They have filled Butrans in the past but nothing recently. I reviewed Butrans steady state, appropriate patients and explanation of the conversions from IR opioids.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	8/22/2012	I asked dr if she had any reservations in using Butrans? Dr said not but she reminded me that she is referring out many of her chronic patients. I asked her to think of patients on NSAIDs and Ultram who may need a dose adjustment. Dr said she will consider it.

	Parma	OH	44129	8/22/2012	I asked Elaine what it is about a patient's case that causes her to think of Butrans for them. She said it is a matter of if the patient is getting good pain relief on their medication- if they are not, she thinks of Butrans for them. I asked what patients are typically on when they come to her. She said usually Vicodin or sometimes Percocet. She added that if they are on Percocet, she switches them to a CII. I asked if this is a place where Butrans could be positioned for her. She said yes. She said she is getting to the point where she is more comfortable practicing there. She said pain management is different from any other type of medicine she has done in the past, but she is getting more comfortable now & is getting a sense of where medications can fit into her practice.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	8/22/2012	I reminded Dr Dale of our previous conversation when we talked about referring patients to pain management & giving them a prescription for Butrans when they refer. Dr Dale said he remembers that & added that he actually just wrote Butrans 2 weeks ago for a patient who he was referring to pain management. I asked what the patient was on before he switched & referred her. He said this patient had back pain & had been on tramadol, not well-controlled. He said he started her at Butrans 5mg. He added that he allowed her to take tramadol for supplemental analgesia, especially for the first few days. Discussed the importance of setting appropriate expectations with patients. He said he tells the patients to try Butrans for at least 3 days before deciding if they like it. I reminded him that he can titrate at that 3 day mark. He said he probably wouldn't titrate that early & that he would probably wait a week or so before increasing their dose. I asked if there was any reason he wouldn't continue to write Butrans for this patient type. He said he plans to continue this. Discussed managed care/savings. I asked what patient type he feels is appropriate for OxyContin. He said he would use this as a last resort- for a patient who had maxed out on short-acting & for whom nothing else worked.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	8/22/2012	I asked dr if he believes there is any downside to using Butrans on a regular basis? Dr said he has used it quite a bit and he has always had good results with Butrans. Dr said that if he has a patient that is on an opioid and their pain is under control he would not use Butrans. I asked if he has had such good results is there a reason why you are not using it more often. Dr said he has used it recently and the patient is doing well. Dr said he just needs to identify patients who need more pain relief and who are suffering from low back pain or arthritis. I reviewed the Ultram and vicodin patient profiles as well as managed care information. I asked dr if he understands where Butrans is appropriate. Dr agreed to understand and will continue to prescribe.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	8/22/2012	Gave quick review to Butrans indication, 7 day transdermal system, and where to use. I asked if she sees herself using Butrans. Dr said maybe if she finds the right patient. I asked what she thinks the right patient is? Dr said a patient that needs an extended release opioid in a patch form. I showed her the initiation and titration guide and asked her if she has patient on tramadol and if she would use it for that patient that may need a dose adjustment. Dr agreed and said she understood.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	8/22/2012	Spoke to office staff about my products and was told that the doctor had prescribed Butrans within the last week. I asked if they knew any specifics and the staff told me that the patient was discharged from Summa Akron City on Butrans and doctor refilled the Butrans. Saw dr in the office and introduced myself. Doctor said she was glad to have someone but said she would try go give me time to discuss my products soon.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Garfield Heights	OH	44125	8/22/2012	Spoke with pharmacist, Nate, & inquired about Butrans stocking. He said they do not have it & would order it on an as-needed basis. He added that he has no patients on it at this time. Updated him on Medco & Express Scripts preferred tier 2 status. He said they do fill prescriptions for those plans. I asked, when he sees prescriptions for OxyContin if he is seeing it dosed q12h or in any other dosing interval (like BID). He said he usually sees it q12h. I asked if he counsels patients on the importance of adhering to this q12h dosing interval, explaining that it is different than BID. He said patients who are on OxyContin are knowledgeable & know to take it every 12 Dr said he has not had his recent Butrans patient back in for a follow up. I asked dr to give me the patients feedback and hopefully he will be more prone to prescribe on a regular basis. Dr said he does like the product and has no problem with it. I told him to continue to identify Ultram patients needing a dose adjustment.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	8/22/2012	Quick call...I showed doc the patient profile of Emma and reminded him that he said he would prescribe for this patient type. He said he has tried but the coverage limits him. I gave him a formulary grid showing medco and express scripts at the lowest branded co pay. I also explained that savings cards will provide further savings.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	8/22/2012	Dr Moufawad said he has been using more Butrans & OxyContin. I asked if there is any particular specific patient type(s) that he finds OxyContin to be effective for. He said he is limiting the amount of opioid his patients are on to no more than 100-120mg morphine equivalent per day. He said he has been taking patients off Opana & putting them on OxyContin because he feels that patients are more likely to try to abuse Opana. He said he knows we do not have data to show that & that it is just a matter of his personal opinion. He said as he decreases his Opana patients, he is increasing his OxyContin patients. Asked him if he has a patient on oxycodone plain or Percocet & he wanted them on something long-acting, why not choose OxyContin for them. Dr Moufawad said that actually for him, those patients would be offered Butrans as a long-acting option. He said he is trying to get most of his patients on Butrans if their insurance allows it & as long as the patient tolerates it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Broadview Heights	OH	44147	8/22/2012	Dr Samuel said he just prescribed Butrans for a patient. He said he actually has a few patients on it. I asked him what, to him, makes a patient a good candidate for Butrans. He said this last patient he wrote it for was a 79 year old woman, not well-controlled on non-opioid medications. He added that she had been on hydrocodone in the past, but that was ineffective. Discussed managed care & likelihood of prior authorization required for Medicare. I asked him to think of Butrans for patients like this one clinically, but with commercial insurance for access to Butrans. He said probably 40% of his practice is commercially insured vs 60% with Medicare. Dr Samuel said he thinks Butrans is best used earlier in opioid therapy rather than later, when a patient is accustomed to taking short-acting opioids around-the-clock. I asked him where OxyContin fits in to his practice. He said he does not like to write it due to the stigma associated with it. I asked if he feels that OxyContin is safe & effective. He said it is the best. He said it is a great medication with a bad reputation & patients are afraid to take it due to the stigma associated with it. I asked if he feels that OxyContin is safe & effective. He said it is the best. He said it is a great medication with a bad reputation & patients are afraid to take it due to the stigma associated with it.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Warrensville Heights	OH	44122	8/22/2012	I showed Dr Zivic the q12h dosing interval spread in the OxyContin core visual aid. I asked him if when he writes OxyContin if he writes it in this q12h dosing interval. He said he almost always does. I asked if there are circumstances he would not do that on. He said only if he is in a hurry or something & does it by mistake- he said he always writes it q12h. I told him he is doing the right thing as OxyContin has only been studied & is only recommended to be dosed q12h. I asked if he talks to patients about what "every 12 hours" means, since patients could interpret this as "twice a day". He said he does talk to patients about this. I updated him on Butrans coverage on Medco & Express Scripts at the lowest branded co-pay. He said this was good news. I told him this is evidence that coverage continues to improve.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/23/2012	I asked dr if he had identified a Butrans patient yet? Dr said he has not but has asked a few patients about using the Butrans patch. Doctor said that the patients said they don't want to wear a patch. I asked doctor what the age of the patients are he had asked about Butrans? Dr said all were over 65yrs. I told dr to focus on patients that are under Medicare age who are currently working because maybe they would rather wear a patch under their clothes while working. Doctor thought that was a good idea and said he will continue to find new patients. Gave quick review of Butrans dosing and the case study profiles.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	8/23/2012	Doc said he has not written more butrans but the coverage is not good. I showed him the formulary grid and explained the commercial plans covering including medco and express scripts which cover butrans at the lowest branded co pay. He said he has just a few patients on it. I asked him to consider increasing his use of butrans for appropriate patients. Provided an initiation guide.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	8/23/2012	I asked dr if he feels comfortable using OxyContin? Dr said he does and uses it often for patients with low back pain and cancer pain? I asked dr what has to happen with a patient for him to use OxyContin. Doctor said when he has a patient with long term pain like cancer or osteoarthritis he likes to use it. Dr said that he does titrate through the doses when necessary to gain analgesia. I told dr that I want him to be as comfortable with Butrans as he is with OxyContin but the only way for him to accomplish that is to gain some clinical experience. I reviewed all key selling messages and discussed appropriate patients with the initiation and titration guide. Dr agreed to use Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	8/23/2012	I asked Lori to see the Dr to discuss Butrans. Lori told me that she typically will not see reps for walk in calls. I spoke with Lori and Dyan about Butrans and asked if there were any Butrans Experience kits left. There are three kits left.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	8/23/2012	Quick call...I reminded doc of the oxycontin indication, the flexibility of dosing, and the preferred formulary status of most Med D plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	8/23/2012	I asked dr if she had identified any Butrans customers? Dr said not and looked as if she wasn't sure what Butrans was. I reviewed the patient profiles with her and asked her to identify a patient and gain some clinical experience. Dr said ok.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	8/23/2012	Quick call...I reminded doc of the butrans patient type and the commercial plans and the lowest branded co pay for medco and express scripts patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Hts	OH	44124	8/23/2012	Doc needed butrans savings cards at his beachwood office time share.
PPLPMDL0020000001	C. Falls	OH	44223	8/23/2012	I spoke to Jenn and Cindy about Butrans and OxyContin. I asked if they have seen any Butrans yet? Jenn told them that they were told by Glenn that they will be sending patients from pain management in the hospital so they ordered it then never saw the patients. They sent the Butrans back then a patient came in a month later wanting to fill the 5mg. The pharmacy did not have the dose needed and missed the Rx. I asked why they sent it back so soon and I was told they don't remember why. I asked if they work closely with Glenn(Pharmacist in pain mgt). Jenn told them they do work with him closely and they have a good working relationship. I asked about their fills and stocking of OxyContin and Cindy said they have all doses in stock and do fill it regularly but not as much as the last few years. They have enough copay cards and Butrans patient guides.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	8/23/2012	I asked doctor to gain more clinical experience with Butrans by trying it in a patient taking Ultram needing a dose adjustment. Dr said he said he has used it but could not give me any specifics where he used it. I gave quick review of Emma case study and reviewed the formulary coverage with Medco/ESI.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44305	8/23/2012	Used main visual and case study with Emma and asked dr to initiate Butrans in the Ultram patient who tells you they need more and still have pain. I showed doctor Vora the Butrans information guide and managed care coverage and asked him to gain additional clinical experience with Butrans. Dr said he likes the results and will continue to identify patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/23/2012	I asked Dr Knochball what types of conditions he typically treats with hydrocodone for a month or more. He said he usually only uses hydrocodone for patients with back pain & he treats them for approximately 10 days with it. I showed him the Butrans opioid-experienced patient clinical backgrounder inclusion criteria & asked him what he does if his patients present with these types of conditions. He said he would certainly not prescribe any type of narcotics right off the bat for these patients. He said he would order an MRI, then send the patient to a neurosurgeon for a surgery. He said that it important to fix the problem instead of just covering it up with pain medication. I agreed that opioid therapy would not likely be a first line treatment for these patients. I asked what he does if/when a patient has tried other avenues (ie surgery) yet is still in pain. He said he is sympathetic to patients in pain because he has been in pain himself before. He said if the patient is trustworthy, he will treat them.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	8/23/2012	Presented Butrans Patient Experience Program to Dr Mandat. He said he just put someone on Butrans from one of his nursing homes. He added that this patient had been on Vicodin & was too debilitated to request more when she needed it. He said he thought Butrans would be a good option for her because it would offer a continuous delivery of medication. I asked if, with him using it for his nursing home patients, managed care was ever a problem. He said he has been fortunate & has not had any problems. I asked if he has had good clinical experience with Butrans. He said he has no complaints. Explained how the Butrans Patient Experience Program could help patients communicate their results with Butrans weekly directly to him. I asked if he thought he would be able to utilize the 5 kits, reminding him that this would be more for office-based patients. He said he would use HCP asked if he can prescribe 15mcg (or 2 patches). I explained that 2 patches is not recommended and is not in our labeling. She also asked when patients might see measurable effects from butrans. I explained that steady state is reached in 3 days after which time she can titrate. She said she had a patient that was taking 10mcg which didnt work for them so he was titrated to 20mcg. She said they still love the product and the put
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	8/23/2012	I asked Jean and Sarah about Butrans fills and stocking information. Jean told me that they do not have any in stock and told me they have not seen a prescription. I reviewed the initiation and titration guide for Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	8/23/2012	I asked Janet if I could get a second with the doctor to discuss Butrans. Janet checked and said he was way behind and did not have time to talk. Left initiation and titration guide for Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/23/2012	Doctor reminded me that he is not starting any new patients on OxyContin. I asked dr if he would consider initiating a CII, 7 day transdermal system? Dr said possibly but he refers out if he thinks the patient is in chronic pain. I gave dr the initiation and titration guide and asked him to review. nothing else learned.

	Garfield Hts	OH	44125	8/23/2012	I asked Dr Sadowski when he prescribes hydrocodone for a patient how he doses it. He said once a day. He also said he very rarely starts someone on hydrocodone. He said he avoids opioid medications whenever possible. I agreed that he should be cautious in prescribing all opioid medications as they are all abusable & addictive. I asked him where, then he sees a place for Butrans, also an opioid medication. He said he likes that it is transdermal because his experience has been that patients are not as likely to abuse them. I reminded him that Butrans is an opioid & still has abuse/addiction potential. I presented Butrans Patient Experience Program, explaining how they can be used & who they are for. He said about 80% of his practice is probably Medicare. I asked him to focus, then on the 20% with commercial insurance. I asked him to think of patients age 40-60 with chronically painful conditions. He said he has no problem with Butrans & it is just a matter of finding someone who can get it. Discussed managed care again, reviewing coverage on third party plans. Dr Sadowski said he has one patient on OxyContin. I asked him what it is about that one patient that makes him/her a good candidate for OxyContin. He said the patient came to him already on it so he continues them on it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/24/2012	Dr Gigliotti said he has been referring patients to Dr Salama (pain management specialist) down the hall so he does not have to manage them. I asked if he is referring everyone or just some. He said just some at this point. He said if he has any suspicions of the patient he refers them. I agreed that appropriate patient selection is important with all opioid medications, including Butrans & OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	8/24/2012	Quick Call.....reviewed the appropriate patient type for butrans using the Emma profile. He asked for confirmation of coverage on BWC. I told him butrans is being covered by BWC and now at the lowest branded co pay for medco and express scripts plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	8/24/2012	Good discussion on Butrans and OxyContin. Doctor said that he had a patient who was taking vicoden who he thought was a good candidate for Butrans. The patient checked with his SummaCare Secure and Butrans was 4th tier on his plan and was too costly. Dr said that he thinks Butrans is a great product and said that the patch is a big plus for many patients. I reviewed the appropriate patients by using case studies of Emma and William, pain score reductions, application sites, managed care coverage review. Dr said he will continue to search for the appropriate candidate.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	8/24/2012	Doc said she has not seen any skin reactions to butrans lately and she will continue to identify appropriate patients. I discussed the starting doses and formulary coverage.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/24/2012	Dr Salama said he has been having "issues" with Butrans. I asked him to elaborate. He said insurance companies continue to deny prescriptions for Butrans. He said he did not know what plans they were. Reviewed coverage & gave him Medco/Express Scripts announcement. I asked him to do his best to offer Butrans to appropriate patients with commercial insurance or BWC. He said he does give out the cards to eligible patients & that they help very much. Offered OxyContin savings cards but he said he did not want any. He said one of the other problems has been that in the hotter weather, Butrans does not seem to be sticking as well to patients. He asked what to do about this. Showed him patient information booklets & discussed taping edges with first aid tape or covering with something like Tegaderm or Bioclusive. He said he would start telling patients about the Tegaderm. He said finally, he has had issues with pharmacy stocking. He asked me who in the area stocks Butrans. I let him know I am in pharmacies often & have confirmed stocking at most major pharmacy retailers in the area. He said he has also encountered pharmacies not wanting to open a box to dispense fewer than 4 patches. I assured him if he is allowed to do this & let him know some pharmacies do not like to do it. Discussed dosing/range of patients. I asked him to continue prescribing Butrans in appropriate patients & he agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	8/24/2012	Dr said he is still using OxyContin but it continues to be harder and harder to get through insurance. I asked if it is his go to long acting opioid and he said that it is. I reminded him of the AARP and CCRX coverage.

She said we could start with an in-service for the pharmacy staff on the topic of pain management & different types of treatment options available. I scheduled this for October. Kylie said that after that is complete, she will talk to other departments & nursing staff to come up with an educational in-service for them as well.

Also reminded her that BWC has been paying for Butrans. Gave her OxyContin Medicare D formulary grid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	8/24/2012	I asked dr Yee since he prescribed Butrans again recently if he feels comfortable enough to use on a more regular basis. Dr said maybe not on a regular basis. I asked dr why not? Dr said being able to find patients. I asked dr what patients he feels are appropriate for Butrans? Dr didn't really answer so I told him to use it instead of titrating up on patients on Ultram or vicoden. Dr said he will look into it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	8/24/2012	I asked dr if he believes Butrans is a product he would use for patients on IR opioids who may need a dose adjustment. Dr really didn't answer me and said that he still has not looked over all the product information I have left. I told him that Butrans is the first and only CII, 7 day transdermal patch. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	8/24/2012	Dr manning said he started two patients on Butrans. I asked him about the patient profiles and what IR opioids they were taking. Dr said Oxycodone. I reviewed the approximate conversions to Butrans and reminded dr when initiating patients on Butrans for patients over 30mg of a morphine equivalent to ensure to taper down to no more than 30mg before initiating Butrans. Doctor said they were both under 30mg but said its good information to know. I told dr that I would like to hear the results when the patient comes back in for a follow up. I reviewed the case studies, application sites, pain score reductions and managed care coverage. Dr said he will continue to look for patients and likes the patch instead of pills.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Munroe Falls	OH	44262	8/27/2012	I asked dr if she had identified appropriate patients for Butrans. Dr said she did not but thinks it is a good product and plans to try it. Gave him one package of Butrans cards & walked him through usage & eligibility requirements. Let him know customers would need the actual card for the trial offer, as this is not part of e-voucher. He said he has plenty of patient information booklets. I encouraged him to give them out to customers, especially if they are new to the brand, in effort to possibly reduce callbacks to the pharmacy about usage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	8/27/2012	Reviewed the butrans formulary coverage and the recent updates with medco and express scripts - tier 2 coverage along with the savings cards means the lowest branded copay for those plans,
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/27/2012	I asked to see the doctor and was told she is way behind and could not see me. I left Butrans FPI and OxyContin formulary grid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	8/27/2012	I asked dr if it makes sense to initiate Butrans for patients that tell you they need more of their IR opioid and they have a chronic condition? Dr said it does and he will use it for those patients on vicoden. I showed the case studies and focused on Emma. Dr said he uses Ultram and will look at using Butrans there as well. Gave quick overview of formulary coverage to doctor and Ruth(ma) in the lab.

I reminded him it has been almost 2 years of him telling me that & asked him if he would agree that he probably sees patients daily who would be appropriate to at least try Butrans. He said I was probably right & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/27/2012	Quick call- Dr Taylor saw me at the window & said she hasn't put anyone on Butrans since lunch last week. She added that she knows she will find someone though. Broad formulary access for OxyContin message.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/27/2012	I asked Dr Trickett what types of patients she finds OxyContin to be a good medication for. She said someone with more severe pain & someone who has a chronically painful condition like osteoarthritis. She said she finds that no matter what condition or medication, patients always tend to need escalating doses of opioid medications. Discussed physical dependence, tolerance, & addiction & the differences between these terms. Dr Trickett said she has noticed that pain management physicians don't even want to seem to write narcotic medications anymore. She said sometimes she doesn't know what to do with patients because she will get to a point with some of them where she is no longer comfortable writing their medication, so she refers to pain management, only to have pain management send them back to her for their medications. I agreed that this can be challenging. I reminded Dr Trickett of our last conversation when she told me that she thinks of Butrans for patients who she thinks will need pain medication for the rest of their lives & asked her what about patients who need treatment for a month to a few months. She said she does use Butrans after a patient has been on short-acting like Vicodin for one month, but statistically, patients who aren't better within one month, will be on that pain medication forever. She said she puts them on Butrans after one month but in her mind, that patient will be on it indefinitely. She said she would like to find more good patients for it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/27/2012	Marsha Fox told me that the doctor was over an hour behind however allow me 30 seconds. Dr said he does but the government wants him to titrate his patients down on OxyContin. I asked dr if that is best for his patients who are still in pain. Dr said it is not good so he will continue to titrate up when necessary. AARP and CCRx coverage review.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	8/27/2012	I asked dr about his OxyContin use and wanted to know what has to happen in order for him to prescribe Butrans? Dr said that most of his OxyContin patients are those that are on vicoden and need more of a long acting product like OxyContin. Dr said he likes the Q12h dosing, dosing flexibility, and managed care coverage. Dr said he has patients on just about every dose. I reviewed the conversions and asked if he always moves patients from vicoden to OxyContin or they get moved to percocet first. Dr said in most cases if he knows the patient has chronic pain he will skip the percocet and go to OxyContin from vicoden. Reviewed Butrans dosing, titration, inclusion criteria, case studies, and managed care coverage. Dr said his results so far have been positive and wanted to know when it will get on Medicare. I told him I didnt know and asked if he has Medco/ESI patients. Dr said he did and likes the copy cards with the trial offer. Dr said his patients on OxyContin get constipation and asked what product he should provide. I told him that Senokot S is good because it has both Senna and Docusate Sodium which works well for medication induced constipation. Dr agreed to prescribe more OxyContin and Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	8/27/2012	Spoke to Christopher and asked if he knew about Butrans. He said he did but admitted that they have only filled one or two prescriptions in a year. Provided copy card information and discussed managed care coverage.

I asked where most of his OxyContin business is coming from. Rod said most of the prescriptions come from the Akron area such as Lababidi. He is good on copy cards.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/28/2012	Quick call- I handed Dr Roheny an updated Butrans formulary grid. I showed him that on some of the nation's biggest plans, such as Medical Mutual & Medco, patients can get Butrans for the lowest branded co-pay without restrictions. I reminded him that he has trial/savings cards, allowing those patients to try Butrans for 28 days, then pay only $15-20 out of pocket monthly. I asked him what reasons he would have to not try Butrans on a few appropriate patients. He did not answer. He exposed the adhesive backing on the formulary grid & hung it on the door in his office, saying this would help him remember. I asked him if he wanted an OxyContin one to hang next to it, reminding him of favorable & broad access. He said he would just stay with the Butrans grid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/28/2012	Discussed the importance of appropriate patient selection & reviewed appropriate patient type for Butrans & OxyContin. Also discussed OARRS, urine drug screening, & pain contracts- Dr Jugulion agrees that those measures are important to take if a physician decides to prescribe any type of narcotic medication. I asked, since he has told me that he does not write any pain medication, if he refers frequently to pain management. He said he does so a lot for blocks. He went on to explain that some pain management physicians do not practice responsibly so he avoids referring to them. He said he does have a few different physicians who he refers to when a patient has pain. Dr Jugulion said many of his patients have back pain. He said he refers all these patients. b>CHUDAKOB's query on 09/05/2012Ashleigh, I saw in your notes it says you discussed urine drug screening. What did you discuss about this?b>APSEGA's response on 09/06/2012We talked about it being a way to monitor patients for whom opioid medications are prescribed. He was saying that if a doctor is going to prescribe opioids, he/she should use every measure possible (OARRS, urine drug screens, pain contracts) to protect his/her practice.b>CHUDAKOB added notes on 09/06/2012Ok. Thanks for the clarification.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	8/28/2012	Gave Dr Diab OxyContin savings cards as they had thrown many of the savings cards & patient information brochures for all medications away. Reviewed broad formulary coverage. Also handed him updated Butrans formulary grid, pointing out to him that on his top plans, Medical Mutual & Medco, Butrans is covered at tier 2 with no prior authorization. I reminded him that he had said before that he liked Butrans clinically & his only issue was coverage. I asked him to give Butrans another try on a few appropriate patients since coverage has improved. He said he would see.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	8/28/2012	Dr Sundaram said he has not written Butrans lately but he has used OxyContin. I asked what types of patients he finds he uses OxyContin for. He said usually patients at nursing homes or in the hospital. I asked about usage for his office patients. He said some of them are on OxyContin, but more & more, the government is watching the prescription narcotics & doctors writing them. He said he is more cautious than ever now. He added that it is unfortunate that it has come to this. I agreed that abuse, misuse, & diversion have caused many issues & encouraged him to be as cautious as possible in prescribing. I asked if he is using OARRS. He said he is now. He also said he uses a pain contract & does random drug screening. Dr Sundaram said he is no longer taking any new patients calling in for pain. I asked what about his established patients who come to him with pain. He said he is willing to treat these patients. He said he probably has a total of 30-40 patients falling into that category. I told him that that is the segment of his patients I would be focusing on when discussing Butrans or OxyContin with him. I asked him to continue to use OxyContin in appropriate patients & to consider Butrans once weekly for some of them who could benefit from that dosing. He said he would do his best.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Highland Heights	OH	44143	8/28/2012	Doc asked when butrans would be covered by medicare. I told him that i could not answer that question. I did tell him that there are a lot of med D scripts going through with a PA and that each PA done is kind of an endorsement for butrans. He said his staff does not like doing PAS. I told him that it may be extra work for his staff but it could benefit his patients. Discussed the commercial plans covering butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	8/28/2012	I gave quick review of Butrans to dr Parisi over the counter and asked him if he had identified any patients yet. Dr told me that he did not and he thanked me for the reminder. I left dr with the initiation and titration guide and asked him to review it to help him identify patients
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44143	8/28/2012	I discussed the butrans patient type as one falling on tramadol - I asked him to try the patient on butrans when 200 or 300mg of tramadol no longer controls their pain. Let him know that I was leaving him more saving cards for eligible patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/28/2012	I asked Dr Moysaenko what patient type(s) he feels comfortable using OxyContin in. He said not very many. He said he tries to avoid prescribing it whenever possible. I asked if this is something exclusive to OxyContin or if he is speaking of CII medications in general. He said especially OxyContin due to the negative stigma attached to it. I asked if he has found it to be helpful for any of his patients. He said he does use it for patients for whom nothing else works for. He said if someone has tried everything else with no success & they are legitimately in pain, he would prescribe OxyContin for that patient. Reviewed Butrans core messages. I asked where he sees a place for Butrans. He said he wasn't sure. He added that most patients on any type of pain medication are only on it for "a short time". I asked what he means by that- weeks? months? He said he typically uses it for maybe a week or two for someone. I agreed that Butrans should not be used for acute pain. I asked if he ever finds himself refilling prescriptions for short-acting opioid for patients month after month. He said rarely. Discussed Butrans as a possible option for that type of patient if they meet the indication. Updated him on formulary coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	8/28/2012	Spoke with MA Cindy who said Dr Ortega was out of the office today. I asked if she has had any managed care issues with either Butrans or OxyContin or if any patients had given feedback on either recently since she handles all of the office's phone calls. She said everything has gone smoothly for both products. Reviewed Butrans patient information booklets with her & showed her how to use them to answer questions. Also suggested she keep one on hand at her desk so that if a patient calls with a question she can consult the booklet. I asked if they have patients on managed care plans other than BWC. She said some, but most are BWC. Discussed improving
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	8/29/2012	Spoke to Dr Cremer and Char about the appropriate patient types for Butrans. Dr said he remembered what I said last time about trying to identify existing patients on Ultram or vicoden who need a dose adjustment. Char said that they had been looking at new patients that fit the criteria. I reviewed Emma and William case studies.

I told her we do not have comparative data & showed appropriate patient type/range. She said she does think Butrans would be a good option for patients in nursing homes. Discussed formulary coverage. Focused her on appropriate patients ages 50-60 with pain from conditions such as osteoarthritis or spinal stenosis. I asked if she has patients like that in her office. She said she does. She also said she has some elderly patients on Percocet around-the-clock. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	9/7/2012	I asked Dr Taylor if he thinks Butrans is a product he will use? He said he really tries to avoid writing opioid medications whenever possible. I asked if patients come in on opioids ever. He said yes. He added that he will either continue them or try to get them off or at a reduced dose if possible, depending on the case. He also said he recently went to a family physician group meeting in Columbus & heard a presentation on opioids. He went on to say that not only did they talk about House Bill 93, but also that there will soon be even more restrictions on opioid prescribing which include mandates (rather than suggestions) on how physicians practice. I asked if this means he is now & will be referring more to pain management. He said he refers less because it is so difficult for patients to get in to pain management & often when they do, the specialists don't want to write the narcotics either. He said he tries to avoid bouncing the patient around. He said if he can manage the patient himself, he will. He said this is where Butrans can fit in for him. He said he does not like to start patients with chronically painful conditions on short-acting opioids, so Butrans would be a good option. He also told me he remembers that Medco & Express Scripts have Butrans at tier 2 now. I told him I was impressed at his memory of that. I asked him how often he sees patients with low back conditions? dr said he sees them. I showed him the inclusion criteria and emphasized low back conditions as appropriate patients who may need dose adjustments on IR opioids. I told dr to use the patient experience kits.
	Parma	OH	44129	9/12/2012	Dr Saul said he has not yet prescribed Butrans successfully. I asked him to elaborate. He said he tried to write it for a couple of patients, but their managed care plans would not allow it to be obtained. Handed him formulary grid & went over commercial coverage with savings program. He said the problem, then, was probably that his patients had Medicare because most of his patients who he treats for pain are older. I asked what it was clinically that caused him to choose Butrans for the patients. He said basically, he was trying it before going to transdermal fentanyl. He said he likes transdermal technologies, especially for patients with chronic conditions. He added that he used to prescribe fentanyl because it was the only option, but now he could use Butrans instead. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range & discussed OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients beyond the Butrans range. I asked what about patients who are not well-controlled on NSAID's or COX-2's- would he use Butrans there. He said possibly. He said he would be most likely to use Butrans after tramadol, instead of Vicodin. I agreed that this would be a good place to try Butrans & showed patient profile of "Emma" to support the message. I asked Dr Saul to try Butrans again, this time focusing more on commercially insured patients, like those 40-60, still working, with chronically painful conditions. He agreed.

He said they are all very happy, which makes him happy. He said he would really like to be a speaker for Butrans so he can help other physicians become more comfortable with Butrans & buprenorphine. He went on to say that he thinks that if someone understands buprenorphine, they would be more likely to prescribe it because it is such an interesting molecule. I asked if he has any recommendations for how to explain it to my primary care physicians. He said he isn't sure. I asked if he only offers Butrans to patients who are not doing well on their current medication or if he also proactively offers it to others. He said he does both, but added that usually if they are not doing well on their current medication they are more likely to try Butrans. He said others "aren't ready" for Butrans. Dr said when he knows the IR opioid isnt working he will typically refer to pain management especially if they are taking a lot of IR medicine. I asked if he thinks it makes sense to initiate Butrans prior to referral so he can refer the patient on an extended release medicine. Dr said that could be done and make sense in some cases but dr said he has inquired to his patients about Butrans and most are opposed to a patch. I asked why and he said various reasons. I asked dr to gain some clinical experience to allow Butrans to speak for itself.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	9/13/2012	I asked dr if he feels he has the patient population for a product like Butrans? I discussed proper patient selection by using studies and told him to use in patient with low back conditions. Dr agreed to try to use more and said that the transdermal system really makes sense to him and he councls his patients on it often.

I asked dr to use OxyContin for patients appropriate for Q12h dosing Medicare age with AARP and CCRx. Dr said that she is still having problems with Med D plans and OxyContin. She had a patient last week with a Med D plan(couldnt remember which one) that she had to switch to ER morphine because the plan would not cover OxyContin. PPLPMDL0020000001

	Independence	OH	44131	9/14/2012	Dr Jack asked me if the script he wrote for Butrans showed up. I asked him why he wrote the prescription. He said he isn't really sure, but probably because it was an older patient & he thought the transdermal option may be good for her. He said also probably because he thought a long-acting option may be better for her particular case. I told him it sounds like he chose an ideal patient clinically, but my only concern would be that if the patient was older, she may not have been able to obtain Butrans if she has Medicare. Dr Jack said no matter what the cost would be, he is certain the patient's son, who is very wealthy, would pay for the prescription. I asked him to try to focus on appropriate patients who are commercially insured or have BWC. He said he did not realize that & added that he will start looking at his BWC patients to see who may be a good candidate.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	9/14/2012	Spoke with Laura & reviewed Butrans patient information booklets, showing how they can be used for patient counsel. He said he isn't sure. He asked what about Medicaid. Explained Caresource prior authorization requirements but advised that he try to avoid the other Medicaid plans & focus more on where it is covered, such as patients 40-60, working, with a chronically painful condition. Dr said he thinks it will he just hasn't found the right patient yet. I asked what the right patient is? Dr said he is looking for a patient on Ultram who needs more analgesia. I told dr that that is ideal and to possibly focus on patients with low back conditions. Gave dr initiation and titration guide.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	9/14/2012	Dr Barrett said he really likes Butrans & that it has been effective for his patients. He asked about insurance coverage. I reviewed formulary grid with him. He said it looks like tier 3 which seems like that would require extra work on their part. I told him tier 3 is just a slightly higher co-pay & clarified that on commercial insurance plans, prior authorization is not required. I added that with the savings program, patients could expect to pay only $15-20 for a month's supply after the initial trial offer. He also said he uses a lot of OxyContin. He added that he uses low doses, not the 60 or 80mg. I asked why he only uses low doses. He said he has not found the need for higher doses & finds that most patients can be controlled at lower doses than some physicians realize. Dr Barrett also said today is his last day in Beachwood as he will now be at Southpoint Pain Management. I let him know I would follow up with him there.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	9/14/2012	I provided review of case studies and focused on patients under 65 with low back conditions who are on an IR opioid and need a dose adjustment. PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	9/14/2012	Dr Yokiell said no one is paying for Butrans. I asked what he means. He asked who is covering it. I went over the formulary grid & let him know BWC is paying for it as well. I asked how much of his practice is BWC. He said probably 25%. I told him if he is writing for commercially insured patients & BWC, they should not likely pay more than $15-20 out of pocket if they are using the savings card. He said he just wrote a script for Butrans yesterday for a patient with commercial insurance & gave them a card. I asked what he thinks the biggest hindrance has been for him in writing more Butrans. He said it is mostly the patient type. He said primary care physicians are sending him patients who are on OxyContin plus Percocet for breakthrough. He said he simply cannot expect to taper that patient down & hope that Butrans works for them at that point. I agreed that this type of patient would probably not be a Butrans candidate. I asked if all the patients who are being referred are on that high a dose of opioids. He said most are. Positioned Butrans for those who are appropriate, not on that high a dose, & with commercial insurance or BWC. Dr Yokiell agreed to try to identify patients like this & use Butrans for them. Discussed OxyContin individualization of dose with 7 tablet strengths.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	9/17/2012	Positioned OxyContin for appropriate patients who take Percocet around-the-clock, especially if they are not getting adequate relief. Also reviewed broad formulary coverage, giving a variety of patients access to OxyContin. Also positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who cannot control NSAID's/COX-2's or those who he is reducing the amount of opioid they are taking if they fall within the appropriate range of doses. Gave updated formulary grid & pointed out favorable commercial coverage. Suggested Butrans for appropriate patients ages 40-60 with insurance through work who fall into the range we discussed. Dr Warren said he will try Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44303	9/17/2012	Rod told me that he has a customer that he gave OxyContin copay cards to help with cost and her employer just made the decision to make the patient use ESI mail order. Jason said he does have some patients. I focused on AARP and CCRx coverage with average costs. Jason said he has filled it fairly regularly and has plenty of copay cards but there are some patients that they have had to switch to MS Contin or ER Morphine due to OxyContin not being covered.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	9/17/2012	I asked dr Shah if he had time to read the opioid experienced trial yet. Dr said he has not had the time but its on his desk and he will review it. I told dr to remember he can titrate every three days if necessary. Reviewed managed care with staff for Butrans and AARP and CCRx for OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	9/17/2012	Dr Stetler said he has had pretty good success with Butrans. Dr said he did have one patient that he titrated to the 20mcg dose and patient was not leaving the patches on for 7 days. Dr said he advised to leave patch on for 7 days. Discussed all key selling messages and focused on patient type selection with inclusion criteria for experienced and non opioid experienced patients. Gave quick review of studies with chronic low back patients and pain score reductions. Dr said that most of the patients going forward for Butrans will be opioid naive patients because he only has a handful of patients on short acting opioids all of which are for acute pain. I reviewed managed care, copay card and Butrans patient experience kits. Dr said that if he has a patient who he deems chronic(3+ mos) he refers out. I asked dr who he refers to at he said Narouze, Sable, Fouad, and Lababidi. I also asked dr if he would feel comfortable prescribing Butrans before he refers to send a good referral? Dr said it makes sense and he will consider doing it.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/17/2012	Elaine said she has been using Butrans for some patients if tramadol is no longer controlling their pain. I showed her "Emma" profile to support that this is a good patient type. I asked what type of feedback she has been getting. She said mostly good (ie good analgesic effect), but is also hearing from some patients (typically male) that they are having problems with adhesion. Discussed taping edges with first aid tape or covering the system with Bioclusive or Tegaderm-type covering. She said she does tell them this. She also said a female patient who is on Butrans came in & said that one of her other doctors recommended coming off the Butrans because this doctor was convinced that it was causing her to be "almost in slow motion" & with slurred speech. Elaine & the staff said, however, that that is how this patient always is, not just with Butrans. I asked Elaine if she has tried Butrans for patients who are taking Vicodin around-the-clock. She said she just wants the medication to be covered by insurance when she writes it. Showed formulary grid & discussed BWC as well as prior authorization requirements for Caresource. Elaine said she likes Butrans because it seems easy for patients & she is getting adequate results. She said she would keep writing it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	9/18/2012	Dr Fedorko said he did not have time today. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who have BWC or commercial insurance, with a chronically painful conditions, not well-controlled on hydrocodone 3-5 times per day. He said he is trying to find patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Middleburg Heights	OH	44130	9/18/2012	Quick call- Positioned Butrans once weekly for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on tramadol or hydrocodone 3-5 times per day if they have commercial insurance. Also pointed out the savings cards in the hallway. Dr Ignat thanked me & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	9/18/2012	I asked Dr Zaidi how frequently he has a new start on OxyContin. He said he does this multiple times per day now. He went on to say that he has always liked OxyContin, but he did have to change a lot of patients after the reformulation of OxyContin. He said then, when Opana was having issues, he changed back to writing more OxyContin. Discussed 7 tablet strengths. I asked about his usage of intermediate strengths- does he use all 3 of those doses. He said he writes mostly 20 & 30mg. He added that he tries not to write the higher doses. I asked what about the 15mg. He said he actually tends to forget about the 15mg. He said he will try to remember that next time he is switching someone from 10 to 20 or vice versa. I asked about recent referrals from primary care. He said he continues to be alarmed at the high doses of opioids that some primary care physicians have patients on. He said he tries to get patients down as quickly as is reasonable. I asked Dr Zaidi what kinds of conditions patients he treats have that warrant chronic opioid therapy. He said a variety of things including accidents that have chronic effects & failed surgeries. Discussed OxyContin broad formulary coverage & savings program. He said he never has insurance problems with OxyContin. Discussed appropriate patient type for Butrans & asked him to prescribe it if a patient in the appropriate range does present in his practice. He agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/18/2012	Quick call- Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on up to 80mg oxycodone per day & OxyContin for those beyond that range. Reviewed managed care coverage with Cindy & discussed savings where applicable (no government insurances).
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/18/2012	Dr Roheny said he hasn't found any patients with commercial insurance yet. I told him that was hard to believe. I asked him if he has patients who clinically fit the Butrans appropriate patient description who have Caresource for their insurance. He said he has a lot. I reviewed Butrans prior authorization requirements (ie failure of tramadol, hydrocodone, oxycodone, or codeine). Dr Roheny said all the patients have already tried at least one of those medications. Positioned Butrans for those patients if appropriate. He said he would do his best. Reviewed OxyContin broad formulary access.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	9/18/2012	I showed Dr Diab pg 10 of OxyContin core visual aid, pointing out the 7 tablet strengths. I told him the purpose of this is individualization of dose. He said that was good & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/18/2012	Quick call- Reminded Dr Lin of recent lunch & her interest in Butrans for one particular patient. She said she plans to talk to him about it, thanked me, & walked away. Spoke with Deana & reviewed managed care grids for Butrans & OxyContin. Also worked with her to schedule first available breakfast.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/18/2012	Spoke with Georgia, technician, who said a floater pharmacist was in. Discussed Butrans once weekly transdermal dosing & patient type. Also gave her information sheet on Butrans savings program & discussed eligibility requirements. She said they did not need any savings cards for Butrans or OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	9/18/2012	Spoke with Mary who said the pharmacist was too busy today. Discussed Butrans application/rotation/disposal. Showed her patient information booklets & gave her 2 to keep on hand or give out. Discussed patient type/range for Butrans. She said they have a lot of customers on chronic narcotics for pain. I asked what type of insurance she sees most of. She said Medicare & Medicaid. I asked her to give the pharmacist my information & I asked Dr Bonyo if he sees any downside to using Butrans for the appropriate patient? Dr said he doesn't think so. I asked if he can gain some more clinical experience with it for a patient needing a dose adjustment from an IR opioid? Dr said he will try to. I gave review of initiation and titration guide and discussed BWC and Caresource coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	9/19/2012	Introduced myself & Purdue's products to Dr Manuel. Presented Butrans, delivering core messages. Also discussed Butrans as the only long-acting CII opioid, reminding him that because Butrans is an opioid, it does carry abuse & addiction potential. Discussed appropriate patient type/range, focusing him on appropriate patients with confirmed pain conditions such as osteoarthritis or low back pain, for whom he is ready to start on opioid therapy or for whom he is considering a dosage adjustment of their current opioid. I asked if he sees patients like this. He said very few. He said he refers as soon as possible. Asked if he initiates anything before/when sending to pain management. He said he does not typically do this. He said I made some good points, but added that he would likely not have a need for something like Butrans. Asked what aspects of Butrans he thought sounded like good points. He said once weekly dosing. He asked what else I have. Showed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths, pointing out individualization of dosing. He said this was good to know as he was unaware of those strengths. I asked if he currently has any patients on OxyContin. He said he does not.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	9/19/2012	Spoke to Kieth and Natalie about Butrans. Kieth said they have received 2 prescriptions for Butrans this week. One 5mcg from Shah and another from Lababidi 5mcg. I reviewed the Butrans dosing, application sites, patient information guide, copay cards and appropriate patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	9/19/2012	I reminded Dr Haddad in his previous interest in Butrans. I asked what managed care plans he sees most of, since he had expressed to me before that he had tried to write Butrans when we first launched, but had had many managed care set-backs, so he stopped trying. He mentioned Medicare, Medicaid, & commercial plans. I asked about Caresource. He said he has a lot of Caresource. I explained the prior authorization requirements & also reminded him of favorable coverage on commercial insurance plans & that BWC is paying for Butrans. I reminded Dr Haddad that he had liked many aspect of Butrans clinically, such as once weekly transdermal dosing & long-acting CIII. He said this is true & added that he will start to try Butrans on appropriate patients again. I asked about recent utilization of OxyContin. He said he probably has only 1-2 patients on it. I reminded him that he used to speak positively about it & had told me he had many patients on it doing well. He said the stigma with OxyContin has been so negative, that physicians frown upon prescribing it. He said even though he has had good clinical experience, when physicians collectively talk about a medication's stigma negatively & stop writing it, it becomes something other area physicians adopt. Dr Haddad said he knows Percocet is the same molecule as OxyContin, but is more comfortable writing Percocet because he does not feel it has the same stigma as OxyContin. I asked him to continue appropriate patients on it & he agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	9/19/2012	I asked Dr Mike what conditions he does feel warrant chronic opioid therapy, reminding him of our previous discussions about Butrans & OxyContin & where they could fit into his practice. He said it completely depends on the patient. He said that basically if someone is old & dying, he might write an opioid for them, but otherwise he would have a hard time doing so. He said he has sent many patients who are on chronic opioids to rehab & those patients end up no longer "needing" to take the opioids because they learn to manage their pain, which he added is usually mostly psychological. He said because of this, it is difficult to justify prescribing opioids to rehab patients, especially for a long period of time. I agreed that opioids & chronic opioid therapy are not for everyone & agreed that he should be cautious in prescribing any of these medications. I asked if he uses OARRS. He said sometimes. Dr Mike said he will keep Butrans & OxyContin in mind in the event he has an appropriate patient.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	9/19/2012	I asked dr how his patients are doing on OxyContin? Dr said they are doing well and agreed to continue using where appropriate. I asked dr if its ok to have Tina place the Butrans initiation and conversion guides in each of his 4 exam rooms to help him remember Butrans? Dr said that its ok if she does that and wanted to know if its covered on Medicaid. I discussed Caresource, BWC and other plans. I asked dr to gain some clinical experience with the product.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	9/19/2012	provided dr with Wong Baker pain scale and asked him how it assesses his patients pain. Dr said he doesn't use pain scales and just uses his intuition. I gave brief outline of opioid experienced trial and asked dr to use Butrans for those patients on IR opioids needing a dose adjustment.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	9/19/2012	Dr Scanlon said he has been prescribing Butrans. I asked him what types of painful conditions his patients on Butrans are suffering from. He said he likes to use Butrans for patients who are on some sort of short-acting opioid for whom he would otherwise increase the dose of short-acting. He said he has found that he can initiate Butrans instead of increasing the number of short-acting pills the patient takes in a day. He added that sometimes patients just get "caught up" in taking pills every few hours, making initiation of a long-acting opioid more difficult. I suggested initiating Butrans sooner in therapy if appropriate to minimize this. He agreed that this was a good idea. Reviewed OxyContin broad formulation coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Norton	OH	44203	9/19/2012	Discussed Butrans and OxyContin over lunch appointment. Provided all key selling messages for Butrans, discussed inclusion/exclusion criteria, case studies, managed care coverage and initiation and titration guide. Dr said he most likely will not use it but knows his partner Katsaros does. I asked why and he said he just doesn't feel comfortable prescribing any scheduled product. He refers out or sends them to his partner. nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	9/19/2012	I met with Denny and Chuck. Reviewed 2012 and 2013 Marketing plan. Went over report 8. Also current promotions with DDM and Marc's. Discussed off-invoice program for Senokot. They felt in the future we should consider doing a scan instead, as it is harder for less sophisticated regional accounts to track the off invoice on their end. Chuck asked me to speak with Melenioe Petropoulos about setting up a Senokot To Go display at the pharmacy counter. DDM now charges $1,500 for an ad, plus scan cost for 4-6 weeks. It cost $750 just to do a TPR alone plus scan for 4-6 weeks. Some DDM stores had the Senokot-To-Go clippings up and others did not. Denny said the instructions and product were just sent out this week. Discussed horizontal packaging seen at Marcs.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	9/19/2012	Primary objective was to provide dr with one patient type to use Butrans in. Used Emma to explain how the Ultram patient who may need a dose adjustment is an ideal candidate for Butrans. Dr said she was sick and didn't feel like discussing but agreed to look for those patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	9/19/2012	I reminded Dr Moufawad about the situation he told me about with the patient who he had wanted to put on Butrans, but who's Caresource plan was requiring a failure of morphine before they were able to get Butrans. Dr Moufawad said this was true, although he could not remember which patient it was. I told him again that this was atypical of the Caresource Butrans coverage/prior authorization requirements. He said what happens is managed care plans always tell the pharmaceutical companies one thing & then tell the offices something else. He said he is no longer going to accept Wellcare Medicaid because of this. I asked about his clinical experience with Butrans & OxyContin recently. He said he has been using both with good results. He said he was low on Butrans savings cards & asked me to give more to Brenda & Christina. He said he would be sure to keep better track of any insurance denials he got for Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Twinsburg	OH	44087	9/19/2012	Spoke with Lisa, who handles some of the prior authorizations for medications for Pharmacia. She said Gay would be the person to speak with regarding any decreases in ordering of specific medications & added that Gay is out of the office until Friday afternoon. She suggested we email her for an appointment. Lisa said Medicare D dictates what medications are allowed (it is not up to each individual facility). She said the doctors will prescribe a medication, then Medicare sends Pharmacia a prior authorization. Lisa said Sally Glass is still with Pharmacia, as is Madonna, but neither of them are usually in-house as they are out at facilities the majority of the time. Gave Lisa my card. Kendra will email Gay to request an appointment for us to come in to speak with her.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Warrensville Heights	OH	44122	9/20/2012	Dr Dmitri told me again about the patients he had written Butrans for who were unable to get it due to insurance. I reminded him that Medicare plans are not covering Butrans & reviewed the formulary grid with him again. Also clarified Caresource prior authorization requirements & BWC. I suggested Dr Dmitri think of appropriate patients who are between the ages of 40-60 with BWC, Caresource, or commercial prescription coverage, who meet the indication instead of his Medicare population, even if that is fewer patients. He said he will do this because he does want to try Butrans for some of his patients. I reminded him that in our previous conversation, we talked about patients who needed something to control their moderate to severe pain over a few months & asked if this is still the population he plans to use it in. He said it is. He said those patients could benefit from a transdermal medication like Butrans & said he likes the molecule. Discussed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths for individualization of dosing. He said he very rarely prescribes OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	9/20/2012	Spoke with Linda, Carol, Debbie, & Kristen (pain management nurses) who said Dr Souzalnitski was planning to leave to go to Summa & Dr Barrett will be taking his place. They said they do not know for sure if he is leaving yet, but it is likely. I asked about prescribing of Butrans within the department. They said they did not know of any. I presented Butrans to them again, reviewing dosing, appropriate patient type, titration, & supplemental analgesia. I asked if the doctors there usually have patients on long-acting opioids with short-acting for breakthrough or if they only allow one opioid medication at a time. They said they do both/either. I asked if they are the ones who typically discuss medications with patients or if the doctors do the counsel. They said usually they do, but occasionally the doctors will. Showed patient information booklets & discussed application, rotation, & disposal. They were very interested in the disposal & said it was a great idea. Discussed the importance of setting appropriate patient expectations up-front & importance of contact between the office & patient after a few days of initiation do discuss possible titration if necessary. They said they could think of many patients for whom Butrans would be a good option & agreed to suggest it when appropriate. Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone, positioning it for appropriate patients who could benefit from q12h dosing of oxycodone.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Shaker Heights	OH	44122	9/20/2012	Quick call- Positioned OxyContin q12h for appropriate patients who are taking oxycodone immediate release around-the-clock if they will be on it for an extended period of time. Dr Agarwal just said that he knows all about OxyContin & then walked into a room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	9/20/2012	I asked dr what his normal algorithm for moving to OxyContin is? Dr said that a lot of times he will move a vicoden patient taking 6-8 pills a day straight to OxyContin because he knows they most likely need additional pain control and the Q12h is probably necessary. Discussed additional patient types for OxyContin, dosing, managed care and copay cards. I handed Dr the case study for "William" to the dr and asked him to review on his own. I asked dr if he has patients like William in his practice? Dr said he is sure he does. I asked what he is doing currently with a patient like William who may need a dose adjustment? Dr said depending on the dose he would adjust the dose of vicoden or consider OxyContin. I asked if he thinks Butrans would be an appropriate option? Dr said that Butrans as an intermediate product would fit for William. I asked dr what downside there is to Butrans? Dr said none except that some patients don't want patches. I asked if he has asked any about Butrans? Dr said he had not. I asked dr to start explaining the Butrans option to those appropriate patients and to use I asked dr to gain clinical experience with Butrans to find out clinically if he can believe in the product. Showed him pain score reductions from both studies and identified appropriate patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	9/20/2012	Quick call- Handed Dr Al-Abousi Butrans initiation guide opened to pg 6, pointing out the appropriate range of patients to consider. Reminded her of once weekly transdermal dosing & CII opioid. She said she would keep it in mind.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/20/2012	Spoke to Holly the pharmacist about dispensing and stocking of Butrans and OxyContin. Holly said they have been dispensing about 2 prescriptions a week for Butrans. I asked who may be prescribing them and she did not know and didn't have time to look in the system. PPLPMDL0020000001	Waterford	OH	45786	9/21/2012	W - Continues to prescribe both OxyContin and Butrans for patients. Likes having another transdermal option for patients. I - OxyContin for appropriate patient conversions from short acting opioids once the indication is met. Review of Butrans opioid experienced clinical trial discussing the inclusion criteria, dosing/prior opioid therapy and reduction in pain scores for patients. Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids and requesting a therapeutic change. Review of dosing, titration and the use of supplemental analgesia if needed. Review of formulary coverage and savings card programs for both I asked dr if he has had any of his Butrans patients back in for follow up appointments? Dr said not yet but he has not heard from them to he expects them to be doing well. I asked dr to continue to identify patients on Ultram or vicoden who are uncontrolled.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	9/21/2012	I asked dr if he truly feels Butrans is the option for him when patients are uncontrolled on IR opioids? Dr said he does think that and is concerned about it not being covered on Medicare. I asked dr to identify patients under Medicare with chronic pain. Dr agreed to have a few under 65 but said he could b e prescribing a good amount if it was cheaper for Medicare patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	9/21/2012	Quick call- Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on Vicodin around-the-clock, reminding Dr Miguel of his previous interest. He said he will prescribe. Pointed out OxyContin savings cards in his sample closet.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	9/21/2012	Penny said she & the other practitioners in the office seem to be doing more acute & chronic pain management lately. I asked why she thinks that is. She said because so often, a patient will go to a specialist, such as an orthopedic surgeon, get a procedure done, then the specialist writes them only 10 pain pills & tells them to follow-up with primary care for more medication if needed. She also said that since so many HCP's are referring to pain management, the clinics are full & they are forced to treat the patients for pain. She said she is trying to get the clinic to adopt urine drug screening as another measure to protect the practice. I gave Penny Partners Against Pain information & discussed resources such as pain contracts. She said she would definitely be interested in looking at our examples. I asked, with her increased pain treating, does Butrans fit into the picture. She said she likes Butrans & has had good success with it. Discussed appropriate patient type & reviewed patient profiles. Penny agreed to using Butrans when appropriate patients like that present. Also discussed OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients beyond the Butrans range. Penny said she is comfortable with the idea of prescribing schedule II medications for the right people. Recommended Senokot-S for opioid-induced constipation.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	9/21/2012	Dr Sevier said he has had a couple of patients come in from pain management on Butrans. I asked what type of feedback he has gotten from them. He said they have all said that it is helping their pain. He said this makes him more confident in Butrans & more comfortable to use it in his own practice. Reviewed patient type & showed profiles. He said he really wants to use Butrans for some of his Medicare population. I told him I understand these can be ideal patients clinically, but reminded him of lack of coverage for those plans. I asked him to think of patients who are similar to those patients, but perhaps slightly younger, maybe 40-60 years old, with insurance. He said he would do his best. Discussed OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients beyond the Butrans range. Dr Sevier said he has some patients still on it & he is comfortable with that. He said some of the doctors there want to do urine drug screenings, but he finds OARRS to be enough of a safety measure. I told him urine drug screening is one additional way to help protect the practice. Gave Senokot-S samples & recommended it for opioid-induced constipation.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	9/21/2012	Quick call- Dr Tabbaa said he didn't have time to talk today & asked if I could just give him literature/information. I gave quick review of inclusion criteria and asked dr to look for patients with these conditions.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	9/21/2012	Roman requested additional OxyContin savings cards, so I provided a package. I asked what the point is when she refers out? Dr said as early as possible. I asked if she finds herself treating patients with low back pain with Ultram or vicoden? Dr said she does a little but likes to refer to Comprehensive Pain Mgt or Dr Shah. Dr said he will put the patient on whatever medicine is covered on the patients insurance. I asked dr if he is serious and how many patients does he have to be that concerned about that with. Dr told me that the PA's are so often and it takes 20-30 mins to get a medicine approved. I told dr that he needs to prescribe Butrans for patients with private prescription insurance to minimize PA's and step edits.

I showed her OxyContin core visual aid pg 5, pointing out that cancer pain is one of the conditions OxyContin can be used for. I asked if she has patients suffering from osteoarthritis or low back pain on OxyContin as well. She said so many patients are coming in that are abusing pain medications it is difficult to know who is telling the truth & who is not. I asked what types of measures she has in place to help protect her practice. She said she uses OARRS frequently. I told her this is a great way to protect her practice. I reminded her of previous Butrans discussions, reminding her that she had seemed interested in trying it for appropriate patients. She said she tried to write it but none of the patients she tried to get on it were able to get it. Discussed managed care. I asked him to look at patients with those conditions that have Medco, Medical Mutual, ESI. Dr said that a majority of patients are well over 65 and the one patient he has on Butrans is now Metastatic with his cancer and he will be titrating him to the 20mcg patch. Reviewed titration schedule and conversions. I asked dr if he has a patient on IR opioids who he knows he has to refer if it would make sense to refer out to pain management on a controlled release product like Butrans? Dr said it makes sense if he finds himself in that situation and that he would do it if the patient agrees and the insurance is right.

I asked dr if he would be happy with those kind of reductions. Dr said he would and reminded me he does not treat chronic pain. I told him that he has told me before but asked him if he has a patient on IR opioids who is continued pain why would you not prescribe a controlled release product. Dr told me because thats the job of pain management.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	9/24/2012	I asked dr if he had a chance to review the opioid experienced trial after our discussion last week. Dr said he looked at it but not closely. Spoke to Wendy and Marsh about the practice taking on a large number of Lefkowitz's patients. Wendy said a large portion of patients have BWC. Discussed BWC coverage with Butrans, I asked staff and dr what the three top private insurance plans are for their patient base. TJ said Medco, Express Scripts, and Caremark. I told the staff and dr that all three plans are covered on Butrans and two of them are the lowest branded copay. I told dr that he needs to focus on patients with one of those three plans when patients are on Ultram or vicoden and need a dose adjustment. I reviewed Emma and William case studies and asked dr if he would prescribe Butrans in that place. Dr said he is more inclined than ever to refer to pain management because there are so many abused and seekers. I asked dr if all his patients in pain are like that. He said no not all. I told dr that Butrans is for patients who he deems are in legitimate chronic pain. I asked dr to initiate Butrans prior to sending to Pain Mgt? Dr said he can do that and it makes sense.

She added that this is the 5th or 6th patient who was appropriate & had the right insurance that she asked Dr Tolentino to try Butrans for. I asked Cathy why she thinks Dr Tolentino won't at least try Butrans for an appropriate patient, especially if they have commercial insurance. She said she does not know. I asked what patients are usually on before he starts them on OxyContin. He said it depends. He said he has patients on 10mg of OxyContin q12h & some on 80mg q12h. He asked if patients can take Butrans with OxyContin. I told him Butrans can be taken with immediate-release opioids, but has not been studied with other long-acting opioids & is therefore not recommended. He asked what doses Butrans would be started at. Showed starting appropriate patients on either 5 or 10mcg depending on their current dose. I asked what therapy he would say most of his patients are on. He said Vicodin & pointed to the 15-40mg range. He said he doesn't know but some sort of Medicare. I reviewed Butrans formulary coverage & pointed out that OxyContin has favorable Medicare coverage, but he just walked away. Spent time with Barb, who confirmed that the patient who Dr Diab wrote Butrans for does have Medicare. Discussed where Butrans is covered. Barb said Dr Diab probably won't try to write Butrans again after this because it seems never to be covered. Spent time with Dawn, who verified that Butrans has been written more frequently. She then got a call from the patient for whom Myra had just written Butrans, saying she was at the pharmacy & the Butrans was going to cost her $194, even with her insurance & the trial card. He asked if, with the trial offer, the patient would often be able to get 2 boxes of Butrans since he writes them for 20mcg two patches at a time, causing the patient to need two boxes for one month. I reminded him that this is not recommended nor has it ever been studied. Also reminded him that 20mcg is the maximum dose of Butrans. He said he knows all that but he prefers to write it that way, even if it is off-label. He requested more Butrans trial cards, so I provided one package. He said the studies switched patients to Suboxone & results suggested that while the patients' pain score did not improve, their overall daily life functioning was improved. I told him we do not have studies of that sort. I reviewed managed care with her and the staff. I reminded her of low dose Oxycontin in her patients taking higher doses of Vicodin
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	9/27/2012	I asked if she prescribed any Butrans recently? Dr said she has not but has a patient in mind she is seeing soon. I asked her about the patient and she said the patient is taking Ultram and has low back trouble. I asked her to prescribe Butrans if the patient fits the indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	9/27/2012	Reviewed Oxycontin in her elderly patients showing safety in FPI. Reviewed low doses in her patients who are taking Vicodin or Percocet atc and asked if there is any downfall to going to low dose Oxycontin and she said no, just cost. I reviewed managed care with Oxycontin. Reminded of Butrans in her patients who are not controlled on NSAID or Tramadol
PPLPMDL0020000001	C. Falls	OH	44223	9/27/2012	Spoke to Gary(pharmacist) and asked about recent dispensing of Butrans. Gary said they have had one recently from Narouze but the pain group does not send them much and they are a little miffed about it. I discussed Butrans with Gary and gave him some of the key selling messages. Gary said they have the 5 and 10mcg in stock.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	9/28/2012	Reviewed favorable coverage for Butrans on Medco & Express Scripts & reviewed that BWC is paying for Butrans currently. Dr Jack said "everyone" is writing Butrans now & he has had several patients come in on it. He said it must be the #1 patch for pain prescribed. I told him I have no information on that. He said "no one" is prescribing OxyContin anymore & then went into a room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44305	9/28/2012	I asked dr about the age of his patients he has on OxyContin. Dr said the majority of his patients are over 65 and Medicare age. I read the geriatric section from the FPI about the % of patients over 65 and 75 in the trials. Followed that up with AARP and CCRx managed care coverage. I asked dr what criteria he uses to determine a candidate for OxyContin. Dr said when a patient is in severe pain and they are on high doses of Vicodin he will move to OxyContin. Dr said he does see some additional pain relief with the APAP in vicoden so he adjusts the dose of OxyContin accordingly. Dr said he uses all doses but tries to find the lowest dose that provides pain relief and also reduce side effects. Provided all Butrans selling points also including application sites, approximate conversions, appropriate patient types with William, and managed care. I asked dr what his honest opinion is of Butrans. Dr said he doesnt know because he has not used it. I asked dr to try it for his next vicoden patient in moderate to severe pain. Dr said ok but showed no true interest.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/28/2012	Quick call- Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients not well-controlled on up to 40mg oxycodone per day & OxyContin q12h for those beyond that dose per day. Dr Rakhit said he had not time & walked away. Spoke with Iryna & reviewed Butrans as a CIII opioid, meaning it can be called in & have refills for it. Reminded her that because Butrans is an opioid, it carries abuse/addiction potential.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Garfield Hts	OH	44125	9/28/2012	Spoke with Heather & reviewed Butrans dosing & ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia. Showed FPI 2.4 for support. She said they stock it & have a few patients on it regularly. I asked if she remembers what any of them were on prior to Butrans. She said she doesn't know & added that she thinks they still take something short-acting with it. Gave her information sheet on Butrans savings program & discussed the program as well as the OxyContin program.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	9/28/2012	Spoke with technician, Jessica, & gave her information on Butrans savings program. She checked her computer & said the have not yet dispensed Butrans at this store. Discussed dosing & patient type. She asked for a package of cards to keep on hand in case someone gets a prescription for it. Gave her one package & explained trial card & savings card, letting her know customers would need the trial card itself, but not the monthly card as their savings would be built in through Relay Health's e-voucher. Also reviewed OxyContin savings cards. She said she had enough of those. Jessica agreed to give the information & my card to Margarita when she becomes not sure because he has yet to use it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	9/28/2012	Told dr to use Butrans for a 7 day transdermal system for patients on short acting opioids who need a dose adjustment. Dr said ok but he has yet to review the info I left him. I asked if Butrans makes sense and he said hes not sure because he has yet to use it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	9/28/2012	I asked dr Hill if he initiated Butrans yet. Dr said not yet but thinks it is a good medicine. I asked why and he said he likes that its a CIII and transdermal. I asked him to use it and showed him the Emma profile.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	9/28/2012	I gave quick Butrans to dr through window. Told dr to keep patients with low back conditions on IR opioids who need a dose adjustment to prescribe Butrans. Dr said he continues to keep it in mind.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	9/28/2012	Showed dr the 5mcg Butrans placebo patch and asked him to continue to look for patients on short acting opioids with commercial insurance who need a dose adjustment. Dr said he is trying but the patients who need it are over 65 or have Medicaid. I told him I understand and told him about caresource and BWC.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	9/28/2012	I gave one point on Butrans about patient types. I asked if he could identify a few patients that are currently working who have low back pain and are on IR opioids. Dr said he knows he does. I asked dr to look if any of them need a dose adjustment and to initiate Butrans instead if they meet the indication. Dr said he will try. Spoke managed care with staff
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	9/28/2012	Gave dr message at window and asked him if he could identify a couple of patients next week for Butrans? Dr said maybe and said its too much of a managed care headache. I asked why with Butrans? He said not specifically with Butrans but he wants it to be easy. gave thorough review of Butrans managed care and asked him to just use it more for commercial plans with copay and trial cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44307	9/28/2012	Spoke to Jeff the pharmacist about Butrans and OxyContin. Jeff said the almost always have all the doses of OxyContin and dispense it often with the 10, 20 40 and 80 being used the most. I asked about ages of patients and he said anywhere from 20's to 80's get OxyContin. Jeff said they see a good amount from Petrus. Provided Butrans selling points and Jeff said they don't have any in stock.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	9/28/2012	spoke to technician and pharmacist about Butrans. I reviewed all selling points and asked if they have dispensed. The pharmacist said not recently. Gave managed care info.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	9/28/2012	I asked Dr Roheny if he would rather start our discussion with Butrans or OxyContin. He then said he has not yet prescribed Butrans but he does have some patients on OxyContin. He said he was just contacted by Purdue to take some sort of online survey. He said it was asking about what messages are most/least important to him as a physician. I told him I did not know of this survey. I asked what is most important to him in terms of messaging. He did not respond. He said he plans to read an article on pain management this weekend that he saw on Medscape. He said it mentions something about having a pain contract if you prescribe opioids. He said he thought that sounded like a good idea & he thinks he will implement one. I told him about Partners Against Pain resources for HCP's that he can find online. Gave him a webkey. He was very appreciative of this information. He asked for pain scales which I provided. Also gave him my card & let him know if he has questions along the way he can contact me any time.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	9/28/2012	Quick call as Dr Rob paused very briefly in the hallway. Reviewed Butrans dosing & once weekly transdermal system. He just waved & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	9/28/2012	Dr said he tried Butrans again and it wasn't covered on insurance. I asked him which insurance and what the patient was on previously? Dr said the patient was opioid naive and was on Medicaid but couldn't remember which plan. Dr said insurance said the patient must fail on a short acting opioid first. Dr said he started Ultram. I thanked dr for trying Butrans and that Caresource is the Medicaid plan covered and explained PA criteria. I asked dr to look for patients on commercial insurance on short acting opioids and to use copay cards. Nadia said they have a good amount of patients that are dual eligible.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/1/2012	Dr Gigliotti said he wrote a prescription last week for me. I asked if he meant Butrans or OxyContin. He said Butrans. He tried to remember who it was, but said he couldn't think of the specific patient. I asked if he could remember what it was about the situation that caused him to think of Butrans. He said he couldn't but he would try to remember by the next time he saw me. He said the patient had been on something short-acting, but added that they weren't on "too high" of a dose, because he knows if they are on a higher dose, Butrans may not work for them. I added that OxyContin could be considered for those patients if appropriate. Reviewed patient information booklets & discussed using them when he is educating patients about Butrans. He said they would be helpful.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	10/1/2012	Dr Gene said the patient he had told me about with the unusual cyst who he had on Butrans 20mcg doing well has come off it. I asked why. He went on to explain that it had nothing to do with Butrans, but rather the patient's condition had been eliminated after the cyst was surgically removed. He said he intends to put more patients on Butrans & has been keeping his eye out. He said the problem is, once a patient is already on short-acting opioids, it is very difficult, if not impossible, to get them well-controlled on something long-acting. I asked him, then, if he would use Butrans for appropriate patients who he is ready to start on their first opioid. He said he would usually go to tramadol at that stage, but said it actually does make more sense to go to Butrans instead of or before that. He said he would prefer a patient be on Butrans. I let him know he could start these appropriate patients on 5mcg Butrans once weekly & could titrate to a maximum 20mcg with titration ability after 3 days. I showed him clinical background to support titration to 20mcg. Dr Gene said he would do that & would also try it for patients who he is sending to pain management instead of increasing their short-acting. Discussed OxyContin Medicare coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	10/1/2012	Dr Dale said he was too far behind to come back for lunch. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on up to 80mg equivalent oral morphine per day & OxyContin q12h for those beyond that range. He just said he will keep both in mind & left the room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Garfield Hts	OH	44125	10/1/2012	Quick call- Positioned Butrans 5mcg for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on NSAID's or COX-2's for chronic moderate to severe pain & OxyContin for those who could benefit from a q12h dose of oxycodone. Spoke with Deena about Butrans patient type/range & reviewed managed care coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/1/2012	I asked dr that since she had Butrans explained in depth to her recently if she feels like Butrans is a product that she would feel comfortable prescribing? Dr said that the patients she sees in urgent care would not be appropriate for Butrans and she said that even though Butrans is a CIII, she feels more comfortable referring out. I told her I appreciate her honesty and asked her to sent referrals with Butrans to pain management.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/1/2012	Caught Dr Ortega on his way out of the office. He said he did not have anything new to tell me regarding Butrans or OxyContin. He said he continues to prescribe both "every day". Spoke with Cindy & reviewed Butrans patient type/range & OxyContin as a possible option for those beyond the Butrans range.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	10/1/2012	Spoke to Jessica and Sue about Butrans and OxyContin dispensing. Sue told me that they have noticed an increase in patients filling Butrans and OxyContin since Lefkowitz retired. They have seen more activity from Fouad and Shah and Jessica told me that many of Lefkowitz's patients also went to Bressi's office. They also continue to fill OxyContin and average age is fairly broad Sue told me. Anywhere from mid 20's to 80's all doses.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/1/2012	Spoke to Dr and Marsha Fox about Butrans on Medco, Medical Mutual and ESI. Dr and Marsha said they have all those plans and CareSource. I explained to Marsha about the PA for CareSource and she said that it is easy. Marsha said that they have many additional patients from Lefkowitz's office who have BWC and CareSource. I asked dr to place patients on Butrans when they meet the indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/1/2012	Spoke to dr and Jen about the most recent prescriptions of Butrans. I asked dr if he remembered the patient type and medicine the patient was on when Butrans was initiated. Dr said he can remember that one was on vicodin 30mg/day and he initiated on the 10mcg. Dr said patient has low back spinal conditions. I reminded dr that low back pain patients were included in the Butrans trials. I spoke to Jen about the Butrans patient information kits and provided a few to her. Jen said they will come in handy.CHUDAKOB's query on 10/12/2012When do you think the doctor is thinking about Butrans for his patients. In other words, what has to occur in the exam room for the Dr. to prescribe Butrans for a patient? Once you determine this, you can build upon it.REICHCL's response on 10/15/2012He is thinking of Butrans when he sees a patient in chronic pain and the patient needs a dose adjustment. He told me this in a lunch.CHUDAKOB added notes on 10/23/2012Does that mean a dose adjustment after Vicodin 5mg q6h, or after 7.5mg q6h. There are many scenarios of dose adjustment that can occur. Try to get a specific as possible to help with his thought process. If he is thinking after any dose adjustment, he would be prescribing every day. He is doing something else first before Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/1/2012	Caught Dr Taylor at the window. I asked her when the last time was that she had to adjust a patient's chronic opioid medication. She said it has been awhile but added that she will consider Butrans when it does occur. She said she has all the information she needs, she just needs a patient. Reviewed dosing & titration. Also reviewed broad OxyContin coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44305	10/1/2012	Showed dr the Emma case study and asked if he had identified any additional patients for Butrans. Dr said that he had not but he is trying to remember it when he is in with a patient on short acting opioids. I gave dr a couple of Butrans initiation and titration guides to place in his exam rooms to keep it front of mind. Dr said that he would remember Butrans.CHUDAKOB's query on 10/12/2012I think you would agree that a next call objective of discussing more managed care plans may be futile if he is prescribing such a minimal amount of Butrans. Is he sold on the product itself?REICHCL's response on 10/15/2012He is sold on the product.CHUDAKOB added notes on 10/18/2012It is good to see you are working on the profiles. My thought is, if he is sold on the product, then he would be prescribing more. The proof of being sold on a product is his willingness to "buy", ie. prescribe. While managed care might play in, I am guessing he has some of the right managed care coverage. Keep working on selling him. The clinical data will provide the proof.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	10/1/2012	Spoke with Dawn & reviewed Butrans patient information booklets, showing her application/rotation instructions. I let her know they can be given to patients, potentially minimizing the number of call-backs to them asking how to use it. She said she would give the information to Jim when he was not as busy. Discussed OxyContin savings program & usage requirements. She said they have enough cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44303	10/1/2012	Primary objective was to speak about product managed care coverage. Discussed Med D and commercial plan coverages for OxyContin. Discussed Butrans commercial plans, BWC and CareSource. Rod said that he doesn't have too much trouble getting OxyContin coverage and still has not dispensed Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Garfield Heights	OH	44125	10/1/2012	Spoke with technician (Sherry?) who said the pharmacist wasn't available. Gave her information on Butrans savings program & discussed eligibility requirements for savings card usage. Also showed her OxyContin savings cards & discussed usage/eligibility. I asked if they have many cash-pay customers there with no insurance. She said they have some. Explained that OxyContin savings cards can be used once every 14 days for cash patients to maximize their savings. She said she would pass the information along to Heather & Dave.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/4/2012	Discussed Butrans initiation and titration with Jackie and appropriate patient types. Jackie said she forgot where it is used and thanked me for the information.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/4/2012	I asked dr what doses of OxyContin the majority of his patients are on? Dr said he uses all of them but the 40, and 60mg doses are most often used. I told dr to continue to use the OxyContin copy cards. I also told dr to use OxyContin for his AARP and CCox plans for Med D.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	10/4/2012	I told Dr Moufawwad that I wanted to discuss titration of Butrans with him so that I could better understand how/when he is doing it & perhaps help in learning how I might explain it to my primary care physicians better. He said he starts patients & then follows up with them in 3-4 weeks to decide if he needs to titrate them. He said he starts patients taking 3-4 Vicodin per day on the 5mcg & allows supplemental analgesia while he starts patients taking more than that on the 10mcg, also allowing supplemental analgesia. He said at the 3-4 week follow-up, he decides whether or not to titrate Butrans. I asked how this decision is made. He said if the patient is not getting adequate pain relief, he titrates them upward.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/4/2012	Asked for dr at window with Janet and he walked by. I handed dr the opioid experienced trial and asked dr if he is finding himself titrating Butrans in order to achieve the appropriate level of pain control? Dr said he has needed to titrate a few patients. I told him about how almost 50% of patients achieved at least 30% reduction in pain on 20mcg compared to the 5mcg dose. Dr said he will review.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/4/2012	Myra said she has wanted to use more Butrans but it has just been "such a hassle". I asked what she means by that. She said it is insurance & also patients have been going online & saying they don't want to try Butrans after reading about it. I asked what reasons they give for not wanting to try it. She said they are afraid of the side effects & think it won't work. Re-enforced where Butrans is covered (BWC, commercial insurance) & walked her & Ruth through how to use the trial & savings cards. Ruth said a patient with Medco reported back that they had a $50 co-pay for Butrans. Explained that if the patient gave the pharmacy the savings card, they would have gotten the first month at no cost & each month after that at $15. Ruth said she had not understood the card, so it was helpful to have it explained. Myra said she would not give up on Butrans because she thinks so many patients can benefit. She said there are many patients who wake up at night to take their Norco & Butrans could help them since it delivers the medication for 7 days. Myra said she allows supplemental analgesia & then tries to decrease the short-acting while possibly increasing the Butrans. I told her she is doing the right thing clinically & asked her if she would please continue to identify appropriate Butrans patients & prescribe. She said she gave quick overview of the product. Lead by telling dr that I wanted to prove efficacy, tolerability and titration with Butrans. Discussed Inclusion and Exclusion criteria and asked dr if she treats patients with those conditions. Dr and her ma said all the time. I went into the explanation of case study William and asked her if Butrans was not out yet and a patient like William told her that he needed more pain control what would she do. She said a patient like that on about 30mg a day of vicodin she may not titrate it but move to percoet. I asked her if it makes good clinical sense to use Butrans in that position to provide a controlled release analgesia. Dr said it does and that is where she would use it. I used the new supplemental analgesics and titration guide to discuss proper initiation and titration along with use of supplemental analgesia. I asked dr if she now will use Butrans for a patient like William? Dr said she feels much more comfortable with it now and agreed to remember it and use it. gave overview of managed care, copay and trial card.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	10/4/2012	I provided a review of the opioid experienced inclusion and exclusion criteria and asked dr if she sees patients with these conditions? Dr said she does quite a bit. I asked if she has patients on vicodin around the clock? Dr said she knows she does. I asked if ALL of them were without pain? Dr said no. I showed and discussed William case study and asked dr the next time she sees a patient like William to initiate Butrans instead of titrating the short acting. Dr agreed and asked about managed care. I told dr that her number one plan is Medco. I gave her all the Medco and copay card information.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/4/2012	Gave dr an overview of Butrans and reviewed the inclusion criteria from opioid experienced trial and asked him if he sees patients with those conditions? Dr said he does. I showed William and asked what he currently is doing when a patient like William needs a dose adjustment. Dr said depending on the dose he will titrate or refer out. I spoke to dr about how Butrans is the appropriate option because if the short acting is not working, a controlled release product is appropriate. Dr said again he has spoke to a few patients and agreed to again.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/4/2012	Spoke to Patrick about Butrans titration with new titration piece and use of supplemental analgesia. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	10/4/2012	I gave quick review of Butrans and showed him the inclusion criteria for opioid experienced. I told him that when he is examining patients with those conditions and a profile like William to think Butrans when a dose adjustment is necessary. I asked dr what his thoughts are on Butrans? Dr said he thinks its a good medicine but does not like dealing with chronic pain. I told dr that patients with the conditions we spoke about should be controlled with a controlled release medication. The CIII, 7 day system is suited for such patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/5/2012	Started call by discussing conditions that were studied with Butrans in the opioid experienced trial. Reviewed inclusion/exclusion criteria, Emma and William case studies, reviewed both studies and focused on the pain score reductions. Gave quick review on appropriate patient types and spoke about patients like Emma and William. Showed titrations schedule and asked dr if he has titrated patients. Dr said the last two patients he put on Butrans he titrated to the 20mcg dose and are doing well.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	10/5/2012	I gave dr the opioid experienced trial and gave quick review of inclusion criteria. I told him about case study William on hydrocodone who may need a dose adjustment. I asked him to use Butrans instead of increasing the short acting and if he would do that? Dr said that is where he has used it before and will continue.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	10/5/2012	Told dr that I wanted to give him information about conditions that patients suffered from in our Opioid clinical trial. I reviewed the inclusion/exclusion criteria and told him that 62% of patients were on Hydrocodone combinations. Went into the William case study and asked him if he sees patients like this? Dr said he does. I asked him instead of titrating the IR opioid when a dose adjustment is necessary, use Butrans. Dr agreed that he will look more often.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/5/2012	Started call by discussing conditions that were studied with Butrans in the opioid experienced trial. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	10/5/2012	Dr said he does not prescribe OxyContin as a new start anymore. He said it is too much trouble than its worth. I explained Butrans and reviewed the inclusion criteria and discussed Emma and William. I asked if he would prescribe Butrans for those types of patients? I reminded him it is a CIII. Dr said maybe and will look over the info I left.

PPLPMDL0020000001	akron	OH	44333	10/8/2012	I reviewed the BUR 3015 inclusion criteria and asked dr if he can think of any patients with any of those conditions that would meet the indication for Butrans? Dr said he has slim pickings but he can think of a few. I discussed the William case study along with the 62% of patients from study taking hydrocodone. I asked dr if he will continue looking for appropriate patients and he said he would.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	10/8/2012	Focused Dr Myton-Craig on appropriate patients who are employed, with insurance like Medical Mutual or Medco, taking tramadol around-the-clock, not well-controlled, suffering from conditions such as osteoarthritis or spinal stenosis (showed inclusion criteria). I asked why not consider once weekly Butrans for those patients. Reminded her that they can take supplemental analgesia if necessary. She said she has a patient who works for the school system, with good insurance, who is on OxyContin now, but is open to medication adjustments. She said she thinks he would be a good candidate for Butrans. I asked what dose he is on. She said 20mg. I showed her titration piece & pointed out that this patient would likely start at the Butrans 10mcg dose, with supplemental analgesia (immediate-release opioid or non-opioid medication) if necessary. Also showed that she can titrate after 3 days to 20mcg. She said she would do this. I asked her to be sure to give him a trial card.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	10/8/2012	Spoke to Joanne(tech) and Gary about Butrans. Joanne did not know of Butrans. I provided overview of product, indication, dosing, titration, appropriate patients, and application sites. Gary said they do not stock Butrans currently and have not dispensed any recently.
	Hudson	OH	44236	10/8/2012	Dr Russ said he does have a couple of patients on Butrans. He said one he put on it then sent to pain management & the other is doing well on it. I told him it sounds like he is choosing good patients & also that his positioning of Butrans is appropriate. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range including OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients beyond that range & discussed importance of selecting the appropriate starting dose for each patient based on their current therapy. Discussed titration after 3 days to a maximum of 20mcg/hr. Dr Russ said he is referring more to pain management, but often patients are sent back to him to maintain on medications. I asked him to continue to use Butrans in the patient type he has been trying it in. He said it is "in his brain" & it is just a matter of having the right patients. Reminded him to utilize trial & savings cards for Dr Seiple said he has tried Butrans for a couple of patients & he thinks it is a good drug. He said the first patient he tried it on had been on oxycodone several times per day. I told him this patient was likely out of the recommended range of Butrans patients & suggested OxyContin for that type of patient. He said that patient was already on it plus IR oxycodone. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients not well-controlled on tramadol or Vicodin 3 times per day, especially if they are asking for more medication or some sort of adjustment. Discussed titration after 3 days to a maximum 20mcg. Also discussed supplemental analgesia & managed care/trial cards. Dr Seiple said he refers to pain management when possible but still ends up maintaining patients because sometimes pain management won't accept them. He said he hates this & wishes he did not have to do this. He said some of them are taking Percocet 3 times a day & want more. Suggested that some of them may be candidates for Butrans 10mcg. He said he has a female patient coming in today who he may try Butrans for.
	Hudson	OH	44236	10/8/2012	Dr Tosino said he has a couple of patients who he has put on Butrans. I asked if they are still on it. He said he thinks so. Discussed appropriate range of patients, including OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients beyond the Butrans range. Also discussed the importance of selecting the appropriate starting dose for Butrans & discussed how most patients on a short-acting opioid chronically would be candidates for Butrans 10mcg. Discussed titration ability at 3 days to a maximum 20mcg. He said he is not afraid to titrate Butrans & would not take a patient off it if they were not completely well-controlled on it at first. He said he would prescribe it, then have phone follow-up with the patient after one week. He said at that point he would either titrate them or keep them at the same dose for the remainder of that month & would reassess at their month follow-up. Told him it sounds like he is doing the right thing. Discussed trial/savings cards, reminding him to give them to commercially insured patients.
	Akron	OH	44333	10/8/2012	Used Carol on new patient assessment piece to help to identify additional patient types. I discussed the case studies patients information and asked dr if he would place this patient on OxyContin 30mg. Dr said he would and does it for the most part for patients in that situation. Reviewed Managed care with Jen and discussed plans for part D.CHUDAKOB's query on 10/21/2012Did you discuss Butrans? I don't see it in your call notes.REICHCL's response on 10/22/2012I did but only how his patients are doing on Butrans as he was beginning to walk away and he didn't give me a response. That is why I did not put it in the notes.CHUDAKOB added notes on 10/23/2012Ok. Thanks.
	Hudson	OH	44236	10/8/2012	Spoke with Bob, pharmacist, who said he currently has the 5mcg Butrans in stock. I asked if the customers who he knew on it were still taking it. He said he thinks so. He said he noticed one customer who was on 20mcg was on it for about a year is no longer on it but did not know why she discontinued. Discussed titration of Butrans after 3 days if necessary to a maximum 20mcg. Also discussed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths. Let him know intermediate doses offer dosing/titration flexibility. He said he stocks all but the 80mg.
	Akron	OH	44305	10/8/2012	Went to the William case study today and used the BUP 3015 inclusion criteria and told dr that 62% of patients were on hydrocodone. Reviewed William case study and asked dr if he sees conditions like the ones in the study and if he has patients on vicoden that meet the Butrans indication. Dr said he does and said he needs to continue to look for Butrans candidates. I showed him the new titration/supplemental analgesia card and asked him to titrate if needed to avoid dose failure.
	Solon	OH	44139	10/8/2012	Pointed out to Dr Zaid that OxyContin has favorable managed care coverage, including on Medicare D formularies. Also let him know that patients on CCRx & AARP can get OxyContin for the lowest branded co-pay. He asked if he would have to prior authorize it. I told him not on those plans, but on some Medicare D plans he would have to do that. I asked Dr Zaidi if his main concern with Butrans is still that it will put patients into withdrawal. He said yes. He said pain management is not simple. He said it might be good for an opioid naive patient but not for someone who he also has on oxycodone. I pointed out that patients in Butrans clinical trials were allowed to take oxycodone as supplemental analgesia. I asked if this helped convince him that that was an option. He said part of the problem is convincing the patient. He said they sit around with their friends & perhaps hear that Butrans doesn't work & that they should get Percocet or something. I asked if he has offered it to a patient who said that. He said he has offered it to some patients who have not wanted to try it & who have requested Percocet first. Dr Zaidi said he is sure he will find a place for Butrans at some point.
	Akron	OH	44333	10/8/2012	I follow up again on discussion about BUP3015. I asked dr if he reviewed it and he said he did. I asked him what his thoughts are and if he had any questions? Dr said it was straight forward and he expects for the 20mcg patch to produce a higher percentage of patients with pain control. I reviewed the inclusion criteria and told him that 62% of patients in the study were on hydrocodone combinations. I asked him to prescribe Butrans for patients like that that need a dose adjustment. Dr confirmed with me that Butrans is a mixed agonist/antagonist like suboxone. I pulled out the new FPI and showed him the clinical pharmacology and reviewed the Mechanism of Action. Dr said that when he looks up Buprenorphine in his med list it shows it as a mixed product. I told him that must be the oral buprenorphine. Butrans transdermal system in the 5, 10 and 20mcg/h is not a mixed agonist/antagonist.CHUDAKOB's query on 10/21/2012Cliff. Buprenorphine is buprenorphine. When he tells you that he looked up Butrans and it tells him something different, your only recourse is to show him our FDA approved FPI. Telling him that it must be the oral formulation of buprenorphine is discussing another product that we do not have any information on and may be providing him misinformation. It is very important not to do this. If you have any questions on this, please let me know.REICHCL's response on 10/22/2012I understand. Thanks for the clarification.CHUDAKOB added notes on 10/23/2012Thanks for helping us remain compliant.
	Independence	OH	44131	10/9/2012	Focused Dr Sundaram on appropriate patients who he trusts, that are working, with insurance through work, who are taking tramadol, hydrocodone, or oxycodone 3 times per day for a chronic condition such as osteoarthritis or spinal stenosis. Positioned Butrans 10mcg for those patients where appropriate, showing him titration piece. I pointed out that based on the patient population he has told me he has, he would start most patients at 10mcg. Also let him know that in 3 days, he can titrate Butrans to 20mcg if necessary, also keeping in mind that supplemental analgesia can be permitted. I asked him to identify a patient like this & prescribe Butrans & also give them a trial/savings card so they had little or no money to pay out-of-pocket. He said he would do his best. Also asked him to continue prescribing OxyContin in appropriate patients, reminding him of 7 tablet strengths for flexibility in dosing/titration. He agreed.
	Middleburg Heights	OH	44130	10/9/2012	Dr Ignat asked if Medicaid covers Butrans. I asked if he meant straight Medicaid or a managed plan like Caresource. He said he thinks just regular Medicaid "or Medicare". Reviewed Butrans coverage & asked Dr Ignat to focus on working patients with commercial insurance for his best chances of success getting Butrans through. He said he just wrote a prescription for Butrans that got denied by "one of those" plans. I asked what type of patient he had chosen clinically. He said it was a patient taking Percocet around-the-clock. Showed him titration piece & discussed dosing. He said he did start her on the 10mcg. Discussed ability to titrate after 3 days to a maximum 20mcg. I asked him to continue to identify patients like this, but with commercial insurance. He said he would. Asked him to give those patients Butrans trial/savings card with the prescription. Positioned OxyContin for appropriate patients beyond Butrans range, especially if they are already taking oxycodone.
	Independence	OH	44131	10/9/2012	Reminded Dr Trickett of previous conversations about Butrans when she has told me that she tries Butrans for patients who have been on short-acting for a month because at that time, she considers their condition to be chronic. She said that is true. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are working, having either BWC or commercial insurance, who are not well-controlled on 3 doses of short-acting opioid per day. Showed her titration piece & discussed how most of her patients would probably start at 10mcg Butrans due to their dose of current medication. I asked if she was comfortable with titrating to the 20mcg after 3 days if necessary. She said she would. She asked that she allows supplemental analgesia but will titrate if their current dose isn't working. Dr Trickett said she does not know why she hasn't thought of Butrans lately but she will do her best to find a patient. Also asked her to give commercially insured patients the trial/savings booklet so they can try it for littler or no out-of-pocket cost. Reviewed broad formulary coverage for OxyContin.
	Parma	OH	44134	10/9/2012	I showed Dr Hernandez the initiation information for Butrans in the FPI. I asked if this is how he initiates Butrans for some of his patients. He said it depends. He said he often puts patients who were on Opana or OxyContin directly on the 20mcg Butrans. He added that he knows this is not how we say to do it. I agreed. He said he also does not taper their current opioid. I reminded him that we recommend this & asked if his patients have had problems with withdrawal. He said no. He said patients love Butrans & so does he because they get such good relief. I gave him DVD set for meditation/etc. He was appreciative & said it is always good to incorporate treatments other than medications in when treating pain. I asked him to continue prescribing Butrans & OxyContin in appropriate patients & he agreed.
	Parma	OH	44134	10/9/2012	Spoke with Dave & reviewed Butrans dosing, focusing on the importance of the correct starting dose based on the patient's current opioid medication levels. Sowed titration piece & reviewed use of supplemental analgesia if necessary. Let him know IR opioids or non-opioid medications can be used for this purpose. Discussed ability to titrate after 3 days & maximum dose of 20mcg. Discussed OxyContin's 7 tablet strengths, offering flexibility of dosing/titration.
	Northfield	OH	44067	10/9/2012	Spoke with Sun Li & discussed appropriate starting dose of Butrans based on patient current dose of opioid medication. Showed her range of patients & discussed titration after 3 days to a maximum 20mcg dose. Also reviewed use of supplemental analgesia if necessary. Also reviewed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths for flexibility in dosing & titration.
	Cleveland	OH	44130	10/9/2012	Dr Fedorko asked me what I was going to teach him today. I told him I was interested on getting his thoughts on different disease states that cause pain chronically. I asked what conditions warrant treatment with opioids long-term. He said what matters most is if the patient can be trusted. I attempted to show him inclusion criteria, but he said that was all he had time for, added that he does have one patient on Butrans, then walked into I used the FPI to explain the studies with design, outcomes, and results. I asked dr if she has initiated Butrans? Dr said no. I asked her if its possible that she will use it in her practice. Dr said yes but limited. She said that she does not see too many patients in chronic pain. I asked her to identify patients in the inclusion criteria of the studies. Dr said she will continue.
	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/11/2012	spoke to dr at window about Butrans. Told dr Butrans is a CIII, 7 day controlled release patch. I showed dr new piece about dosing, titration and use of supplemental analgesia. I asked dr what he is currently doing for patients on 15-40mg of vicoden who present in pain? Dr said it depends on the patient but he will either titrate or refer out. I asked if it makes sense to use Butrans in that position? Dr said it does. I showed him initiation doses based on current opioid therapy. Dr said he will look into it.
	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/11/2012	I asked dr if he had initiated Butrans for a patient yet? Dr said no. I asked if it is realistic for him to use it. Dr said maybe sometime. I asked when? Dr said he has not sure. I discussed the inclusion criteria with dr and told him about 62% of patients on hydrocodone combinations. I asked if he has patients on it. Dr said yes. I showed him William and asked him to look for patients like William and prescribe Butrans for them.
	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/11/2012	Reviewed new titration/supplemental analgesia card along with inclusion criteria and use of William case study. I asked dr if she sees herself using for a patient like William? Dr said she thinks Butrans makes a lot of sense but she continues to forget. Dr did say that today the information has sunk in better and said she WILL prescribe for a vicoden patient like William. I asked dr if she would place a Butrans conversion slide scale in each exam room and she agreed.
	cuyahoga falls	OH	44223	10/11/2012	Discussed Butrans in depth with indication, dosing, titration, conversions from IR opioids, patient type discussion, use of supplemental analgesia, application sites, trial cards and copay cards. Dr said that he sees the need for Butrans in that vicoden patient who is still in pain and has a chronic condition. Dr said he will look into using where appropriate.
	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/11/2012	Spoke with Jenna and reviewed new titration and supplemental analgesia piece. Discussed proper initiation dose based on current therapy dose, proper titration at 72 hours. Reviewed trial offer card and copay card. Jenna said they have not seen too many prescriptions and asked if Western Reserve Pain Mgt were using it. I told her that there are many pain specialist using it in the area.
	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	10/11/2012	Reviewed Butrans dosing, titration, steady state and use of supplemental analgesia. Told pharmacist and technician about managed care access, trial cards and copay cards.

	Brooklyn	OH	44144	10/12/2012	Reviewed 7 tablet strengths of OxyContin, pointing out the 15, 30, & 60mg doses. He said he does always tend to forget about them. He asked me about Butrans dosing. I showed him the 3 strengths & showed him how he could determine the recommended starting dose for Butrans for a patient based on their current opioid medication dosing. He said "almost no one" would fall into the 5mcg recommended starting column. I agreed that most patients would likely start on the 10mcg. Showed titration piece & discussed use of supplemental analgesia. I told him supplemental analgesia could be IR opioids or non-opioid medications & pointed out that in clinical trials, patients were given acetaminophen or ibuprofen. He said this was an interesting detail. Discussed Butrans as a CII opioid with abuse/addiction potential. He said he can't believe he did not realize that Butrans was CII until now. He said he is more likely to prescribe it knowing that because he thought it was CII. He said he recently went to a conference from a DEA speaker who said all physicians should be doing urine drug screening & using pain contracts as well as running OARRS. He said he currently uses OARRS, but does not do drug screens or contracts. I asked if he was interested in contracts & other resources for physicians who treat pain. He said yes, so I gave him information for PurdueHCP.com.CHUDAKOB's query on 10/21/2012 WOW! Looks like you are progressing nicely with him. Persistence pays off. Keep up the good work. Every time time you are in there is one step closer to him prescribing Butrans for an appropriate patient.APSEGAS's response on 10/22/2012Thank you.CHUDAKOB added notes on 10/23/2012Nice work!
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	10/12/2012	Spoke with Cindy & reviewed Butrans appropriate patient type/range, showing her table in initiation guide. Discussed that most patients will start at 10mcg Butrans, especially if they are already taking an opioid medication. Also let her know titration ability is after 3 days, with Butrans reaching steady state in 72 hours. Discussed Butrans 20mcg as maximum dose due to increased risk of QTc interval prolongation. Discussed OxyContin's 7 tablet strengths, pointing out intermediate doses.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Brooklyn	OH	44144	10/12/2012	I asked Dr Miguel what he thought the reason(s) were for not having written Butrans yet. He said he doesn't know. He said pain management uses a lot of it. I told him a variety of specialties, including primary care, have found a place for Butrans since so many types of physicians treat patients with painful conditions. I showed him the appropriate patient range & titration piece. I reminded him that he had told me that he usually puts patients on 2 Vicodin per day. He said yes & that that is the maximum he does. I showed him that this patient could start at 5mcg Butrans & also added that they could be titrated after 3 days to a maximum 20mcg. Discussed ability for patients to use supplemental analgesia in form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. I asked Dr Miguel to identify a couple patients from his practice to start on Butrans. He agreed. Showed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths & broad formulary access. He said he doesn't really use it.CHUDAKOB's query on 10/21/2012Ashleigh, can you please clarify what you meant by the statement below?" also added that they could be titrated after 3 days to a maximum 20mcg."APSEGAS's response on 10/22/2012I was showing him the titration piece & pointed out how after 3 days, Butrans can be titrated to 10mcg, & then to 20mcg after another 3 days if necessary.CHUDAKOB added notes on 10/23/2012Ok. PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	10/12/2012	Dr Kansal said he was too far behind today for a talk. Positioned OxyContin for appropriate patients who could benefit from q12h dosing of oxycodone & asked him to give out Butrans patient experience kits to get some clinical experience & feedback. He said he was "trying" & then walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/12/2012	Dr Roheny said he hasn't prescribed Butrans yet. I asked him why not. He said he doesn't know. I told him there is obviously something missing because if he thought his patients could benefit from Butrans he would be at least trying it in a few patients. He asked me to review what plans he can write it on again. Reviewed commercial insurance coverage & discussed Caresource prior authorization requirements. I asked him, the next time a patient with commercial insurance, who has a chronically painful condition, taking 3 hydrocodone per day, asks for an increase in dose, will he tell the patient no & initiate them on Butrans at 10mcg if appropriate. He didn't answer. Reviewed trial cards & ability to take supplemental analgesia if necessary in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. I asked him what they would have to lose. He said nothing. I gave him instructional tear-off pad & walked him through instructing patients how to apply Butrans as well as rotation. I asked him to just try it. He said he would do his best. Reviewed broad OxyContin formulary coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/12/2012	Dr Gigliotti said he just started another patient on Butrans on Wednesday. I asked if he remembers what made him do that. He didn't answer. I asked what dose he started the patient on. He said he thinks 10mcg. I told him that most of his patients would probably start on the 10mcg, depending on their current dose of opioid medication & showed the range. Showed titration piece & asked if he has any concerns titrating after 3 days if the patient is not getting adequate pain relief. He said he will give the patient 20mcg if they call back or come in saying it is not working. He said he knows he will find more patients. He also said he is still writing OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	10/12/2012	Quick call at the window- Passed back OxyContin piece & pointed out 7 tablet strengths. Reviewed flexibility of dosing/titration. He said he still writes it all the time. He added that he isn't using Butrans because it is too expensive. Passed back formulary grid. He walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Brooklyn	OH	44144	10/12/2012	Spoke with Rhonda, who said she hasn't seen anyone come in with any Butrans prescriptions lately. I asked if they fill many prescriptions for short-acting opioids like Vicodin, Percocet or tramadol. She said they do. I asked if they are often refills month after month for the same people. She said yes. Rhonda said since they have so many older customers, they see a lot of patients getting prescriptions for pain from conditions like osteoarthritis. Showed inclusion criteria for Butrans studies & let her know this is the same type of patient we looked at in Butrans trials. She said she would share this information with the pharmacist. Reviewed 7 tablet strengths of OxyContin, explaining that the intermediate strengths allow for flexibility in dosing & titration.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	10/12/2012	Spoke to dr about Butrans and the hydrocodone patient. Explained the William case study and asked dr to look for patients already on hydrocodone with increasing pain. I asked dr instead of titrating the hydrocodone to prescribe Butrans. Reminded dr to use the Butrans patient experience patient. Dr said ok and he will continue to use.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	10/12/2012	Dr said he prescribed Butrans about 1-1 1/2 weeks ago for an opioid naive patient on NSAIDs and Ultram. Dr initiated on the 5mcg and patient called in and said he was still in pain. Dr increased dose to 10mcg and patient said he was still in pain. Dr said that Butrans was not covered for the patient anyway. Discussed private prescription plan coverage. Discussed with dr the initiation doses, proper titration, and use of analgesics. Discussed inclusion criteria for opioid experienced patients and asked dr to look for patients with those types of conditions who meet the indication for Butrans. Dr said he will continue to
PPLPMDL0020000001	Brooklyn	OH	44130	10/12/2012	Spoke with pharmacist Danielle, & showed her Butrans titration piece. I asked if she knows if they currently have anyone still taking Butrans since she has told me previously that they have customers on it. She said there is one person she can think of but the others have discontinued. I asked her what strengths the patients who discontinued had been on. She looked in her system & said the patient currently on Butrans is on 20mcg, but it looked like the ones who discontinued had been on the lower strengths, usually 5mcg. I told Danielle this was not surprising & reviewed the patient type/range, letting her know fewer patients in clinical trials discontinued on 20mcg than 5mcg. Discussed ability to titrate after 3 days to a maximum of 20mcg. She said this made sense. I asked her to bring this to the attention of physician/patient if she is given the opportunity so they are getting a fair trial of Butrans. She agreed. Discussed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths & savings program. She said they still have cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	10/12/2012	Talked with Dr Wun about Butrans patient type William from case study. I asked if he currently has patients on hydrocodone. Dr said he does. I used inclusion criteria from BUP 3015 and initiation and titration piece. I asked dr to take patients presenting to him in pain on hydrocodone and use Butrans for those patient that meet the indication. Dr asked about insurance coverage for his patients. I discussed the plans for his practice and spoke about trial offer cards and copy cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	10/12/2012	Used the Sam OxyContin profile to discuss OxyContin and reviewed reasons for the Q12h OxyContin. Explained the reasons why the patient was appropriate for OxyContin. Dr said that that is where she typically will use OxyContin. Explained Med D plans. Gave quick patient type for Butrans with vicoden patient and discussed inclusion criteria. Dr said she will try Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44303	10/12/2012	Email sent requesting a meeting to discuss pain management and risk management educational resources. This was a follow-up to Dr. Mary Cook meeting with Dr. Ashbury at the American Osteopathic Association meeting in San Diego (October 2012). Dr. Ashbury's focus is geriatrics and Long Term Care.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44303	10/15/2012	I asked Rod if he has dispensed Butrans yet? Rod said he has not. I asked him who in the area has he dispensed OxyContin for. Rod told me Dr Lababidi, Oyakawa and dr Norman. Told Rod about OxyContin Medicare D plan coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	10/15/2012	Gave dr the specifics of an appropriate patient type that I wanted her to find for Butrans. I discussed the William profile and asked dr to prescribe Butrans for a patient on hydrocodone uncontrolled with caresource.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	10/15/2012	Discussed PA criteria for plan. I asked dr if she will do that. Dr said she will try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	10/15/2012	Reviewed Butrans 3 doses, CII, titration and appropriate patients. Focused on William case study and asked dr what she is currently doing for a hydrocodone patient uncontrolled. Dr asked about Oxycodone patients uncontrolled. I told dr that the oxycodone patient uncontrolled is a candidate for OxyContin not Butrans necessarily. I told dr to focus on patients on vicoden who have Caresource that are appropriate for an extended release product. Dr asked about starting dose for patients on hydrocodone. Showed dr the approximate conversion chart. I asked dr if she will find patients and she agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	10/15/2012	Spoke to Jason about Butrans and OxyContin. Jason said he is seeing Butrans prescriptions from Norman at 3131 Smith Rd. OxyContin from Oyakawa, Fouad and Lababidi and Wiedman. I told Jason about an appropriate patient type for OxyContin and reviewed the Tom case study.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	10/15/2012	Discussed William case study with dr and Rhonda. I asked dr what he typically does with a patient on hydrocodone who is uncontrolled? Dr said all the patient cases are different but he thinks Butrans is a good option instead of titrating the IR opioid. I asked if there is anything about Butrans that is keeping him from prescribing more often? Doctor said the managed care coverage could be better. I told dr that the path of least resistance is for patients with private prescription coverage and gave him the plans. Dr said he knows that is where he needs to use it and will.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	10/16/2012	Quick call, LAura said she has tried Butrans and could not come back to lunch, is there anything new and I let her know about medicaid change and she apologized but could not stay for lunch
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/16/2012	Reviewed Butrans appropriate starting dose and proper titration with new piece. I asked if they have seen any recent Butrans and Gary said he has not but he has it on the shelf.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/16/2012	Told dr that he should be looking at his patients already on tramadol or vicoden and are still in pain. I asked for Dr McRoberts to prescribe Butrans for those patients if a dose adjustment on the short acting is necessary. Dr said he has not used and wished it was covered on Medicare. I asked dr to look for patients under Medicare age with prescription insurance. Left him with the initiation and titration guide.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/16/2012	I asked Cindy what feedback she has gotten on Butrans for patients and/or pharmacies. She said patients seem to really like it. She said most of them are still on it. I asked if Dr Ortega starts someone at 5mcg if he titrates to 10mcg if the patient says it is not working. She said he does & added that he tells them up-front that they may have to go to the next higher dose. I told her this is exactly what he should be doing. She said he has had some patients who have decreased their Butrans dose. She said Dr Ortega uses it as a means to decrease or eliminate their short-acting opioid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Garfield Hts	OH	44125	10/16/2012	I reminded Dr Sadowski of previous conversations when he told me that ideally he would like to use Butrans in patients who were no longer controlled on NSAID's or COX-2's. He said that is still his plan. I showed him "Jessica" patient profile & pointed out that this is exactly the type of patient we studied Butrans in. I showed him titration piece & pointed out that this patient could start at the lowest dose, 5mcg. Discussed importance of follow-up in 3 days to assess the patient's results & titration if necessary every 3 days to a maximum 20mcg. He said the patient could get adequate relief on 5mcg. I told him every patient is different & that is possible, but that I wanted him to feel prepared to titrate if necessary. Asked him to focus on commercially insured patients. Spent time with Deena & gave her Butrans formulary grid, stressing working patients for Butrans where appropriate. She told me about a patient with insurance who she thinks could benefit from Butrans. I gave her a savings card to put with the patient's chart. She said she would suggest it to Dr Sadowski.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	10/16/2012	Abby asked what is new with Butrans, she said arethere any changes in managed care and I said yes and I informed her of medicaid change and she said that must have just happened because she had a patient who was medicaid. She said she had a patient who was perfect taking Percocet started on 5mcg and her arm swelled up and she took her off, she had never seen a reaction that bad. I showed her side effects. I also talked about dosing and initiation and titration by showing opioid experienced study.
PPLPMDL0020000001

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/16/2012	Dr Lin said she has put 2 patients on Butrans but has not heard anything back from them. I asked how soon after starting a patient on a medication she usually has them follow-up with her to let her know how it is working for them. She said she has them call after 3 days. I told her this was perfect since she can titrate Butrans after 3 days. Discussed use of supplemental analgesia in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. She said everyone on a long-acting opioid needs something for breakthrough pain. Dr Lin said if a patient on 5mcg said it was not working, she would titrate them to the next dose. She asked if she can have the patient just put 2 patches on instead of writing a whole new prescription. I told her we have not studied Butrans this way so it is not recommended. She said it just would make sense. I told her again it is not recommended because it has not been studied. I told Dr Lin that in Butrans clinical trials, even patients who were opioid-naïve were titrated up to 20mcg. She asked what the patient population was. I asked her to clarify. She asked if patients had cancer pain. I showed inclusion criteria, pointing out non-malignant pain. She said she would use more Butrans if Medicare covered it because it is ideal for older patients. Dr Lin said she uses OxyContin plus oxycodone for patients in more severe pain. Discussed 7 tablet strengths & q12h dosing. She said she always doses it q12h but forgets about intermediate strengths.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/16/2012	I asked dr what the results of his Butrans use have been? Dr said his patients are doing well and Butrans has helped their pain. I asked if he has had to titrate? Dr said not much. I showed him the titration/supplemental analgesia piece and explained how he should titrate and ability to use supplemental analgesia with NSAIDs or opioids. I asked if he is going to continue to prescribe? Dr said he will.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	10/16/2012	Janet came back quickly and said she has not written Butrans this week. I showed her pain reduction in opioid experienced study and also titrating the patients if Butrans is not effective. Reviewed managed care.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	10/16/2012	Dr came in while I was going through clinical study with Leanne and Dr Bressi and was talking about starting doses at 10mcg and if it does not work to titrate and he asked what the coverage is or if any changes and I reviewed managed care and medicaid change.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	10/16/2012	Dr said they are going to be using alot more Butrans because of new laws and he is going to write long actings and cut down on Vicodin and Percocet. I said when will you make that decision with the patient and he said when that patient comes in and if they are taking it q6 or more frequent he will put on long acting. HE said he will start with Butrans and then use Kadian or Avinza. HE asked about coverage and we reviewed that. HE said he will still not write Oxycontin regardless of reformulation. HE did ask for patient education for Butrans due to the REMS program.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	10/16/2012	I reminded Dr Fedorko of our last discussion when he told me that he finds it acceptable to treat patients with chronic opioids if he trusts them. I asked how he determines who to trust. He said you can tell by looking at a person & talking to them. He said many patients come in, not able to deal with being in pain for a single day. He said that is how you know they are just seeking drugs. I asked him if he was saying that his established patients are those who are trusted generally, whereas a new patients coming in for pain would be suspicious. He said yes. He said he would like to use more Butrans but can't because of prior authorizations & patients having to fail multiple medications before they can get it. I reminded him where Butrans is covered, re-directing him to working patients with commercial insurance or BWC. I showed him trial/savings cards & walked him through how
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	10/16/2012	Dr said he has not written Butrans but he mainly does injections but will listen about Butrans and will write it if he is in the opportunity to. HE said he too is not going to be writing Vicodin and Percocet and supports more long acting. Reviewed amnaged care coverage,
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	10/17/2012	Spoke with Marcy and Mike and they said everything is doing well with Butrans, She said it slowed down a little. They could not run any specifics on how much was written it was too busy. I left some patient education for the patients per request of Dr Bressi.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/17/2012	Spoke with pharmacist & showed Butrans titration piece. Discussed ability to titrate after 3 days to a maximum 20mcg. Also discussed ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. Pointed out that in studies, we gave patients ibuprofen or acetaminophen for supplemental analgesia. He said he hasn't seen any prescriptions for Butrans. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range. Discussed 7 tablet strengths of OxyContin for flexibility in dosing/titration.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/17/2012	Discussed Butrans dosing, CIII, 7 day transdermal. Reviewed titration, conversions from short acting opioids and use of supplemental analgesia. I showed dr the William case study and asked him if he has patients that may meet the indication for Butrans who are taking vicoden. Dr said that his patients with more complex conditions who seem to be in more of a chronic state would be appropriate for Butrans. Dr said he wants to take the initiation and titration guide with the conversion scale to the surgery center. Dr said he will begin looking for candidates. Closed the dr on the appropriate patient with private prescription insurance.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/17/2012	Introduced Butrans to dr by reviewing all key selling points including dosing, CIII, 7 day transdermal patch, titration, conversion, use of supplemental analgesia, trial cards and copy cards, and managed care overview. I used the BUP 3015 to discuss trial open label run in, double blind specifics and conclusion with pain score reductions. I discussed appropriate patients with those on tramadol and vicoden. Dr said he can see the use of this product but it will be limited due to the nature of his patients. Most are in acute pain but does have some in chronic pain. Dr said he will consider using.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	10/17/2012	Dr Moufawad said he just started another patient on Butrans. He added that he is still getting good results from Butrans & patients seem to like it. He said he always gives patients specific instructions on how to use Butrans. I showed him the tear-off pads & asked if he thought they would be helpful. He said they would be even better than the booklets that he uses currently. Dr Moufawad said he doesn't think insurance has been an issue lately for Butrans or OxyContin. Reviewed eligibility requirements for usage of savings cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/17/2012	Dr said he has a patient in mind for Butrans and it is a guy who is on vicoden who is complaining of pain. Dr said he did not want to increase the dose since he is already on 30mg/day. I reviewed conversions with dr and instructed him to initiate on 10mcg/hr. Dr said he has BWC and wondered about coverage. I told dr about BWC coverage is good and should not be an issue. I told dr that his vicoden patients are ideal candidates for Butrans. I showed him how to titrate and about tapering off the IR opioid after 72 hours. Reminded him about copy cards and trial offer.
PPLPMDL0020000001	BEACHWOOD	OH	44122	10/17/2012	In-serviced pharmacists & staff. Reviewed "Providing Relief, Preventing Abuse" brochure & terms of pain management (addiction, dependence, tolerance). Presented Butrans, discussing buprenorphine, 7 day transdermal delivery, dosing, titration, & ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. Showed demo patch & demonstrated disposal unit. One of the pharmacists asked if they could just use 2 of the patches instead of getting a whole new strength. I told him this has not been studied & is not recommended. Presented OxyContin, discussing that it is oxycodone dosed q12h. I asked how many tablet strengths they were aware of. They said they order only the 10 & 40mg. They were not aware of 15mg. Discussed OARRS & abuse/addiction potential of opioids. I asked how OxyContin is currently used at their center. They said primarily orthopedics after a procedure. Spoke with Kylie, pharmacy manager, who said she is on the Ohio Pharmacy Board. I asked how their formulary works. She said the procedure is that a physician submits a letter requesting that a medication be put on formulary. She said to let her know if any of my prescribers wanted to submit for Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/17/2012	Introduced myself & Purdue's products to Dr Kalin. He said he has had some patients who he has put on Butrans & has had success with it. He said he is actually currently fighting for a Medicaid patient to get it because he is not comfortable having her on short-acting because of a prior bad experience she had with Percocet. He said he has had no issue getting Butrans in the hospital, but because the patient population he treats with opioids chronically is older, he can't use it in the office as much as he would like. I asked what about patients who are aged 50-60 with chronically painful conditions. He said that was a good point & perhaps he could use more there in the office. Reviewed managed care grid & discussed trial/savings cards. Walked him through how eligible patients would use each card. I asked what dose he usually starts patients on. He said it depends, usually 10mcg, but 5 if they are opioid-naïve. I asked if he ever has titrated to 20mcg. He said he has not. I showed him clinical studies from FPI & pointed out how opioid-naïve patients were started at 5mcg, then titrated to 10 or 20. Showed pain score reductions. Discussed steady state at 3 days. I asked if he allows supplemental analgesia with Butrans. He said no. I pointed out that in trials, we allowed ibuprofen or acetaminophen for supplemental analgesia. I asked where OxyContin fits in to his practice. He said cancer pain or pancreatitis or for severe pain,
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	10/17/2012	Showed Butrans titration piece & reviewed dosing & titration. Discussed steady state in 3 days & titrating to a maximum of 20mcg if necessary. Also reviewed ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia if necessary. Let him know this can come in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. He said this made sense. Discussed OxyContin's 7 tablet strengths, offering flexibility in dosing/titration.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/17/2012	Quick call- Caught Elaine on her way out of the office. I showed her Butrans tear-off patient information sheets & showed her how they can be used in her discussions with patients about Butrans, especially in application, rotation, & disposal. She said she would like to use them & that they would be useful. Spent time with Dawn who said they have had 3 new patients started on Butrans this week. She said she wishes more primary care offices would put patients on Butrans before referring them to her office. I let her know I am working on this. Discussed managed care. She said they have had a few Caresource prior authorizations they have had to do, but otherwise, patients are getting it easily. Reviewed patient instruction tear-off pad with Dawn, She said this was good information. Discussed importance of patient counsel & setting appropriate expectations, including that titrating to a higher dose may be necessary. She said she would share this information with Myra also.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	10/17/2012	Inserviced Kylie & her staff on pain management (Providing Relief, Preventing Abuse brochure). Also reviewed Butrans & OxyContin. Discussed dosing, titration, indication, patient type/range, & 7 day transdermal buprenorphine delivery. Also reviewed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone as well as 7 tablet strengths for flexibility in dosing/titration. Kylie said she serves on the Ohio Pharmacy Board. She said Ahuja follows main campus formulary & reviewed procedure for getting medications on formulary there. She said there is a form for a physician requesting it to be filled out which goes to the P&T committee. She said to call or email her if any of my physicians are interested in doing that.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/17/2012	Gave quick review of Sam and asked dr if he uses OxyContin for patients on oxycodone. Dr said he does but the patients like the cost of the oxycodone. I showed him Sam again and that he did not want to have to continue getting up to take his pill. I asked dr if he has patients that would be appropriate for a Q12h oxycodone? Dr said that that makes sense and will continue to look at doing that more often.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	10/17/2012	I asked Dr Hernandez what patients are typically taking for pain when they come to him for the first time. He said he is seeing patients come in on Opana or hydrocodone or oxycodone. I asked how many times per day they are usually taking it. He said 4-5. I asked if he sees those patients as Butrans patients. He said he does, especially if they have a chronic condition. Dr Hernandez said he starts these patients all on 20mcg & gets good results. He said sometimes he does find that patients need a higher dose so he has them use 2 of the 20mcg patches at once. Reminded him that we have not studied Butrans this way & therefore it is not recommended. He said he knows. Reminded him that in studies, 2 of the 20mcg patches showed an increase risk of QTc interval prolongation. He said he is not concerned about that because he doses buprenorphine at much higher doses with other medications. I gave him new patient education tear-off pad. He said patients find that to be useful. He said he did not need additional Butrans or OxyContin savings cards at this time.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/18/2012	I asked Dr Khoobla about the patient who he had started on Butrans. He said the patient is doing well & is still on it. I asked if when he had written the prescription he had written refills. He said he did- he always gives 3 refills. He said he is very cautious with patients with any type of pain. I asked him to focus only on those patients who he trusts & who have legitimate pain. He said if a patient has back pain, he would send them for a surgery consult & would prescribe hydrocodone for them at that time, not a long-acting opioid. He said if the patient's surgery failed or they were not a candidate for surgery, that is when he would choose a long-acting option. I asked why not start them on Butrans while they are waiting to get in to have the surgery. He said because that is too short of a time & clarified that that only takes a few days to a week. I agreed that this would be too short a time for Butrans. Discussed importance of appropriate patient selection & told him he is doing the right thing by screening his patients & treating only those who are legitimate. He said he would use Butrans for cancer patients. I showed him clinical trial inclusion criteria & pointed out that Butrans was studied in non-malignant pain conditions. I asked him to focus on appropriate patients with these types of conditions, who are age 50-60 & have insurance through work so they can use trial/savings card. Asked him to commit to write Butrans for the right patient- he agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Waterford	OH	45786	10/18/2012	W - Continues to have patient new starts with Butrans after a failure of hydrocodone or when patients are in need of increasing the number of tablets consistently. I - Review of Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids once the indication is met. Review of Emma/William profiles as patient types that she may treat in her practice. Review of Butrans opioid experienced clinical trial - inclusion criteria, dosing/titration and reduction in pain scores. OxyContin for appropriate patient conversions from IR oxycodone once the indication is met. Review of q12h dosing with 7 dosing strengths. Review of formulary coverage and savings card programs for both Butrans and OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	AKRON	OH	44304	10/18/2012	Spoke to Rob(pharmacist) about Butrans and OxyContin. Rob did not know about Butrans so I gave all key selling messages and discussed CIII, starting dose, titration, application sites and appropriate patients. Rob has not filled Butrans and only have 5mcg patch in stock. Discussed how the patients over 80mg/day of morphine equivalent are appropriate for OxyContin. Discussed copy cards and patient savings.

	Waterford	OH	45786	10/18/2012	W - Continues to prescribe OxyContin and doesn't normally have any issues with coverage. Likes to start patients low and go slow in order to help identify the appropriate dose for the patient. Only issue he has had with Butrans is getting it covered on plans. Wasn't sure which plans or patient groups he has had the most trouble with getting Butrans covered. I - OxyContin for appropriate patient conversions from IR oxycodone once the indication is met. Review of q12h dosing with 7 dosing strengths. Review of Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids once the indication is met. Review of Emma/William profiles as patient types that he may treat in his practice. Review of Butrans opioid experienced clinical trial - inclusion criteria, dosing/titration and reduction in pain scores. Review of formulary coverage and savings card programs for both Butrans and OxyContin. In depth review of Butrans coverage with all different patient groups - BWC, Medicare Part D, Medicaid as well as commercial plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/18/2012	I told Dr Chagin I was there to make a case for Butrans for his appropriate patients who are taking between 30 & 80mg morphine equivalent per day. I pointed out in the FPI that this is the type of patient we studied in Butrans clinical trials. I showed him that pain score reduction for this type of patient. I reminded Dr Chagin that he had told me that patients sometimes don't want to try Butrans because they don't think it will work. I told him I was sharing this information with him in effort to instill some confidence in Butrans in him. Reminded him of patient experience kits & trial/savings cards that he has, pointing out that patients with commercial insurance could try Butrans for little to no out-of-pocket expense. Dr Chagin said he needs to just remember Butrans. I asked him to just try it on a few patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	10/18/2012	I showed Emma patient profile to Lynda & positioned Butrans 5mcg with 7 day delivery for appropriate patients like this. I asked what she would normally do with a patient like this. She said she would prescribe tramadol. Discussed Butrans as an option also for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on short-acting opioids around-the-clock. Lynda said she doesn't have her DEA number yet to prescribe controlled substances, but she plans to get that this weekend since her patient load is increasing. Lynda said she is not comfortable treating pain, mainly due to a lack of training in schooling & while working with Dr Loyke. She said if she can get herself more comfortable with treating pain, she would like to try medications like Butrans. She asked if we have CE courses about pain. I let her know I would see what resources we have available.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44303	10/18/2012	Introduced Butrans to dr using all key selling points including, CIII, 7 day transdermal patch, appropriate patients with Emma and William and inclusion criteria from BVUP 3015. Dr stopped me and said he will not prescribe Butrans because of all the heat the medical association is giving about use of narcotics. I asked dr if he prescribes Tramadol? Dr said he does. I asked what he does when his patients need more than what tramadol can offer? Dr said he moves to vicoden. I told dr that Butrans is a CIII just like vicoden except it is controlled release instead of immediate release and if a patient is in chronic pain why would a patient be kept on an immediate release product? Dr said that he may use Butrans there and he said he guesses he could see himself using it in that instance. I reviewed managed care and trial cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	10/18/2012	I asked Dr Mike of the trusted patients who he has who he continues on tramadol or Vicodin if any complain of waking up in pain or complain of their pain being controlled around-the-clock. He said yes. Positioned Butrans with 7 day buprenorphine delivery for appropriate patients. Dr Mike asked how buprenorphine is related to other medications like tramadol, Vicodin, Percocet, and fentanyl. I told him they all work on the mu opioid receptor & all have abuse/addiction potential. He said he finds that sometimes patients will tolerate one opioid but not another or others seem to have tolerability issues with several opioids. He asked if they would also have those issues with Butrans. I showed him FPI rates for adverse events & told him every patient is different. He said he has a patient in mind who has this type of issue with several opioids, but he thinks Butrans could be a good option for him. I asked if this patient has commercial insurance. He said he is Medicare. Dr Mike asked that most patients who they are willing to treat with opioids long-term are older. I suggested he think of appropriate patients who are ages 50-60, with insurance through work, who may benefit from Butrans since they can use the trial/savings cards. Showed him where the cards are kept.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	10/18/2012	I told dr to use Butrans for patients like the William case study who are on vicoden and have Medco insurance. I asked dr to remember Butrans as a medicine for patients who have chronic conditions like those in the inclusion criteria. Dr said she will do her best to remember.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	10/18/2012	Discussed William case study and asked dr again if he can identify one patient on vicoden who is not completely pain free. Dr said he will try. I asked him if he will commit to finding one patient to gain clinical experience. Dr said maybe in due time.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	10/18/2012	Asked dr what he typically does for a patient uncontrolled on vicoden? Dr said it depends on the patient but if they are on a higher dose he will take them to percocet. I asked dr if he would consider moving the patient to Q12h oxycodone? Dr said he does at times but it depends on the patients ability to pay for it vs percocet. I told dr about the broad managed care coverage especially for Med D plans. Dr said ok and he will consider it. I showed him the Butrans initiation and titration guide and asked him to review. CHUDAKOB's query on 10/26/2012Cliff, instead of leading with a question, what if you led with a statement like Dr, would it surprise you to know that OxyContin is on a preferred branded tier on 82 % of lives nationally. PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	10/18/2012	Used New titration and supplemental analgesia piece to discuss with Jenna the appropriate starting dose, titration at 72 hours, taper off short acting opioid after steady state and application sites. Jenna asked about using a 10mcg plus a 5mcg patch at the same time. I told her that it is not recommended per the FPI to use more than one patch at the same time. Reviewed managed care plans along with BWC and Caresource.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	10/18/2012	Discussed Butrans with all drs in office. Dr Weidman said she has used Butrans in the past and it worked well for a patient on vicoden. I asked dr why she has not used it since? Dr said because she forgot about it and was out of practice for a while. I discussed all key selling messages and discussed Emma and William profiles. Reviewed dosing, titration, conversions, application sites, and inclusion/exclusion criteria from BUP 3015. Dr said she will use it again because she said she thinks its a different approach to pain because of the mode of administration. I reviewed trial card, copy cards and managed care plans. Dr said she will place the initiation and titration guides in her exam rooms.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	10/18/2012	I stopped Dr Mandat & told him I wanted to share some information with him from Butrans clinical trials for opioid-experienced patients. I pointed out that these patients were taking between 30 & 80mg equivalent oral morphine per day & had to discontinue that treatment when starting Butrans. I showed him that 62% of patients had been on hydrocodone in this study. I pointed out that patients generally reported pain score reductions of around 7 to around 3. I asked if he thought this would be relevant to his patient population & if he would try Butrans in this type of patient, broadening his clinical experience. He said he would.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	10/19/2012	Dr Jack said he has been "thinking of" my patch. I asked him what patch he was talking about. He said Butrans. I asked him why not start writing it for a few appropriate patients instead of just thinking about it. He said he will, then walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/19/2012	Showed Dr Moysaenko OxyContin 7 tablet strengths, pointing out intermediate doses for flexibility in dosing/titration. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on 3-5 tramadol or Vicodin per day. He thanked me & walked into a patient room.

I showed her titration piece, pointing out that Butrans can be titrated after 3 days to a maximum of 20mcg. Let her know either IR opioids or non-opioid medications can be used for supplemental analgesia. I asked if she was aware of that & if it made sense. She said she had forgotten. Discussed titration ability every 1-2 days with OxyContin & also reviewed 7 different tablet strengths. She said they did not need savings cards for either product. CHUDAKOB's query on 10/25/2012Ashleigh, your call notes says that Butrans can be titrated to a maximum dose of 20ug after three days. Is this correct?APSEGAS's response on 10/28/2012 see how the note reads & how it could be interpreted. I have since been more cautious & specific in how I word it. When I talk to HCP's, I talk about the ability to titrate every 3 days, not "after" 3 days, to a maximum 20mcg. In calls, I show the 10 & how the patient would go from 5 to 10 to 20. I apologize for the poor wording & assure you I am more specific now that I have noticed this. CHUDAKOB added notes on 10/29/2012Thank you for the explanation. I am glad you saw how this can be interpreted and more importantly that you understand what is correct.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	10/19/2012	Discussed Butrans titration ability after 3 days to a maximum 20mcg & ability to use supplemental analgesia if necessary in the form of immediate-release opioid or non-opioid medications. PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	10/22/2012	I asked Dr Trickett what her comfort level with buprenorphine as a molecule is. She said she feels comfortable with it, but pharmacists do tend to scare patients when they talk to them about it. I asked her to clarify. She said when patients go to fill a prescription for Butrans, often times, pharmacists tell the patients it is for addiction treatment, which causes the patient to become afraid to try it. She said even though she reassures them that Butrans is only for pain, the patient at that point is not willing to try it. I asked what she thinks of when she hears "buprenorphine". She said now she thinks of Suboxone. I showed her FPI stating that Butrans is only for pain, not treatment of addiction. She said she realizes they are different & have different doses. I told her I wanted to share Butrans clinical data with her. Showed her FPI & went through opioid-experienced & opioid-naïve studies. I showed her that in both studies, patients were initially titrated to the next highest dose after 3 days. Also showed that the maximum dose they titrated to was 20mcg. She said she didn't realize she could titrate that soon. She asked when it reaches steady state. I told her 72 hours. I showed her pain reduction & that patients on 20mcg reported better pain reduction than 5mcg. She said that makes sense. I asked her to try Butrans on appropriate patients & titrate if they initially get sub-optimal response. She agreed. Discussed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths & gave her REMS.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/22/2012	Dr Gigliotti said he has not heard back from any of his patients who he started on Butrans. He said that means it must be working for them. I asked what if they come back for follow-up & say it is not working. He said he will increase the dose. I told him it sounds like he is ready. He said he is still writing more OxyContin than he would like. I reminded him that there are legitimate, appropriate patients in pain & those are the ones he should focus on treating.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	10/22/2012	Spoke to Jim(pharmacist) about Butrans and OxyContin. I reviewed Butrans dosing, titration and use of supplemental analgesia. I asked Jim what doses he dispenses the most? Jim said they have only dispensed it a handful of times. I asked what doses he has dispensed? Jim said mostly 5mcg and a couple of 10mcg. I explained appropriate patient types and appropriate initiation doses. I asked Jim if his patients receiving OxyContin are using the copy card? Jim said most are on Medicare and others have various employer plans who most of will not approve OxyContin until they fail other products first. I outlined OxyContin managed care plans focusing on Med D. Spoke to matthew(pharmacist) about Butrans and OxyContin. Pharmacist did not know much about Butrans other than he just filled it last week. I asked him if he knows who prescribed it and he said no and that he would have to run a report and didn't have time. I reviewed with Matthew the indication, CIII, 7 day transdermal system, dosing, titration and appropriate patients. I asked him if he has also dispensed OxyContin recently. Matthew said they fill it all the time and have all doses in stock.

Spoke with Cindy & reviewed appropriate patient type & ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia if necessary.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	10/22/2012	Discussion with Gilbert the store pharmacy manager about Butrans and OxyContin. I used the titration guide to review dosing, appropriate initiation dose, titration, indication, use of supplemental analgesia, trial cards and copy cards. Gilbert told me that patients on Butrans have been telling him Butrans is working but they have found it necessary to use more and more short acting products for breakthrough pain. Gilbert said the majority of dispensing is the 10mcg but feels most of the patients he fills for should be on the 20mcg. Gilbert wanted to know the approximate conversions from vicoden to the 10mcg. Discussed OxyContin appropriate patients with case studies and copy card.

Dr said OxyCodone 5/325mg tid and he initiated on the 10mcg/hr patch. Dr said the patient in on vicoden and couldn't remember the dose. Dr asked about coverage for Medco? I told dr that it is the lowest branded copay even before the savings cards. She said she doesn't think they have many people on it. Reviewed appropriate patient type with her. CHUDAKOB added notes on 11/01/2012-This looks like a good next call objective. Think about how you want to open this call. Do you want to ask him to think of one patient or do you want to teach him about the right patient type that he sees multiple times a day. It is good to see you wanting to get specific. Getting him thinking of a type of patient and then getting him to realize he sees that patient type may be the first step.

Dr said that for some reason the patient refused to wear a patch and said the cost would be too high. I asked what insurance the patient had and she said she could not remember. I asked dr to continue looking for the appropriate patients and the vicoden patient is the ideal patient. Went to William and gave a quick review. Dr told me to leave formulary information.

I discussed steady state is 72 hours so the taper off period should not begin until then and the amount and time period of taper is up to the physician. I told dr that the reason I am telling him that is two fold. One, I want you to feel comfortable prescribing OxyContin to patients over 65 and that the Med D plan coverage is very good. I explained plans with approved piece. Dr said he does use it for the elderly and he has some on higher doses and it works very well. I showed dr the Butrans patch and asked if he has any patients with low back pain on vicoden who would be appropriate for the CII, 7 day patch? Dr told me to leave info and he will study it more.

Finished by providing pain score reductions at 24 hours of week 12. I followed that up with the new titration and supplemental analgesia piece speaking to the importance of titration and appropriate starting dose. I asked dr if there is anything keeping him from using Butrans regularly except for managed care? Dr said no. he thinks it is a good product but said it is too tough to get approved. He went on to say that he actually noticed that he has a bulk of patients who are controlled well on 5mcg & another set who are controlled at 20mcg. He said he probably has the fewest number of patients at 10mcg. He said overall, he is getting good results. I asked if he considers OxyContin when 20mcg Butrans doesn't control a patient's pain. He said sometimes.

Used titration piece to discuss when to titrate based on steady state and use of supplemental analgesia. Dr said he would tell patients to use non narcotics for breakthrough pain. Reviewed OxyContin case studies and asked dr what he thinks of moving patients on oxycodone IR to OxyContin when the meet the indication. Dr said he does use and and would prefer using an ER products instead of a short acting product. Dr said he will continue to use the Butrans patch.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	10/24/2012	I repeated the same information to dr Adams as I did lat time and told her to focus on a patient like William who is uncontrolled on vicoden. Dr said ok and she knows she needs to give it another shot. I told her that many of the moderate to high doses of perccet may not be appropriate and they may be more of a candidate for OxyContin. Dr said she will focus on vicoden patients
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44304	10/24/2012	I asked pharmacist if they had butrans in stock? Pharmacist did not have any in stock at the moment but did fill it about a month ago but did not remember the physician. I gave Butrans key selling messages and discussed copy cards and trial card.

Spent time with titration piece discussing recommended starting doses depending on the patient's current medication. Discussed managed care & trial/savings cards. Also discussed ability to use supplemental analgesia in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. She asked how Butrans is for elderly patients. I showed her that there are no dosage adjustments necessary & advised she use the same type of caution she would use with other opioid medications. She said she has an 86 year old patient who does not need a strong opioid, but she feels tramadol is dangerous to use in the elderly due to changes in mental status seen in studies with this medication. Discussed Medicare & prior authorization. She said she would likely try to get Butrans for this patient due to lack of other options. She said she would prefer patients be on Butrans than oral medications & it makes sense to have patients on long-acting opioids if they are going to need something for a long period of time. I asked what she thinks prevents her from writing more Butrans. She said really just that she sees more acute conditions than chronic. Positioned OxyContin for appropriate patients taking Percocet around-the-clock chronically. She said she would prefer a patient be on OxyContin plus oxycodone IR for breakthrough pain. Walked him through both study designs & discussed results. I asked what he thought. He said it sounded good & added that he didn't realize Butrans could be titrated as soon as 3 days after initiating. He asked if he can have the patient use two patches at the same time. I told him this has not been studied & is not recommended. Discussed managed care & trial/savings cards, letting him know the next higher dose is covered if used for titration. Also discussed ability to use supplemental analgesia in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. He said he is sure he can find someone for Butrans & knows he will use it eventually. I asked dr to move patients on oxycodone to OxyContin if the patient is still in ATC pain and are suitable for the Q12h option. I told her from the FPI that in the clinical studies that 33% of patients studied were 65yrs and over and of that 9% were 75yrs and over. I told her that the reason for talking about this is because the Medicare D plans are well covered. Dr said she realizes that she should be moving patients to OxyContin. I provided review of Butrans naive trial discussing study design, titration to maximal dose, % of patients moving to double blind and pain score reductions. Told her to initiate Naive patients on 5mcg and discussed improved efficacy with each titrating dose. I asked dr if she will use Butrans for her next patient that meets the indication. She said she really does not treat a lot of patients for pain. She added that if patients are already on pain medications, they are generally getting them from orthopedics or some other specialty. She said she does notice drug seekers & obviously won't prescribe for them. I agreed that she should only prescribe opioids for appropriate patients who are in legitimate pain. She said she generally asks a patient to get a tox screen before prescribing any opioids for them & often they never take that step, so she doesn't write the prescription. I agreed that this type of screening is a good idea. I asked if she uses OARRS, She said she does. She said she thinks there is a place for Butrans, she just doesn't happen to treat patients who would be appropriate for it. I asked what her experience has been with OxyContin. PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	10/26/2012	I asked Dr Kim what he currently does for a patient on vicoden who is uncontrolled? Dr said he has told me before he does not treat chronic pain. I asked him if he thinks some of his vicoden patients are in chronic pain. Dr said they probably are but it is too much trouble to treat a patient with a long acting product. I asked why and he said because of all the govt, medical association and all the other groups making it difficult to treat chronic pain with long acting products. I asked dr to write Butrans prior to his referral.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	10/26/2012	I showed dr the placebo patch through the window and asked if there is anything preventing him from using Butrans more often. I asked dr to continue to use Q12h OxyContin for patients uncontrolled on IR oxycodone. I showed dr the new titration and supplemental analgesia piece. I asked if he finds himself titrating Butrans? He said that he has had to titrate to the 20mcg dose recently. I asked him why he titrated. Dr said the patients said they were still in pain and having to take there breakthrough pain meds more. I let her know titration is something I have been focusing on with physicians. Showed her that the titration interval is 72 hours for Butrans. Also let her know 20mcg would be the maximum dose. Pointed out that patients can take supplemental analgesia if necessary & showed her that patients in studies were allowed acetaminophen or ibuprofen for this purpose in studies. I told him I wanted to continue to explore this with him. I showed him opioid-naïve clinical study data from FPI & explained study format. Also showed him pain score reductions seen in that study. He said "ok". I told him I was showing him this to help bolster his confidence in Butrans's efficacy in appropriate patients. I told him we have been talking about Butrans for almost two years now & he still has not used it, so there must be some reason for this. I told him going over clinical data may help him in identifying a Butrans candidate. I asked if he thinks Butrans works. He said yes. I asked if he thought it was safe. He said yes. I asked if he thinks it is priced reasonably for appropriate patients with commercial insurance who use the trial/savings cards. He said yes. I asked what, then, is missing. He said a patient like this just has not come in yet. I told him that is hard to believe & started to show him inclusion criteria, but he got called away for an emergency. Reviewed OxyContin q12h dosing & managed care with Deena.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/30/2012	Quick call- Caught Dr Chagin at the window. I reminded him of our previous conversation about Butrans & asked what he thinks is missing, causing him not to prescribe or identify patients for Butrans. He said he just has to remember it. I asked what I can do to continue to "remind" him. He said he doesn't know & will try harder. Spoke with Debbie & reviewed savings program & formulary information for Butrans & OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	10/30/2012	I showed dr the Butrans placebo patch and asked him if he has given any more thought as to using it in his patients on vicoden who need a dose adjustment? Dr said he has the pieces I gave him last time and he needs to review it. I showed dr the William profile and asked him if he will initiate a patient who has commercial insurance. Dr said he will look. nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/30/2012	Quick message about Butrans to dr at window and told him to use Butrans for his Ultram or vicoden patients who need a dose adjustment and meet the indication for Butrans. Dr said he has been considering it for a few patients on vicoden but is concerned about insurance coverage. One patient of Medicare and the other he was not sure what the coverage was. I told dr that proper patient selection is the most important and a vast majority of patients with private prescription insurance can get it at a fair price especially with the 28 day trial offer card. Dr said he will try to get them pushed through.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44125	10/30/2012	Spoke with Angie & showed her Butrans titration piece, pointing out titration interval of 72 hrs. Let her know patients can take supplemental analgesia & showed her that in studies, we allowed patients to take ibuprofen or acetaminophen for this purpose if necessary. She said she has dispensed only "a couple" of Butrans prescriptions. I asked if she has noticed any titration at all with those patients. She said no. Reviewed savings programs for Butrans & OxyContin. Offered cards, but she said they had enough.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	10/30/2012	Good discussion about Butrans and his clinical findings. Dr said that he has found that his patients either like it or they don't. There is no in between. I asked him to provide examples. Dr said that the patients he has on it that are working tell him that they feels woozy or dizzy at work and they can't afford to feel that way so want their perccet back. I asked him why they don't feel that way on perccet and dr said he didnt know other than the dosing schedule. I reviewed BUP 3015 discussing all major points including, study design, inclusion criteria, % of patients in each phase and dose, pain score reductions and AE's associated focusing on low incidence of constipation. Dr said he does like the low incidence of constipation and understand how the max dose would provide better analgesia. I discussed the need for titration and that they trial helps to prove the need to titration if a patient continues to be in pain. Dr said he will continue to look for more patients that fit the right description.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Garfield Hts	OH	44125	10/30/2012	Spoke with Heather & showed her Butrans titration piece. Pointed out titration interval of every 3 days & showed her that 20mcg is the maximum dose recommended. Also discussed ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia in the form of IR opioid or non-opioid medications. Discussed savings program & commercial insurance coverage. She asked about BWC. I let her know they are paying for it at this time. Reviewed OxyContin savings cards/usage & reminded her that cash-pay patients can use them every 14 days if their prescription is written that way.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	10/30/2012	Spoke with Dave & presented Butrans titration piece. Discussed titration ability every 72 hours to a maximum of 20mcg. I asked if he has noticed any titration with Butrans in his customers. He said he hasn't dispensed a lot of it. Reviewed savings cards for Butrans & OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/30/2012	I showed dr the titration and supplemental analgesia piece and told dr that steady state with Butrans is 72 hours and he can titrate then if necessary. I asked if he has had the need to titrate in any of his Butrans patients? Dr said he has taken two of his patients from the 5mcg to the 10mcg because both are patients in more severe pain and they both told dr that they have had to take more breakthrough medicines because of the pain level. I told dr that he did exactly what he should have done and that I was glad to know he increased dose. I told him that the opioid experienced trial proves the need to titrate based on a larger proportion of patients achieving at least a 30% reduction on their 20mcg/hr dosen in pain compared to the 5mcg/h dose. Dr said the patients both said their pain is better controlled. I asked dr if he feels comfortable enough clinically with this medicine to use it more regularly? Dr said he will continue to look for the right patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	10/30/2012	Discussed appropriate application sites for Butrans and reviewed patient information guide and showed how patients can track their patch rotation. PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	10/31/2012	Dr Moufawad asked if I knew anything about the new long-acting opioid REMS program. I gave him a packet for Butrans/OxyContin. He said he knows that sometime in the near future, they will be changing requirements to include giving the information to patients & having them sign something. He went on to discuss the importance of appropriate patient selection. I agreed. He said he wishes more primary care physicians would use tools like OARRS to help them not prescribe for some patients. I told him I encourage physicians to register for OARRS. Dr Moufawad said to keep doing this. He asked for more savings cards for Butrans & OxyContin for his other
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	10/31/2012	I told Dr Scanlon that I wanted to present Butrans clinical data from trials in opioid-experienced patients in effort to further bolster his confidence in Butrans efficacy for appropriate patients. I showed him the study in the FPI & walked him through the design of the study. Showed him results & pain score reduction. Also incorporated the opioid-experienced clinical backgrounder & pointed out that 62% of patients in this study were on hydrocodone medications prior to the study. Also showed him inclusion/exclusion criteria. I asked if this sounds like his patients. He said many of them. I asked why not try Butrans on some of them if they are appropriate & meet the indication, adding that those with commercial insurance would have little or no out-of-pocket cost to try it. Dr Scanlon said Butrans is a good medication & it has "its place". I told Dr Scanlon I'd like him to try to make a bigger place for it in his practice in those appropriate patients. He agreed to try more patients on Butrans. I asked where he uses OxyContin. He said he tries to use it as infrequently as possible but agreed it is a good medication for the right patients. I asked him to consider OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients who are taking a form of IR oxycodone around-the-clock for moderate to severe pain.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	10/31/2012	I spoke to Clinton about Butrans appropriate starting dose of Butrans based on the daily amount of morphine equivalents. I discussed titration of Butrans and titration at 72 hours. I asked if he has dispensed any recently? Clinton said that he has filled about 4 in the last month but could not remember who the prescribers are. I reviewed OxyContin doses and talked about appropriate patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Munroe Falls	OH	44262	10/31/2012	Provided overview of BUP 3015 and discussed all aspects of the trial focusing on titration, pain score reductions and tolerability. I asked dr if she had any questions and she said she was thinking about Butrans this morning for a patient on vicoden. I asked if she initiated Butrans and she said no because the patient is coming back in soon and she will consider it then. I reviewed dosing, appropriate patients, titration and conversions from IR opioids. Dr thanked me for keeping her in the loop with the info and she will let me know when she has a new start.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	10/31/2012	Reviewed Butrans with Dr Manuel & his medical student. Showed patients profiles & discussed appropriate patient type/range of patients. Also showed clinical study data from FPI & walked them through how both studies were conducted as well as results & pain score reductions. Discussed once weekly transdermal dosing & delivery system. Dr Manuel said that while he has never himself prescribed Butrans, he does like to know about different medications because there is a place for everything. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are not well-controlled on tramadol, even if he is referring to pain management at that time. He said this is an area he would consider using Butrans. Discussed that Butrans is a CIII opioid with abuse & addiction potential. I asked if he uses OARRS. He said he does not because he is not very computer-literate. I gave him information on OARRS & encouraged him to sign up as a measure to protect his practice. I asked if OxyContin has any place in his practice. He said he doesn't write any at all. He said he would send anyone who came in on it to pain
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	10/31/2012	I asked TJ if she is the one who handles the managed care issues with products? She said she does but everyone in the office does it. I discussed Butrans to the staff. Explained the applications sites, CIII, 7 days, conversions from IR opioids. Dr said that he agreed to keep Butrans in mind and hopes it gets approved on Medicare. I told him that usage of the product can help ensure managed care access.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	10/31/2012	Quick call- Dr Mike said he couldn't stay long for lunch. He added that he would "keep Butrans in mind". I asked if he thinks he even has any patients for it or if he was just saying that he would "keep it in mind" out of habit. He said he might have some patients, but most of them he would try it on have Medicare.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Warrensville Heights	OH	44122	10/31/2012	Quick call- Pointed out OxyContin's 7 tablet strengths to Dr Zivic. I asked which he seems to use most of. He said he uses all of them, then thanked me & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	10/31/2012	I spoke to dr about the patient types appropriate for Butrans by reviewing the inclusion criteria from BUP 3015 and William case study. Dr said she sees a lot of patients with low back pain who are probably on vicoden or perccet. I told dr about the pain score reductions seen in the clinical trials and that patients were force titrated to the 20mcg patch. Dr wants to ensure it is covered. I gave her overview of coverage and what to expect from Medicare and Medicaid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	10/31/2012	quick hello through window and told dr that she can titrate Butrans every 3 days if necessary and patients can take opioids and non opioids for breakthrough pain. Dr said she really likes Butrans and told me whe would prescribe it more. I told her to look for Ultram or vicoden patients who need a dose adjustment who are not controlled. Left her with the titration and supplemental analgesia piece.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	10/31/2012	I reviewed Butrans titration and use of supplemental analgesia piece. I discussed dosing, conversions, steady state and applications sites. The only prescription they have seen for Butrans was from Dr Cain and have not seen any prescriptions from any specialists.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Brooklyn	OH	44144	10/31/2012	Spoke with David & showed Butrans titration piece, pointing out 3 strengths & titration interval of 72 hours. Discussed maximum dose of 20mcg. He asked what the recommendation is with using 2 patches at once. I told him this has not been studied & is not recommended. He said he understands. I asked if he has noticed any titration of dose with his customers on Butrans. He said he hasn't noticed. Reviewed trial/savings program as well as OxyContin savings program.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	10/31/2012	Quick call- Dr Kalin said he didn't have much time to talk today. I handed him the Butrans titration piece & showed 3 strengths/doses. Also reviewed titration interval of 72 hours. Reminded him that based on previous conversations about patient types, most of his patients would likely start at 10mcg with the possibility of titrating to 20mcg after 3 days. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	10/31/2012	Dr had a patient in an exam room who he said he wanted to start Butrans for. Dr said that the patient is on oxycodone 5mg 4-5 times a day and he wanted to prescribe Butrans however the patients has Buckeye. Dr wanted to know if Butrans is covered on Buckeye. I told dr that it is not preferred on Buckeye and there will most likely be a PA. Dr said he is going to prescribe and see what happens. I asked if he has an issue with a PA? Dr said no because Barbara will do it. I told dr that he needs to initiate on the 10mcg patch and to begin the taper of oxycodone after steady state is reached at 3 days. Dr wants me to check back on Friday. Barbara was out today and will try back on Friday to discuss the PA for Buckeye. Spoke to Kendra(RAE) about Buckeye approval process.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	10/31/2012	I asked dr if his current patients are experiencing good pain relief on Butrans? Dr said they are doing very well. I asked dr that since his experience and his patients experience has been so positive why he is not prescribing it to new patients? Dr told me that he will be and said he knows where he wants to use it. I asked him if there are any limitations to using it that I need to know about? Dr said there are not any and said when he has a patients uncontrolled on vicoden he will prescribe Butrans. I told dr to use his patient experience kits.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	10/31/2012	Handed Dr Rob a new Butrans/OxyContin REMS packet as he walked by. I explained the update for ER/LA opioids, letting him know this includes both CIII Butrans & CII OxyContin. He just said he doesn't write those & then walked into a room.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	11/1/2012	Spoke to Stacey (office manager) about new OxyContin FPI and Medicare D plan coverage. Explained OxyContin appropriate patients with new piece and asked about Dr Taliwals and Brower's prescribing of OxyContin. He added that he has started "a few" but he has not seen any of them back since starting them. I showed him Butrans titration piece with dosing. I asked if he would agree that most of his patients would likely start at 10mcg based on the patient type. He said yes. I pointed out that these patients can be titrated to 20mcg after 3 days if necessary. He said that was a good reminder. Also gave him new REMS packet for Butrans & OxyContin & explained update. PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	11/1/2012	Dr Sundaram said he saw a patient earlier today who he thought of putting on Butrans but he did not the insurance would pay for it. I asked what plan. He looked in the patient's chart & it was Buckeye. I agreed that there would have likely been a fight with the insurance in that case. I asked why Butrans for this patient. He said because he keeps asking for more & more medication. I reminded Dr Sundaram that if a patient is in pain more than 80mg morphine equivalent, they are beyond the Butrans range. Re-directed him to appropriate patients in legitimate pain who are not well-controlled on 3-5 tramadol or Vicodin per day. I pointed out that in opioid-experienced studies, 62% of patients were on a hydrocodone combo & 21% an oxycodone combo. I asked if he has patients in this range. He said he does. Stacey said that Taliwal prescribes much more OxyContin than Brower and they use it for patients in severe pain. CHUDAKOB's query on 11/09/2012-Cliff, an office manager is not considered a non-HCP call. PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	11/1/2012	Spoke with nursing staff who said Dr Dimitri actually has written some Butrans. They said they have not heard any type of feedback from anyone at this point though. I showed them patient information tear-off pads & asked if this is a tool they would utilize in discussing Butrans with patients. They said it would be very helpful & liked that it was concisely written on one page rather than a book. I asked what type of discussion they have with patients new to Butrans. They said they usually give them the booklet & savings card & tell them to change the patch every 7 days. I asked if titration is ever discussed, letting the patient know they may be moved to a higher dose after 3 days or more. They said no. I asked that they start doing this & recommended some sort of patients follow-up after 3 days to see if they needed to be titrated or not. They said they would start doing this. They asked how OxyContin is doing then added that many doctors don't like to have patients on it. I asked why they think that is. They said because of the stigma & negative media attention. I asked if they realized it is the same medication as Percocet in a q12h dose. A few of them were aware of this & others were not & were surprised. I asked that if they identify a patient who may benefit from a q12h dose of OxyContin that they bring this to the
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	11/1/2012	Spoke with floater pharmacist & showed Butrans titration piece. Pointed out titration interval of 72 hours & maximum dose of 20mcg. Showed her that patients are allowed to take supplemental analgesia if necessary in the form of IR opioids or non-opioid medications, which is what we offered in studies. Reviewed savings programs for Butrans & OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/1/2012	Dr Gigliotti said one of the patients he put on Butrans reported back that he wasn't able to use the savings card & did not want to pay out-of-pocket for it. I asked what prescription insurance coverage this patient has. He said he wasn't sure. Reviewed favorable commercial coverage & trial/savings card utilization. I asked what type of discussion he has about Butrans with his patients. He said he tells them how to put in on & that they wear it for a week. I asked if he tells them up front that there is a possibility they will need to be titrated to the next highest dose after 3 days. He said he does. I told him this is a good idea. Gave him new REMS packet for Butrans & OxyContin & explained update.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	11/1/2012	Spoke with Steve & showed Butrans titration piece, pointing out 3 doses. Discussed titration interval of 72 hours & maximum dose of 20mcg. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44305	11/1/2012	Gave 30 second overview of BUP 3015 showing patients randomized to 5, 20mcg and an active control. Showed him the 49% of patients gaining at least 30% reductions in pain on the 20mcg compared to the 5mcg at 33%. Discussed the tolerability of Butrans that was seen in the trial reviewing the AE's over 5% focusing on the incidence of constipation. I asked dr if the IR opioids have a higher or lower incidence than what Butrans shows? Dr said he does like the side effect profile and likes Butrans because he wants to move more of his patients on IR opioids off of them and Butrans is a good option. I asked dr for continued commitment.CHUDAKOB's query on 11/09/2012-Cliff, this is a touchy subject. When you focus on a specific side effect, and then ask the physician how it compares to other IR, it appears you are implying that Butrans has a lower rate of constipation than other IR opioids. Obviously we have no data to support this. You can however ask him to look at all the side effects and asks if anything surprises him. Then you are not comparing to any other product or group of products. I hope this makes sense. If not, let me know. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	11/2/2012	Spoke to dr about his patient he prescribed Butrans for on Wednesday. I told dr that I had Brian complete the PA form for Buckeye and would be faxed in today. Dr thanked me for doing that and said he thinks Butrans will work well for his patients. PPLPMDL0020000001	Middleburg Heights	OH	44130	11/2/2012	Spent time discussing appropriate patient selection with Dr Kaushal. She said she is a big user & fan of OARRS. I told her this is a great tool to utilize to protect the practice. I gave her information on PAP & PurdueHCP.com for her to look at various other tools to protect the practice. She was very appreciative of this & said she is highly interested in learning more about these resources. I gave her my card & let her know I am available if she has any questions or needs additional information & let her know I would follow-up regarding these resources. Presented Butrans studies including design, patient type/selection, & results. Showed her titration piece & discussed ability to titrate every 3 days to a maximum 20mcg, pointing out the 3 strengths. Also discussed ability to use supplemental analgesia if necessary, showing her that in studies, patients were allowed APAP or ibuprofen for this purpose. Discussed savings/trial program & asked her to give one with each script for eligible patients. She agreed. Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone. Also discussed abuse/addiction potential of all opioid medications. Recommended Senokot-S for opioid- & medication-induced constipation.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Middleburg Heights	OH	44130	11/2/2012	Positioned OxyContin q12h for appropriate patients who are taking an IR formulation of oxycodone around-the-clock for a chronic condition. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	11/7/2012	Dr said he prescribed Butrans for two ladies last week that were both taking vicoden for low back problems. He said that one lady called in and said it is working great. Dr said one of them was initiated on the 10mcg dose and the other on 5mcg dose based on their amount of vicoden. Dr also said that another male patient who has Lupus was taking Butrans 10mcg since June stopped the steroids he was on then broke out in a body rash. The patient stopped Butrans and the rash went away. Dr suspects that the steroid was keeping the rash at bay. Dr said the patient called Purdue and reported the incident. I told dr I wanted him to continue prescribing and to be giving out the experience kits. Dr said he will and thinks the kits are great for the patients because it makes them feel special.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/7/2012	Dr Khoobal said he has written Butrans for a patient recently & said he has not heard back from them. I asked if he typically asks the patient to follow up after 3 days. He said not usually & asked why. I showed him titration interval of 72 hours & let him know it is possible the patient would need to be titrated after the first 3 days, & possibly again after that to the maximum 20mcg. He said he thinks the patients will call if something isn't working for them. I encouraged him to have some sort of contact with patients after 3 days of starting on Butrans to assess whether the patient needs to be titrated or not.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	11/7/2012	Dr was talking about how his patients are asking him for more vicoden and tramadol and he will not give it to them. PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	11/7/2012	Dr Moufawad saw the patient information tear-off sheets in my arm & said he has been giving them to patients when he starts them on Butrans. He added that he has given out 3 sheets so far. I asked how he is utilizing them when he talks to his patients- what does it sound like. He said he shows them application sites & tells them to rotate the site each week. He said he does need to do a better job of telling them not to go back to the same site for 3 weeks though. I agreed that this would be good information to relay. Dr Moufawad said he does let patients know that titration is a possibility & also discusses supplemental analgesia. He said his patients are getting good results. He added that he is still writing OxyContin as well, reminding me that he has come a long way with that medication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Broadview Heights	OH	44147	11/7/2012	Dr Samuel said he just wrote OxyContin. He said he actually really likes it for his older patients at the 10mg dose q12h. He said he finds it to be effective & well covered for this population of patients. He said he has tried to write Butrans a few times but has had all of them denied due to Medicare not covering it. He said it seems that all his patients who he wants to use it for are 75 & older because they are the ones on "lower" doses of opioids. I asked what he finds patients 50-60 typically on. He said, for example, 4 Vicodin per day. He added that he would be reluctant to write Butrans for this type of patient because He had tried Butrans early on for a patient who had been on opioids before & that patient had issues with withdrawal. I showed Dr Samuel that a patient on 4 Vicodin per day does fall into the appropriate range of patients & they would start at 10mcg. I also showed that this patient could be titrated, if necessary, after 72 hours to 20mcg. I told Dr Samuel to consider discussing the likelihood of titration with the patient at the time of initiation. Also showed Butrans study designs & results, pointing out that even opioid-naïve patients were titrated to 20mcg if adequate analgesia was not established at 10mcg. Dr Samuel said he would now consider using Butrans in that patient type (4 Vicodin per day). Discussed savings program & asked him to give them a card when he writes the prescription. He agreed.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	11/7/2012	I asked Dr Hernandez what he thinks is the best way for me to explain a molecule like buprenorphine to primary care physicians. He said the best thing to do would be to get 4-5 of them in his office & he would talk to them about Butrans. I told him we are not able to do that. He said it makes no sense for a company to not allow that because it would help sales of the product. I told him that the top priority is doing what is right, not making sales. I told him I am confident that I can increase proper utilization of our products while still following all our rules, restrictions, & guidelines. Dr Hernandez said he has seen a few patients coming in on Butrans, which he added is good to see. I asked if these patients report good results. He said yes. He said continues to have success taking a patient from higher doses of Opana & OxyContin to Butrans. I asked what about patients on up to 80mg morphine equivalent like we recommend. He said those patients do well also. I asked if he thought he would have a new patient or two he could start on Butrans this week & he said he probably does.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	11/8/2012	Showed dr the Butrans conversion scale from IR opioids and titration and supplemental analgesia piece and asked dr how his patients are doing on Butrans? Dr said they are all doing well and it is helping. Dr said he is moving his patients from vicoden and oxycodone to Butrans. I asked if he is had to titrate? Dr said he has taken a few patients to the 20mcg and it is providing good relief. Dr said that Butrans in his experience is not for the severe pain patients because it isn't strong enough. I showed the pain score reductions with the 20mcg dose and graph from the 3015 trial. I asked him to continue to titrate to the 20mcg if patients day they are still in pain. Dr agreed to continue to use. explained copy cards and trial offer with dr and Glenn(pharmD). Provided patient information guides to Glenn, Dr Narouze and Dr Sable to help their patients understand their therapy better and may reduce call backs and improper usage of Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	11/8/2012	Dr Kansal said he does still have some patients on OxyContin, adding that he is not taking anyone new with pain & is getting rid of some of the existing ones. I asked him to focus on patients who he would otherwise be writing opioids for for the purpose of this conversation as those would be the only types of patient who I would ask him to write either OxyContin or Butrans for. Reviewed once weekly transdermal dosing & 3 strengths of Butrans & q12h dosing & 7 tablet strengths of OxyContin. Also reviewed appropriate patient type/range for OxyContin & that of Butrans. Dr Kansal said the problem is that patients want to stay on their short-acting medications. I asked if he likes having them on those medications. He said no. I asked why, then, allow the patient to determine what they are on if he thinks another option may benefit them. He did not respond. Discussed ability to take supplemental analgesia. I asked if he could think of anyone at all who would be a good fit for Butrans. He asked Dorothy her thoughts. She named a patient & Dr Kansal asked what she was taking. The patient is currently taking Percocet 40mg per day total & has Medical Mutual (non-Medicare). I showed initiation guide & showed Dr Kansal instructions on starting this patient. Also discussed titration to 20mcg after 72 hours if necessary. Reminded Dr Kansal of trial/savings cards & asked him to Rx Butrans for this patient & give her a savings card. He agreed & put Butrans literature in her chart
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	11/8/2012	Roberta said she went to a NP conference recently where they discussed the ability to prescribe CII drugs like OxyContin. She also said the expert was talking about giving patients a long-acting opioid if they are taking 4 doses of short-acting opioid per day. She said this expert also said the patient should not be offered a short-acting opioid for supplemental analgesia, but should be given a non-opioid for this purpose. I told Roberta this was interesting & showed her Butrans titration piece. Discussed recommended starting doses & ability to titrate every 72 hours. Pointed out maximum dose of 20mcg & ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia. I showed her that in clinical studies, we allowed only acetaminophen or ibuprofen for supplemental analgesia. She said that was surprising but goes along with what the expert had told them. She also said this expert spoke highly of Butrans as an option. Reviewed trial/savings program. I asked Roberta to try Butrans, likely at the 10mcg dose, for an appropriate patient or 2 today & asked her to give them a savings card with the prescription. She said she preferred status. He just thanked me & walked away.

He went on to say that managed care is really probably the issue. I reviewed Butrans coverage with him, updating him on Aetna's formulary, as well as Medco/Express Scripts. Also discussed Caresource prior authorization requirements & Medicaid Smart PA. He said that actually is good & that about 39% of the practice is Medicare. I told him that would be the main segment that he would have coverage issues with. I asked what patients are typically on when they come to him. He said an example of an average would be someone on 4-5 Percocet per day. He then went on to say that he could actually use Butrans for many of those patients. I told him I couldn't have said it better myself. Dr Kalin said he would like to use more Butrans also when he is trying to decrease the amount of opioid a patient takes. Discussed range of patients. Also reviewed dosing/titration, & ability to take supplemental analgesia, reminding him that in clinical studies, we allowed acetaminophen & ibuprofen for this. He said he prefers Mobic because patients think it is stronger because they don't recognize the name. Dr said he really likes the Q12h OxyContin when he has a patient in a nursing home or in the office who is on a short acting and is elderly. Dr said the older patients like taking fewer pills and the Q12h provides a good sustained level of pain control with does only two times a day. Reviewed case study Sam with dr and he said that he is the ideal patient who he uses OxyContin for. I discussed his use of Butrans and asked who he initiates on the 5mcg and who on the 10mcg. Dr said the 5mcg is for his patients naive to opioids and those who are only taking a couple vicoden or oxycodone. Dr said the 10 is for his patients who typically falls between 4-8 pills a day. I showed dr the conversion chart and told him that he is doing it correctly. Discussed Butrans as a single entity CIII, 7 day patch and if his patients are taking more than 30mcg/day or a morphine equivalent they need to be tapered down to no more than 20mg/day before initiating Butrans. Discussed need for titration and showed new piece.

Pointed out titration interval of 72 hours to 20mcg from 10mcg starting dose. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range, dosing, & titration. Also discussed managed care & savings information. I asked if he can think of any other patients who fall into the range for Butrans treatment who may benefit from Butrans as an option. He said he would try to find more patients & said again that he believes in the drug. PPLPMDL0020000001	Hudson	OH	44236	11/9/2012	I reminded Dr Russ of our last discussion about Butrans & asked him if he ended up putting that patient on Butrans like he said he would. He said he did. He said he actually wrote a prescription for Butrans 5mcg yesterday for a patient who is doing well on it. He said she has chronic pain due to an auto accident 10 years ago. He added that he started the patient at 5mcg & she is doing well, although she is now taking 3-4 hydrocodone per day with it & she used to only need 1-2 doses a day. I showed him Butrans titration piece & asked if he has considered titrating this patient to Butrans 10mcg since she is tolerating it. He said that was actually a good suggestion. Discussed ability to titrate after 72 hours & also showed him how patients in opioid-naive study were titrated to 20mcg dose. Also reviewed use of supplemental analgesia, pointing out that patients in both studies were allowed only acetaminophen or ibuprofen for supplemental analgesia. He asked if I thought he should have her use one of those instead of her hydrocodone. I told him this would be up to him & I only know that this is how Butrans was studied & what satisfied FDA requirements for approval. He said he would love to have her just on Butrans & a non-opioid & added that he is going to call this patient & titrate her to 10mcg also. I asked him to continue to identify Butrans patients & prescribe it for them, making sure he gives them a savings card. He agreed. 	Akron	OH	44319	11/9/2012	I asked dr what he typically does for a vicoden patient who needs a dose adjustment. Dr said most of his patients are strapped for cash and want the lowest best option so he will titrate the dose if he feels the patient isn't maxed out. I asked what dose that might be? Dr said all patients are different. I told dr to initiate Butrans for those patients because it will work and is cost effective for commercial insured patients. nothing else learned
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland Heights	OH	44106	11/9/2012	Spoke with Receptionist, Fatina Johnson, introduced myself and purpose of visit, Re: Pain & Pain Management Education opportunities. Told dr to use Butrans for his patients on tramadol or vicoden that need a dose adjustment. 1 patch = 7 days and a CIII.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	11/9/2012	Told dr about patients he is initiating on Butrans for patients already on opioids. Read from main visaid about tapering the dose of other opioids for up to 7 days for no more than 30mg of morphine a day. Dr said that is good information to know so patients don't go through withdraw when they are on 4 or more vicoden a day.
	Akron	OH	44310	11/12/2012	Told dr about Aetna coverage status change to 2nd tier. Char said they do have some Aetna patients and dr said the usage must be picking up if it is now preferred on Aetna. 	Parma	OH	44129	11/12/2012	Dr Gliottoli said he thinks he has given Butrans to more patients, or tried to at least, but they have not been able to use them. I asked if there was any possibility that these are Medicare or Medicaid patients. He said he knows better than to give the cards to those patients & they were commercially insured. I spoke with Jaz who said she has not had any patients complain or call about not being able to get Butrans, so she was not sure what he was talking about. I asked Dr Gliottoli to start appropriate patients at 10mcg Butrans (those who are taking 15-40mg hydrocodone or oxycodone per day) & then assess after 3 days to determine if titration to 20mcg should be done. He said he would do this. He said he still has a lot of patients on OxyContin as well & he thinks it is good for the right person. He asked what is going to happen with medications/savings programs under the new healthcare system. I told him I do not know.

He said they are all patients who had been on Butrans for over a month, doing fine, but then suddenly they started to get these application site skin reactions. He said one of the patients had a more severe reaction, developing blister-like vesicles. I showed him section 5.11 in the FPI & showed him that in rare occasions, this has been reported. He said he discontinued all the patients, although some of them were getting good pain relief. He said they did not want to continue. I asked what patients are on before he gives them Butrans he said either Percocet or Vicodin. I asked how much. He said it depends. I asked if there is a limit to how much they are taking when he will start them on Butrans. He did not answer. He said he starts almost everyone at 5mcg & rarely has to change the dose. He told me about a patient who was taking Percocet who he started on Butrans. This patients called back stating that they wanted their Percocet back & didn't like the Butrans. Dr Ortega said he took the patient off Butrans. I showed titration piece, pointing out that Butrans can be titrated after 72 hours. I asked if he would titrate patients who are tolerating Butrans but not getting adequate relief instead of discontinuing. He agreed to try that. He said he likes OxyContin & uses it for patients for about a 6 month period following a surgery.
PPLPMDL0020000001	akron	OH	44333	11/12/2012	Spoke to dr about Butrans titration and use of supplemental analgesia. Dr said his one patient on Butrans he has had to titrate to the 20mcg. He also said he is taking 3-4 vicoden 5/500 a day and his pain is getting worse. Dr said the patients has cancer. I told dr that he has maxed out on the Butrans dose and that OxyContin is the option his patients needs. I told dr about dosing, indication, CII, and approximate conversion ratio for hydrocodone.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	11/12/2012	Dr agreed that OxyCotin is going to be prescribing for this patient and thanked me for suggesting it. I gave managed care updates for Butrans and told dr about titration with OxyCotin in every 1-2 days. Showed dr the titration and supplemental analgesia piece and showed him how to properly initiate Butrans for a patient on a short acting opioid. Told dr that if patients need something to help for breakthrough pain he can use opioids or non opioid analgesics. Dr said he likes Butrans and asked if it is on Medicare yet. I told dr no but it just got picked up preferred on Aetna. Ruth said they have many patients with Aetna patients. Told Ruth and dr about the copay and trial offer cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	11/12/2012	I showed Jason the piece on titration and supplemental analgesia. I discussed with him the importance on correct initiation dose and the need for titration at 72 hours. I told him about supplemental analgesia with opioid and non opioid analgesics.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	11/12/2012	I gave dr the new piece on titration and use of supplemental analgesia. I told dr to titrate patients every 3 days when they tell you the need for more analgesia is warranted and/or they tell you they have had to increase breakthrough analgesia medicines. Dr said his patients are doing well and said he titrates....nothing else learned
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	11/12/2012	Met with Nurse Educator, Merri Bunge, discussed Pain & Pain Management education/resource opportunities. I reviewed with her the different types of in-services that I could present and gave her handouts on PAP (medication routes & delivery systems booklet, comfort assessment journal, defining key terms in Pain Management, and the USB handout). She is interested in in-services, but prior, is requesting a list of educational topics and asked to review the power point presentations that would be used, if any. Merri said, "I'm not going to copy them, I just want to review the material that is going to be presented, because in the past we have had some terrible speakers." Merri also stated, "we have our own education classes and CEU's throughout the year." She said that she will be working on next years calendar and would not have me present anything until after the first of the year. She wants to talk with the D.O.N., Denise Trun to get her thoughts and also with Bernita Munger the head of Hospice @ Menorah Park to confirm her needs as well. I said that I would be more than happy to meet with them, if necessary. She thanked me for coming nd said that she will wait to hear back from me. They have their own in-house pharmacy. I confirmed the # of beds: 360 total, which include 80% LTC, 70 dementia and 2 sub-acute units(Rehab/short term care). Merri stated, "68% of their residents are medicated with the balance being a mixture of medicare/commercial payors."

He said when we get Medicare coverage he can probably find more patients for it. Re-directed him to appropriate patients aged 50-60 who have insurance through work, who meet the indication. He said he will do his best.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/13/2012	Dr Taylor said she "tried" to prescribe Butrans recently. I asked her what happened. She asked me why patients don't want to try a 7 day medication. I asked what her thoughts were. She said she thinks they do not believe it will really work for 7 days. She said they just want their pills. I asked her why she is allowing her patients to make that decision for her, the physician. She said she is not going to give patients an option anymore & will just insist they try Butrans for at least a month. I asked her what patients who have BWC or commercial insurance really have to lose by doing that. She said nothing. I told her that was a good idea. I also told her I wanted to re-enforce her belief in Butrans as well & showed her clinical data from Butrans trials. I pointed out that patients in opioid-experienced studies were not necessarily responding sub-optimally to their current medication regimen & showed inclusion criteria & clinical background, pointing out 62% of patients on hydrocodone & 21% on oxycodone. Dr Taylor said she does believe in long-acting opioids for chronic conditions & said again she is going to insist on a Butrans trial. Discussed titration ability every 72 hours & maximum dose of 20mcg as well as supplemental analgesia. I asked her to counsel patients on Butrans, letting them know about the possibility of titration after 3 days. Dr Taylor committed to trying Butrans on appropriate patients. Reviewed 7 strengths of OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	11/13/2012	Re-enforced OxyContin's favorable Medicare D coverage with Dr Zaldi, showing him the corresponding formulary grid. He said he has had a lot of success over the years with OxyContin. I asked what he likes about it. He said not only do patients get good results, but it is more well-known & patients also find it to be less expensive since it has been out quite a while now. I agreed that formulary access with OxyContin in broad & discussed savings program, including usage for cash patients. I asked Dr Zaldi what strengths he uses most of. He said mostly 20-40mg & added that he has been using more 10 & 15mg lately as well. Showed 7 tablet strengths. Dr Zaldi said he doesn't think primary care physicians know what they are doing when treating pain & they often don't do the right thing. I asked if he has seen an increase in referrals lately. He said he has. Discussed Butrans appropriate patient type/range & importance of appropriate patient selection. Also discussed setting appropriate patient expectations & having open communication. I asked Dr Zaldi what his comfort level was with buprenorphine as a molecule. He said he has never had experience with it & it doesn't seem like it would be effective in treating patients like his who are already on opioids. Showed range of patients & showed clinical background inclusion
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	11/13/2012	Pointed out intermediate strengths of OxyContin to Dr Diab, asking if he uses these. He said, "yes, very good" & then walked into a room. Spoke to dr and outlines trial card importance and explained eligibility for copay cards. I reminded dr that he was excited to learn that Butrans is covered on Caresource with a PA. Explained PA requirement again and dr said he understands and sounds like a quick and easy PA. I asked dr to continue looking for Butrans patients that need a dose adjustment or those not tolerating IR opioids. Dr said he continue to look for the right patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/13/2012	Myra said she has been using more Butrans lately, or trying to at least, but one of the patients was vomiting when she was on Butrans, so she discontinued them. I agreed that Butrans might not have been right for this patient. She said another patient was unwilling to try Butrans because he said he had tried patches before & they did not stick to him. Myra said other patients have said they just want their pills back. I asked what she does then. She said she is so busy, she just gives them what they want. I asked Myra what her thoughts were on titrating the patient's Butrans dose as long as they are tolerating the molecule. I asked if she thinks it could be more of a dosing failure than a medication failure. She said this is a good point, but she is just so busy & it takes more time to discuss Butrans than to just give them what they are asking for. I asked if she feels that giving them what they are asking for is the optimal clinical choice for patients. She said she would rather them stay on Butrans. I told her she is the practitioner, not the patient. She & Dawn said they would start titrating Butrans when a patient is tolerating it but saying it is not working or asking for their pills back. Showed titration piece, discussing titration interval of 72 hours & maximum dose of 20mcg.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/13/2012	Delivered to Dr Ortega the DVD's on Meditation, Thai Chi, & Qi Gong that I had told him about. He said he had told some patients about them & they were very interested in viewing them, so he was very appreciative. Dr Ortega also said that one of his patients who he had on Butrans who had moved away ended up moving back & was very happy to be back on Butrans. Dr Ortega said he actually just wrote that patient a prescription today. Reminded him that when he starts a patient on Butrans, he can titrate them to the next highest dose after 72 hours like we recently discussed. He said he will keep that in mind when he has follow-up with patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	11/13/2012	Spoke with Dave & showed Butrans 3 strengths & reviewed once weekly transdermal dosing. He said he has filled maybe one or two prescriptions for Butrans. Showed savings cards for Butrans & OxyContin & reviewed eligibility requirements for usage. Good discussion with dr about Both products. I asked what her typical algorithm is for patients that tell her they are in pain. Dr said that she will start with an over the counter analgesic like ibuprofen or Tylenol. Dr said if those cant control pain she will move to Ultram. I told dr that she should initiate Butrans for the Ultram patient that requires more. I explained the Emma case study along with the approximate conversion chart and titration and supplemental analgesia piece. Dr said that she can think of about 5 patients that Butrans would fit. Dr said one patient is on vicoden for spinal stenosis and is in chronic pain. Dr said that the patient has been complaining about being in pain lately and dr said she does not want to move her up on vicoden. Dr said Butrans would fit nicely for her. I reviewed the taper dose of IR opioids for up to 7 days to a dose no greater than 30mg of morphine/day before initiating Butrans. Dr said she will prescribe Butrans.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Warrensville Heights	OH	44122	11/14/2012	Quick call- Showed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths & asked Dr Gulati to consider an intermediate strength of OxyContin (15, 30, or 60mg), if appropriate, when he is titrating a patient's dose. He said he would. Reviewed Butrans once weekly transdermal dosing for appropriate patients with moderate to severe chronic pain. He said he would keep it in mind & the left. Spoke with Kim, his MA, who said she wanted to try Butrans, but her insurance plan's co-pay was very high & they required prior authorization. I asked what plan. She said Aetna. I updated her on Aetna's formulary change for Butrans, as tier 2 preferred. She asked for trial/savings cards. Showed her each of them & discussed usage & eligibility.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	11/14/2012	I told dr to continue to look for patients uncontrolled or cant tolerate IR opioids and need a dose adjustment. I showed the Ae's for Butrans as asked her what she thought about the incidence of constipation with Butrans. Dr said it is lower and she likes that compared to the oral meds. Dr said but patients who are used to oral medications are used to the constipation and are willing to continue. I asked if she has provided an overview of Butrans to those patients? Dr said she has not but will try and do so. Dr is still skeptical about coverage. I told her to look for patients with commercial insurance and explained trial offer and copy cards.

I told him I do & reminded him that he had told me that he was going to try to find patients for Butrans. He said he is thinking of someone in particular right now. He said he wants to use it for his elderly patients. I told him that while clinically older patients may be good candidates for Butrans, managed care with Medicare can be difficult. I asked him what about elderly patients makes him want to use Butrans. He said many of them have osteoarthritis. I asked what about patients like that who are aged 50-60, with insurance through work. Reviewed favorable commercial insurance coverage & savings/trial cards. I asked if he has patients like this. He said he might have one. I told him that is a great place to start. He said he would try it for that patient. Reviewed dosing/titration.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	11/14/2012	Spoke to pharmacist and technician about Butrans appropriate starting dose, how to titrate and use of supplemental analgesia. Used case studies with Emma and William. Dr said that she sees how Butrans would work well for those patients and said she was concerned about patients already on opioids going through withdraw when Butrans is initiated. I read the section from the main visad about needing to taper those dose for up to 7 days to no more than 30mg/day or a morphine equivalent. Dr said she understands and will look for patients with commercial insurance.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/14/2012	I invited Dr Chagin to the upcoming Akron Butrans dinner program, giving him an invitation. I asked what the chances are that he can attend. He put a star on it & said he would like to attend & that as of right now, I can consider him as attending. He said to follow-up & I agreed. PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44125	11/14/2012	I asked Dr Moufawad what he thinks is the best way for me to describe/explain buprenorphine to primary care physicians who don't understand it is. He said physicians are afraid of Butrans because they are too lazy to think about how it works & they just do whatever their patients want. He went on to say that he does not think they understand how to initiate Butrans. He suggested that part of the dinner program presentations be spending much more time going over how to start patients on Butrans & on appropriate dosing & titration. He said there should be a lot of time spent on it because these physicians need to be walked through multiple examples of how to initiate/titrate various patients on Butrans. He said otherwise, they don't give a lot of thought during the presentation about it & then are not as likely to use it in the real world because they don't really understand what to do. He said even early on when he started patients on Butrans, if they called back & said it didn't work, he was likely to put them back on their oral medications. He said now that he has a thorough understanding of the medication, he would titrate the patient until efficacy was reached. I told him he made a good point & let him know I would see if this is a suggestion we can submit. Dr Moufawad said he just wrote OxyContin for a patient & gave them a savings card because they had some sort of third-party insurance.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	11/14/2012	I told dr to ensure to titrate patients on Butrans as early as 3 days after current dose is initiated. I told dr to look for signs of increased pain such as having to increase the amount of breakthrough pain meds or pain scale score is still above a moderate level. Dr said he has titrated a couple of patients from the 5 to the 10mcg and they are doing much better. Provided an invite to the Butrans program on 12/12 and he said he loves Ken Stewarts and may attend. I told dr to use his Butrans experience kits.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	11/14/2012	Stopped Dr Jack with Butrans titration piece & pointed out 3 strengths. Also let him know that Butrans has a titration interval of every 72 hours with a maximum dose of 20mcg. He said he's sure he will eventually write it. I told him he has been saying that for 2 years. Showed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths, but he just walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	11/14/2012	Spoke to dr about titration of Butrans and use of supplemental analgesia. Dr said that he just titrated Butrans in an elderly woman from 5 to 10mcg. Dr asked me if the patients needs more than 10mcg if the 20mcg would be too much? I told dr that it is his call when he evaluates the patient and that he should titrate if the patient is still in pain and asks for more short acting opioids for breakthrough pain. Dr said he will titrate to the 20mcg if necessary and understands that the patient is elderly and a bit frail. I spoke to dr Vucetic about his patient he initiated on Butrans and the patient did not get the experience kit. I told dr that the kits are for new Butrans patients only and if the patient already filled the prescription that the kits may not work. Dr said he understood and will ensure to give them out at the point of prescription.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	11/14/2012	Followed up with dr about the patient with Buckeye insurance he wanted to initiate Butrans for. I told him Brian did a great job completing the Buckeye PA but it was declined. Spoke to dr about how the PA criteria for Buckeye is out of wack and dr agreed. I showed dr the Butrans approximate conversion scale and told him to continue looking for his existing patients on Ultram or vicoden that need a dose adjustment. I told him to initiate Butrans for those patients and showed him the doses to approximate. I also told him to look for insured patients to improve the success factor of coverage. Explained trial cards and copy cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	11/14/2012	Dr Hernandez told me how much his patients like & appreciate Butrans. He went on to tell me about various patients who he has switched from other medications successfully to Butrans. He asked if higher strengths will be coming out. I told him that now 20mcg is the highest strength & that I know no details of plans for other strengths at this time. HE said it would be helpful to have a 40mcg. I reminded him that when we studied 2 of the 20mcg patches together, there was an increased risk of QTC interval prolongation seen. He said he has patients on 20mcg patches & has no issues with that because Suboxone is dosed much higher than Butrans. I reminded him again that 20mcg is the highest dose & that it is not recommended to do what he is doing. He said he knows. I asked if any of those patients are OxyContin candidates at a low dose. He said he doesn't want them on OxyContin for long periods of time & that he would rather keep them on Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Munroe Falls	OH	44262	11/14/2012	I told Dr about the new Aetna coverage on 2nd tier with Butrans. Dr said she would keep me in the loop with the patients response to Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	11/15/2012	Showed Dr Myton-Craig the 3 strengths of Butrans & positioned Butrans 10mcg for appropriate patients who are taking between 15-40mg hydrocodone per day, reminding her that the patient can take supplemental analgesia if necessary & can be titrated after 3 days to 20mcg. Reviewed 7 tablet strengths of OxyContin for individualization of dosing. She just walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	11/15/2012	Spoke with doctor about Butrans initial starting dose, titration, supplemental analgesia, appropriate patient types for Butrans and managed care. I asked dr if she has any reservations for using Butrans in her practice? Dr said she really does not but said that she already does not use many opioids in her practice. I asked her to also consider using Butrans for her opioid naive patients. Dr said she can see using Butrans for some patients on Cox 2 inhibitors who need more analgesia. I gave quick review of opioid naive trial. Dr said she will try to remember to use it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Chagrin Falls	OH	44022	11/15/2012	Spoke w/ receptionist Kelley, introduced myself and purpose of visit, Re: Pain & Pain management education opportunities. She stated, " Surveyors are on the premises, D.O.N., Janet Johnson is not available." Left BC and PAP handouts.

Dr said he would try and does think it would work well but needs to remember it. I told dr to take the approximate conversion scale and a information guide to help. I asked dr if he would keep them on his desk. Dr said he will and will try to use.

Discussed savings opportunities & eligibility requirements for usage of Butrans & OxyContin programs.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/16/2012	I told Dr Salama I was concerned that his interest & use in Butrans has faded & that my goal was to revive that interest once again. I told him I planned to do that by showing him clinical trial data. He said he does not need data to like Butrans. He said he likes Butrans a lot & that the only thing that has been problematic is insurance coverage. I reviewed recent Aetna win for Butrans & also reviewed BWC, Medco/Express Scripts, Medicaid/Caresource prior authorization requirements. He said perhaps he had tried to use it too early when it came out because he started writing what he considered a lot of it & it seemed to always get rejected by insurance. He said he was not aware of the Caresource/Medicaid requirements, but that does help. He added that he did used to try to write it more & that he will start writing it again since I have helped him with this information. Dr Salama said clinically, he would prefer patients be on Butrans than many of the oral medications they are on. He also said that one thing that is difficult is that some patients are not really "failing" their current medication, so often times, insurance makes it very difficult. I told him his path of least resistance will be commercial insurance & reviewed trial/savings cards. I asked if he could start some new patients on Butrans if they are appropriate candidates. He agreed to do this, saying again he would like to have many more patients on Butrans. I committed to following-up with him & his staff.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	11/16/2012	I asked dr if he has read the information on Butrans that I left him after our last conversation? I asked dr if he will use it clinically? Dr said he will try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	11/19/2012	Discussed with dr his patients current status on Butrans. Dr said the last patient he initiated on Butrans was the 5mcg and titrated to the 10mcg. Patient called in and said Butrans was help a lot but it cost too much $$ and he wanted something else. Patients was started on percocet. I asked dr if the patient had commercial insurance? Dr Stetler said he did but his insurance wasn't very good and it was about $40-50 a month after the copy card. I discussed appropriate patients for Butrans using the case studies, inclusion/exclusion criteria, and approximate conversion chart. Dr said that his patient base is limited but he will continue to use it because he has seen it work clinically.

Used case studies of Emm and William to discuss patients appropriate for Butrans. Dr Azem said she starts almost all patients on the 5mcg regardless of the dose of short acting. Dr said she liked to see the conversion chart and said she realized that some of her patients should have initiated on the 10mcg. Dr said she wanted those charts off the initiation and titration guide. Dr said she also did not know she could have patients take non opioid analgesics for breakthrough pain and liked that option much better. I asked dr to look for patients like Emma or William who need a dose adjustment. Instead of adjusting on the short acting, initiate Butrans if the patient meets the indication. Discussed trial cards, copy cards, Butrans Experience program, and managed care plans with Aetna. Dr said she ill use more.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	11/21/2012	Dr Moufawad said everything is still going well with Butrans but he wanted to talk to me about OxyContin. He said he has noticed that many times, surgeons of various specialties will start patients on long-acting opioids like OxyContin after their surgery & then just keep the patient on that what seems like indefinitely. He said sometimes the patient ends up being referred to him or other pain management. Dr Moufawad said the goal of surgery should be to decrease or eliminate the need for narcotics to control pain. I agreed that the goal should be the least amount of opioid possible that is appropriate for a patient, adding that that will obviously vary depending on the patient & their diagnosis. I showed OxyContin FPI pointing out that OxyContin should not be used for the first 24 hours post-op. He said it just seems like the surgeons start patients without any type of exit strategy & added he wishes this would not occur. Dr Moufawad said he appreciates my responsible promotion of my medications & that I ask only for appropriate patients, adding that not all representatives choose to take an ethical approach. <font color=

She saw my Butrans literature & said she does think Butrans is a good option for patients who need long-term pain control. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients in the treatment range & showed 3 doses with titration ability every 72 hours. Positioned OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone for appropriate patients. I asked if he is utilizing the savings cards (8 trial cards for Butrans). He said he doesn't seem to really give them out as much because most of his patients have BWC. I asked what strengths OxyContin he uses mostly. He said he finds that usually the 10 or 15mg are sufficient for his patients, reminding me that he has fewer patients on OxyContin now because he uses so much Butrans. I asked if he typically adjusts a patient's medication on their first visit. He said if they need it he does.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44122	11/21/2012	Had call with Timia and MBK regarding educational programs. Timia is interested in scheduling a series of programs with their Team and others. She'd like to pair up topics to present live and via webinar for the CMs who work remotely. She asked that we send her dates we're not available through July.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44122	11/21/2012	The feedback from the LLE program was very positive and they had a high turnout rate. Conference call held with Ms. DelPrete-Brown to discuss interest in a Purdue Pharma non-accredited educational program for the case managers with Care Source. There are currently over 400 case managers at the Care Source locations across the state of Ohio (4 regions, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland and Dayton). Virtual programs (webinars) work well. Pain and risk management topics are of interest to the group. Reviewed the FACET modules as possible topics. Requested that I forward a copy of each FACET module (as handouts, PDF files) for Care Source to review. Care Source is also interested in the "Care of the Person with Chronic Pain" program. The plan is to schedule a series of educational webinars during 2013 (likely start in January). The plan is aware that these are non-accredited programs. Full disclosure for M. Kowalski was provided verbally and a copy of her bio Dr Kansal said he actually has started 2 patients on Butrans since our last discussion. He said one of them was the patient who he had told me about at our meeting & he also found another. I asked if he gave each of them the patient experience kit & he said he did. He said that is all he knows about it so far & then walked away. Spoke with Dorothy who said Dr Kansal really did give Butrans to two patients. She said neither of them has called back saying they couldn't get it or that there was a problem, so they believe this to be good. I let her know I would return shortly for feedback. Reviewed OxyContin formulary grid for Medicare patients.CHUDAKOB added notes on 11/30/2012-Nice work Ashleigh! You are making progress and that has to feel good! PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	11/21/2012	Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone. I asked Dr Sevier his thoughts on treating a patient with a chronically painful condition with q12h OxyContin instead of a short-acting around-the-clock regimen like Percocet q4-q6. He said he does not have a problem with that, adding that if the patient's condition will continue over a period of time, or be chronic, it makes sense to treat them with long-acting options. He said he has been looking for a patient to try on Butrans, but just has not had anyone lately who fits the criteria.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/26/2012	Reminded Dr Taylor of our previous discussion & asked her what was holding her back from just selecting a few appropriate patients for Butrans. PPLPMDL0020000001	Brooklyn	OH	44144	11/26/2012	Dr Keith said the only problem with Butrans is that he really doesn't have many patients with "that degree" of pain. I asked what he meant. He said most of his patients have pain that can be controlled on medications like tramadol or Vicodin. I showed him range of patients for Butrans (also discussing OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients beyond this range), & showed him that patients on some doses of tramadol or hydrocodone may candidates for Butrans once weekly transdermal system. Reviewed that Butrans is the only CII opioid analgesic with once weekly dosing. Dr Keith said this was helpful in helping him better position Butrans. I asked him to try it for a few appropriate patients like this with commercial insurance, making sure to give them a trial/savings card. He said he would do this.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Brooklyn	OH	44144	11/26/2012	Quick call- Dr Silverman said he couldn't stay due to a meeting. Positioned once weekly transdermal Butrans for appropriate patients who would otherwise be candidates for chronic short-acting opioids around-the-clock (showed range of patients) & OxyContin for those who could benefit from q12h dosing of oxycodone. He just thanked me & walked out.
PPLPMDL0020000001	akron	OH	44333	11/26/2012	I asked dr if he initiated OxyContin for that patient he told me about a few weeks ago? Dr said he comes back in another week or two. Provided all key selling messages for both products. Discussed Butrans CII, 7 day transdermal system, mechanism of action, appropriate patient types, initial dosing, titration, use of supplemental analgesia, adverse events, managed care, and trial cards with copy cards. Dr said he thinks it's a good option for patients that are chronic and the short acting don't provide enough analgesia. Dr asked if it can be chewed. I told dr that Butrans is an opioid like all other opioids and it has the potential to be misused or abused as such. I asked dr if he sees himself using it? Dr said it is a good option to have. He said he has not seen patients yet but likes the option. I discussed OxyContin use, indication, doses, titration, appropriate patient types with patient profile

	Parma	OH	44129	11/26/2012	Dr Ortega said he received papers from Purdue about the side effects from Butrans that he told me about. I explained that the company tries to gather as much information as possible about each event to do their due diligence for these matters. He said one of his patients who he had take off OxyContin per the patient's request (because the patient did not want to be on any medication for awhile), is now back on it as of today. Dr Ortega said the patient came to him asking for OxyContin again because it is the only relief he has gotten. He said he prescribed 10mg q12h because he is a known legitimate patient. I told Dr Ortega it sounds like he did the right thing for this patient. He said some of his Butrans patients have also said that it is the only thing that gives them any pain relief. I reviewed titration with Dr Ortega, explaining that if a patient is tolerating Butrans but is not getting adequate relief, they can be titrated to the next highest dose, to a maximum of 20mcg. He said he will do this next time.

I asked Marsha if they have a lot of BWC patients? Marsha said they have many and continue to get more. I asked if she knows that Butrans is covered for BWC patients. She said she did because I told her but had forgotten and she does all the PA's and insurance stuff. I told dr that he should prescribe Butrans to patients on BWC when they meet the indication because it is covered. Dr said ok and it is good to know. He asked for more OxyContin copy cards. She added that when she mentions it to someone, they don't want to change. Reviewed ability to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans & discussed commercial insurance coverage, encouraging her to give those patients trial/savings cards so they are not out anything for trying it. She asked if I was sure that these plans would not make her prior authorize it. I told her only if the patient's plan has some sort of a carve-out. I asked if she would try it for a patient like this & she agreed. Reviewed favorable OxyContin formulary coverage on a variety of plans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	11/26/2012	I spoke to Jessica and Sue about the Butrans patient information guides. I asked if they have had patients ask them questions about Butrans when a new prescription is dispensed or a refill? I asked why he thinks he has not found a place for Butrans in his practice yet. He said "everyone" has pain, but they want Vicodin. I asked if he just gives patients that. He said he does not. He then showed me various compounding pharmacy prescription pads & said that he has been giving patients these instead of narcotics. I asked if they are always effective. He said they are if a patient has real pain. Dr Fedorko said he would try to find a place for Butrans for me. I told him he should do this for his appropriate patients, not for my benefit.

I showed him the slide approximate chart and told him to use Butrans when a patient that has a chronic low back condition and is on Ultram or vicoden and its not providing enough analgesia. Dr said he needs to use it but said it needs to get coverage for medicare because such a large part of his business is from Medicare. nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	11/27/2012	Dr Sundaram said he is just not really treating a lot of "pain patients" anymore. I asked him what types of patients he is still treating. He said is still treating more than he would like because pain management is not easy to get patients into. He added that some of the clinics are making patients wait 5-6 months before they are seen & some are just not even taking patients. He said he has some patients with conditions such as fibromyalgia & various other chronic conditions that he does still treat with opioids. Dr Sundaram said that it is those who he has never seen that call for "back pain" as their chief complaint that he will not treat. I agreed that he should be cautious in who he treats for pain with any medication. He then paused & said, "I have a lot of patients on chronic opioids". He said some are on OxyContin, others on Morphine or fentanyl. I agreed that he has many options for how to treat these patients. Showed Butrans range of patients & asked him to identify a patient in his practice, who has commercial insurance, who may benefit from Butrans once weekly. He just thanked me & walked into a room. He went on to say that he almost put a patient on Butrans yesterday but did not. I asked him to elaborate. He said this patient has cancer that has a lot of pain from cancer & was taking Percocet around-the-clock, but it was not adequately relieving his pain. I told Dr Chagin it sounds like this patient would have been out the range for Butrans & might have been a candidate for an option like q12h OxyContin. Dr Chagin said he actually had called the patient's oncologist & that doctor did recommend OxyContin with Percocet for supplemental analgesia. I showed Dr Chagin the Butrans appropriate range of patients & asked him to think of patients who he is ready to start on an opioid for the first time or one who is in the 3-5 Vicodin per day range. Reviewed CII opioid with abuse/addiction potential & once weekly dosing. Dr Chagin said he is going to come to the upcoming Akron Butrans program. Spoke with Kathi who said she still doesn't understand why Dr Tolentino hasn't written Butrans because she has pointed out several patients where she could use it. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who may benefit from once weekly transdermal dosing of medication for their moderate to severe chronic pain. Showed patient profiles to help her better understand positioning. She said she does not have a lot of patients on pain medication chronically, but would be comfortable having a patient on Butrans if pain management agreed that that was the best option for the patient. I asked if she would always refer someone with pain. She said if they need more than a month of medication, she would likely refer them, at least to get a specialist's opinion. Reviewed formulary coverage & trial/savings program. Discussed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths & q12h dosing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	11/28/2012	Spoke to Dr about re-evaluating his vicoden patients and initiating them on Butrans before they need a dose adjustment. I showed him the approximate conversion guide and asked him what an average vicoden dose his patients are on? Dr said that by the time he sees them they are pretty high up on vicoden. 7.5 5 times a day to 7 times a day. I showed him the scale and told him that the patients on 7.5 5 times a day would be appropriate for the 10mcg dose. Barry and I also suggested initiating them on the 5mcg dose and keeping the patient on their short acting with the end goal of tapering the patient off the short acting. I asked dr to continue looking for the appropriate patient and reminded him of BWC coverage and Aetna addition to 2nd tier.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Macedonia	OH	44056	11/28/2012	Dr Pai said he does actually have some patients on Butrans, but added that this is not due to his prescribing, however. I asked what he meant. He said some patients have come to him already on it from pain management or other physicians. I asked what they tell him about it. He said they all give very positive feedback & all have liked it. He said where, in his mind, Butrans should be used. He said almost as a "last resort" for some patients who he wants to refer to pain management. He added that if someone is getting to the point where he is finding that they need chronic pain medications, he would put them on Butrans & give them a referral for pain management at that time. He said they do have difficulties with pain management specialists as they do not seem to really do pain management anymore. He said they do an injection, then send the patient back. Discussed importance of appropriate patient selection & importance of documentation. Also discussed OARRS. Dr Pai said he has the paperwork to get registered, but he hasn't sent it in. I encouraged him to do this as a measure to protect the practice. He agreed. Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone for appropriate patients who may benefit from q12h dosing. Dr Pai said he has some patients on OxyContin. Dr said she gave the patient the copy card and he used it. Dr said when he comes back in she will evaluate his pain level and titrate to the 10mcg dose if necessary. PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	11/28/2012	Spoke to dr in depth about his use of Butrans and the factors that have gone into his limited prescribing currently. Dr told me that he understands and believes in the product clinically and has had good results with Butrans with the patients on it. Dr said his problem with it has been formulary coverage. Dr said he has mostly Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance and BWC. Dr said he knows it is covered for BWC. I spoke with dr about being specific with the type of patient he is initiating. A patient on Ultram, vicoden or low dose percocet that needs a dose adjustment and has private insurance. I explained that ALL patients with private insurance can not only use the trial offer card but use the copy card and pay as little as $15 for 1 month of Butrans. Dr said he was glad to get that information because it will help him focus on the right patients. I told him to use the Butrans patient experience kits and to use more Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	11/28/2012	Spoke with Kimberly, pharmacy manager, who said she actually just ordered Butrans but ended up sending it right back because the co-pay for the customer was much higher than expected. I asked what plan this customer has. She said she thinks it was some sort of Medicare plan. Reviewed Butrans coverage on commercial plans as well as Medicaid prior authorization requirements. Gave her trial/savings cards per her request. Also discussed OxyContin cards. She said she didn't need any of those at this time.

She said she thought the program was an excellent idea & committed to giving out at least 5 kits. Myra said she is really going to start pushing Butrans more to patients. She said she truly thinks it would benefit so many of her patients. She went on to explain that so many patients just don't want to try it because they resist changing & don't believe in Butrans, saying it will not stick for 7 days. I asked Myra if she, as a medical professional, believes in Butrans. She said she does. I asked her if she is conveying that to patients. She said she could do a better job of insisting to appropriate patients that they try it. I pointed out that eligible patients using the trial/savings offers would be out little to nothing to simply try Butrans. I asked her to be a bit more persistent with Butrans, where appropriate, & encourage patients to at least give it a fair trial. Myra agreed. She looked at her next patient chart & asked how she would start a patient who is taking Lortab 10mg 5 times per day on Butrans- how would she taper this patient. I told Myra this patient is likely beyond Butrans. She asked if she could just start the patient at 20mcg. I told her this is not recommended & has not been studied. She said she was going to ask Dr Nickels what his thoughts were on trying the patient at 20mcg. I told her again we have not studied this. Re-directed her to appropriate range of patients & asked her to try Butrans
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	11/29/2012	Dr Hernandez told me about a patient who he just started on Butrans. He added that the patient has given feedback that is excellent & it has changed the patient's life. I asked if this is the type of thing he needs to hear to put more appropriate patients on Butrans. Dr Hernandez said he has always believed in Butrans, so he is always putting patients on it. Positioned OxyContin for appropriate patients who are beyond the Butrans range. Dr Hernandez said he often just uses more Butrans on those patients. I reviewed maximum dose of 20mcg for Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	11/29/2012	Spoke with pharmacist, Rick, who said he does have a few customers regularly on Butrans. I asked what feedback he has gotten. Dr said she discussed it with one of her patients but the patient did not want to change from her pills. I asked dr if her pills were providing enough analgesia? Dr said all she knows is that the patient did not want to change and dr said she will try again next time the patient comes back in. I told dr that he can titrate every three days and patient can use opioid and non opioid therapy for supplemental analgesia. I asked dr to continue prescribing.

I asked her why focus on only new patients, reviewing appropriate patient type. She said she wishes she would have never started these patients on short-acting opioids because she would have rather been able to use Butrans, adding that once someone is on short-acting, they cannot be switched to a long-acting opioid. I agreed that many patients would not be able to transition instantly, but reminded her that patients can take supplemental analgesia if necessary. Also reminded her that eligible patients could try Butrans for little-to-no out-of-pocket cost when using the trial card. She said she would do her best to find someone. She asked about BWC coverage. I let her know as of now, they are paying for it as far as I know. Reviewed broad OxyContin formulary coverage. Mary asked if she can give patients with BWC the Butrans trial/savings cards. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range & discussed proper starting dose based on patient's current medication regimen. Also discussed Butrans as the only long-acting CIII opioid, also reminding him of abuse/addiction potential. Dr Dale said he thinks that all patches are somewhat of niche products because not very many patients like using patches. I encouraged him to encourage appropriate patients to at least try Butrans to get some clinical experience to draw his own conclusions. I asked if there is some time when I could speak to her more about Butrans and she told me no.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	12/3/2012	I asked Dr Gene where he thinks Butrans should ideally be positioned- who is the Butrans patient. He said he should try to use it more & added that he thinks if someone is not well-controlled on a current pain therapy, Butrans could be used there. I agreed this is potentially a patient type & reviewed the appropriate type/range. Reviewed Butrans as the only long-acting CIII opioid & advised about abuse & addiction potential. Spent time discussing proper starting dose & importance of titration if necessary. Also discussed titration every 3 days, ultimately to a maximum 20mcg if appropriate. Dr Gene asked if he is correct in that patients can take short-acting opioids with Butrans. I told him he is correct, also reminding him that ibuprofen or acetaminophen can be used as supplemental analgesia. Reviewed managed care coverage & asked him to select a patient or two for Butrans who have commercial insurance & give them a trial/savings brochure. He agreed. Reviewed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths & q12h dosing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	12/3/2012	Quick call with Gary and asked him if he has dispensed any more Butrans? Gary said he didn't think so but they have the 5 and 10 on the shelf. I showed him the titration and supplemental analgesia piece and discussed that. I asked about his OxyContin dispensing and what he dispenses the most. He said the 10, 20 and 40 are most often dispensed and ordered. Left dosing information on both products.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	12/3/2012	I discuss the Butrans patient information guide to Jason and told him it might help patients with questions about Butrans. Jason said it is nice and he wanted a couple. Jason said he has a steady flow of OxyCotin but slower than normal on Butrans. I discussed the appropriate starting dose of Butrans and need for titration.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	12/3/2012	I asked dr how often he may have patients referred to him on vicoden or percocet? Dr said he does. I told dr to initiate Butrans on those patients on the short acting products who may need a dose adjustment. Dr said that that is what he does and he likes Butrans. I reviewed the titration again and handed him a an initial titration and initiation guide. nothing else learned.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	12/3/2012	Reviewed titration of Butrans every 3 days & maximum dose of 20mcg with Elaine. She just said she has been using it & was too busy to stop to talk. Spoke with Dawn & reviewed managed care information for Butrans & reminded her of Caresource & Medicaid prior authorization requirements. Dawn said both Elaine & Myra have been using more Butrans lately. Dawn said referrals to their office have increased.
	Parma	OH	44134	12/3/2012	I reminded Dr Mandat of previous conversations when he has told me that he feels the ideal place to use Butrans is in patients for whom tramadol is not adequately controlling pain. He said that is correct. I asked him what kind of results he would expect with Butrans for a patient who was not getting adequate pain relief from 3-5 Vicodin per day. He said he thinks it would be great. He also said that he has noticed that some of the nursing homes lately have, when he has requested Butrans for patients, asked him to change it to fentanyl instead. I asked what he does when that happens. He said he stays with what he wants, which is Butrans. He said he is still the doctor. I agreed. I asked him to try to identify a patient who is on Vicodin who may be a good candidate for Butrans & prescribe it for them if appropriate. He said he would see what he can do.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	12/3/2012	Told dr that Butrans is the ONLY CIII, 7 day transdermal patch for moderate to severe pain. I told him that the most important thing before he prescribes is to know the type of patient it is suited for. Gave him the conversion guide and told him when a patient on an IR opioid tells him that it is not working as well anymore and a dose adjustment is apparent, to use Butrans for 7 days of buprenorphine. Dr said he is still looking for patients but he has a lot of Medicare and said it has been tough. I told him to focus on commercially insured patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	12/3/2012	Dr told me that when patients are in enough pain to need OxyContin he will refer out to pain management. Dr said Butrans is a product that he will begin start using. Dr said he has one patient on Ultram with spinal stenosis who he believes is ideal for Butrans. I asked about the patients insurance coverage and he could not remember. I told him to continue looking for patients on any IR opioid that may need a dose adjustment to initiate Butrans if the patient meets the indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	12/4/2012	I asked Rosemary about how the Butrans information kits may be helpful to the patients getting Butrans dispensed. Rosemary said she will take a few and that they have a few patients that get it refilled each month. She said could not remember the doctors but knew that 2 of them are on the 5mcg and one on the 10mcg. I discussed OxyContin copay cards and appropriate patients. The pharmacy still has 4 left.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	12/4/2012	Lynda said she was too far behind to stay for lunch. Reviewed Butrans appropriate patient type & showed range of patients in initiation guide. I asked if she sees a patient who falls into this category, is appropriate, & meets the Butrans indication, she will write Butrans for them & give them a trial/savings card. She agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Barberton	OH	44203	12/4/2012	I told dr Patel to continue to focus on two things for Butrans. First is the appropriate patient who may be on Ultram or vicoden and needs a dose adjustment. The other is which prescription plan the patients has. I told dr to stick with commercial insurance in which the patient can pay as low as $15 a month for 4 patches. I asked dr to prescribe more Butrans. Dr said he will continue to find patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	12/4/2012	Quick call- Dr Sundaram said he didn't have time today. He added that he has not put anyone on Butrans since I saw him last & said he doesn't think he has treated anyone for pain in the last week, oddly enough. I asked him to consider once weekly transdermal Butrans when an appropriate patient presents. He said he would & walked into a room. Spoke with Terry & June & reviewed OxyContin formulary coverage. Also discussed savings cards for Butrans & OxyContin.

Reviewed OxyContin 7 tablet strengths & asked him to consider an intermediate dose for appropriate patients when titrating. Also reviewed patient information sheets with Cindy. She said she thought the patients would like them & be more likely to look at them than the booklets because it is more condensed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	12/4/2012	I spoke with both drs about how to make Butrans simpler. Focused on discussion about the appropriate patient type and managed care. Showed both drs the case studies and had discussion about patients currently on Ultram or vicoden. Both drs agreed that they have patients currently on IR opioids that would be good candidates for Butrans. Dr Adams stated that the problem is that most patients with chronic pain dont have insurance or are on Medicare or Medicaid. I discussed the managed care in depth and asked about the prescription insurance they have. Both drs agreed they have lots of SummaCare, Medco, Caresource, and Aetna. I told drs to look for patients with those prescription plans who are on Ultram or vicoden. Dr said that they see Caresource being the best option.

Introduced Butrans to him & delivered core messages. Discussed Butrans as a CIII opioid with abuse & addiction potential. He said that "by the time patient gets to that point of pain", he refers to pain management. I asked what he means. He said if they need something "that strong" he refers, adding that he will prescribe/does prescribe Percocet "or even Vicodin". Showed Butrans appropriate patient type/range & patient profiles for examples of patient types where Butrans can be used. I asked if this helped him better position Butrans. He said yes. He said he is thinking it would be a good option for a select group of patients for whom other methods of pain management are not successful, such as physical therapy. I agreed that opioids should not be used unless necessary & also stressed the importance of appropriate patient selection & documentation. Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone for appropriate patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	12/4/2012	Dr Fedorko said he didn't put anyone on Butrans since the last time I talked to him. I asked why not. He said no one came in who would be good for it & added that "everyone wants Vicodin." I asked him why it matters so much what a patient wants. He did not respond- he just said he would "try" & walked into a room. Spoke with Mindy & reviewed managed care coverage for Butrans, updating her on Aetna.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44122	12/4/2012	As a follow up our conference call on 11/21/12, and as requested, forward a copy of all the FACET modules (PDF files, 3 slides per page in handout format) and the "Care of the Person with Chronic Pain: Implications for Case Managers" to Care Source for their review. PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	12/4/2012	I told Dr that the path of least resistance when prescribing Butrans is to be specific about the type of patient and their prescription insurance. I showed her the conversion scale to review patient on IR opioids who need a dose adjustment. I then reviewed managed care formulary focusing on private prescription insurance. We reviewed managed care coverage

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	12/5/2012	Reviewed Butrans dosing & titration with Dr Al-Abousi. Discussed appropriate patient type/range, as well as OxyContin as an option for appropriate patients beyond Butrans. She asked if pain management is using a lot of Butrans. I told her a variety of physicians in different specialties have found a place for Butrans as so many physicians/specialties see patients who fit the indication. I showed her patient profiles & asked if she would agree that primary care physicians often see patients like these. She said she would agree with that. Showed her how to choose an appropriate starting dose of Butrans based on the patients' current medication regimen. Discussed trial/savings program & asked her to think of her commercially insured patients, perhaps aged 50-60, who fit the indication & try Butrans for them if appropriate. She said she would keep it in mind, adding that she thinks it is Introduced Butrans Patient Experience Kits to Dr Gigliotti, explaining his role in the program as well as patient portion. I asked what his thoughts were. He said he thought it seemed like a good idea & that it would help increase communication/feedback about Butrans. He added that it seemed like it would give him more information than just a general how the patient is doing question. I agreed that the program is designed to help with communication between patients & physicians. I asked if he thought he would be able to give out all 5 kits. He said he would but added he did not know how quickly he could get them all out. I agreed that Butrans is not for everyone, but reminded him of the appropriate patient type. I told him I would imagine he would see 5 appropriate patients to give the kits to within a week or two & certainly before Christmas time. He said I was probably right. Discussed patient type/range as well as OxyContin q12h as an option for appropriate patients who could benefit from a q12h dose of oxycodone. Dr Gigliotti said OxyContin is still a good medication & that it just has to be used responsibly. I agreed that it is not for everyone & advised continuing to use caution in prescribing Butrans, OxyContin, & all other opioid medications.

	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	12/5/2012	I asked dr if she would attend my event on 12/12 for Butrans? Dr said she can't due to obligations with her children after work. I asked her if she has any apprehension with the product? Dr said no. Dr said she thinks Butrans has its place and thinks it will work well but said that she does not have many patients in chronic pain. I asked if she has patients on vicoden? Dr said yes but most are taking it prn. I told dr that she can initiate the 5mcg dose for patients taking under 3 pills a day of vicoden or percocet and under 300mg of Ultram along with the opioid naive patient. Dr said she understands and will try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44122	12/5/2012	As a follow up to sending the FACET modules (PDF copies, handouts - sent 12/4/12), sent an additional email with copy of my bio as a means of introduction.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	12/5/2012	I asked Dr Moufawad if he thinks his interest/enthusiasm with Butrans has faded. He said he probably has not started as many patients lately as he did before, but not due to anything with Butrans itself, just due to the patients he has been seeing lately. He added that probably 8 out of 10 patients who he starts on opioids are put on Butrans. I asked if the other 2 are OxyContin. He said that actually is fairly close because he does find himself using OxyContin more now than in the past.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	12/5/2012	Quick call- Reviewed Butrans managed care coverage, reminding Dr Salama of favorable commercial coverage, including Medco/Express Scripts, & Aetna as well as BWC. 	Cleveland	OH	44130	12/5/2012	Dr Kansal said Butrans does "not work for anyone". I asked what he meant. He said he gave it to 2 patients (plus he had given it to one in the past) & all of them have reported that it does not work. I asked if he tried titrating them to the maximum of 20mcg. He did not respond. I asked what dose he started them each on & what each of them actually said when they talked to him about it. He did not answer & said he did not have time to discuss it today. He then walked away. Spoke with Dorothy who echoed what Dr Kansal said, telling me that "my drug" doesn't work. I told her that while Butrans is not for everyone, it is effective for some patients. I asked about dosing & titration, but she did not know the answers to my questions. She said people are resistant to change & that they did not like this medication. I asked when the soonest I could come back to discuss this further was & she said Dr Kansal is leaving the country for a few weeks & to try back after the new year.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	12/5/2012	Spoke to Haleen about Butrans and asked her if they have dispensed Butrans and stock it. The pharmacy does stock the 5mcg and she said that they have dispensed it but it has been a while since it was dispensed. I discussed the dosing of Butrans and the titration at 72 hours. Discussed appropriate initial dose with use of approximate conversion guide.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	12/5/2012	Dr said he prescribed Butrans for two patients this morning. Dr said one patient was taking three vicoden a day and the other was opioid naive. Both patients suffering from spinal stenosis. Dr said both patients are over 75. Dr said he initiated the 5mcg for both patients. Dr said both patients had insurance through their significant others as well and cost was not a factor. I discussed titration with dr and use of supplemental analgesia and dr said he has no problem up-titrating because most patients initiated on the 5mcg in his experience do not get much additional analgesia. Dr said he does not have anyone on the 5mcg anymore. They are all on the 10mcg. I asked dr if he sees Butrans appropriate for a patient in his/her 40's-50's? Dr said that patients in that age range for the most part do not have chronic pain. Dr said patients over 65 are ideally suited due to years of pain which develops over time. I asked dr for his continued growth of Butrans and OxyContin. Dr said Butrans is perfect for the style of how he practices.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	12/5/2012	I asked dr at what point he makes the decision to use OxyContin? Dr said he knows OxyContin should be used when his patients are taking too much short acting. I asked dr what is too much? Dr said each patient is different. He said that he has started OxyContin right after vicoden and others when oxycodone is not working. I showed dr the OxyContin the Pat case study and he should consider using it earlier on in treatment. Dr said ok, nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	12/5/2012	I asked Dr Hernandez to tell me a little about what happens when patients come in for their first visit- how often does he change a patient's medication on the first visit. Dr Hernandez said he changes it as early as possible for every patient because he is usually not willing to keep patients on the types of doses that they come in on. He added that he recently had a patient from primary care come in on OxyContin 60mg q12h & said he couldn't believe how high that dose was, adding that the patient had considered asking for something additional for breakthrough pain. I asked why he felt that 60mg q12h was a "high" dose, reminding him that in studies, OxyContin was dosed much higher. He said he just does not think patients need that much OxyContin & said he is OK with the medication, but likes his patients under 30mg q12h. He said he changed this patient to Suboxone, adding that Butrans doses just are not high enough for that patient. I agreed that patient was beyond the recommended range. Dr Hernandez said he does change most patients to Butrans, though, whenever it is feasible. He added that patients are happy with the molecule of buprenorphine.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	12/5/2012	Spoke with Stephanie & reviewed Butrans dosing. Discussed once weekly dosing transdermal buprenorphine. She said she thought buprenorphine was Suboxone & that it was used for addiction. I showed her FPI stating that Butrans is only for pain & is not the same as Suboxone other than both of them containing buprenorphine. I stated again that Butrans is only for pain & should not be used to treat drug addiction. I asked her to make sure physicians/patients understand that as well. She said she hasn't filled any prescriptions for Butrans. Showed trial/savings cards & also discussed OxyContin savings cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Waterford	OH	45786	12/6/2012	W - Continues to have new starts with Butrans. Patients uncontrolled on hydrocodone are normally the patient conversions to Butrans. Likes Butrans as an option for her nursing home patients. I - Review of Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids and requesting a therapeutic change. Review of appropriate starting doses, titration after 72 hours and use of supplemental analgesia as needed. PPLPMDL0020000001	Waterford	OH	45786	12/6/2012	W - Continues to have patient starts on both OxyContin and Butrans. Most recently had to titrate a patient from 5mcg/hr of Butrans to 10mcg/hr. I - Review of OxyContin for appropriate patient conversion from short acting opioids once the indication is met. Review of Butrans for appropriate patients who meet the indication when uncontrolled on short acting opioids and requesting a therapeutic change. Review of appropriate starting doses, titration after 72 hours and use of supplemental analgesia as needed. Review of formulary coverage for both Butrans and OxyContin along with patient savings card programs.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	12/6/2012	I asked dr at what point he decides to move to another product when treating pain? Dr said that all patients are different and if he feels another product will fit the patient better he will use it. Dr said he makes switches if the patient can't tolerate or is not getting enough pain relief with the current product. I told dr to think of Butrans as a product he can go to when a patient can't tolerate or get enough analgesia with a short acting product. Dr said it makes sense. I asked dr if he will use more Butrans in that place? Dr said yes.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	12/6/2012	Quick call- Dr Kalin said he has used Butrans in the hospital recently but not in his office, but he doesn't know why not. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who may benefit from once weekly dosing of buprenorphine in a transdermal system. Dr Kalin said he really should be using more Butrans. I agreed he probably has many appropriate patients for it. He said to come back another day to sit down & discuss further.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	12/6/2012	Told dr to simplify Butrans by keeping two things in mind. The appropriate patient and appropriate managed care coverage. I asked dr if he has a cutoff that he uses for his patients on percocet at which point he would move to OxyContin? Dr said sometimes he moves to the long acting at 30mg of percocet and that it all depends on the patient. PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	12/10/2012	Dr Taylor said she did end up giving Butrans to a patient last week after she saw me- She said she has not yet had feedback from him. I told her it was important for us to discuss titration in the event that this patient needs to be titrated. I asked how she started the patient/how she wrote the prescription. She said she started him on 5mcg because he was not on a high dose of opioid prior to the change. She added that she advised him to take the 5mcg for 2 weeks & then wrote for the 10mcg to titrate him upward. I reminded her that the titration interval is every 72 hours, so if the patient were to call back now (one week after starting Butrans), saying that it is not working or asking for his pills back, it would be an option to titrate upward, as long as he is tolerating Butrans. Dr Taylor said OK. I also let her know that it is possible to ultimately titrate to 20mcg if appropriate/necessary. She said she would do this if necessary. I let Dr Taylor & Mary know I would follow up again & was always available for questions if need be. Reviewed OxyContin broad formulary coverage.CHUDAKOB added notes on 01/07/2013Another example of persistence paying off. Nice job!

Showed him dosing & discussed appropriate patient type/range & discussed OxyContin being an option for appropriate patients beyond the Butrans range. Discussed Butrans as the only long-acting CII opioid & abuse/addiction potential. He asked what the amount of time until onset of action was. I showed plasma concentration graph per his request. I told him we do not have data about how long it takes until analgesia is achieved since that will be different depending on the patient. Discussed steady state in 72 hours with a minimum titration interval of 3 days & maximum dose of 20mcg. He asked about side effects. Showed FPI section 6 & discussed contraindications. Discussed titration with them, letting them know this can be done every 3 days & discussed maximum dose of 20mcg. Linda asked if patients can pay on 2 patches instead of getting a new prescription. I told her only one patch should be worn at a time, not to exceed 20mcg. I told her wearing 2 is not recommended. Also explained to them that OxyContin is a q12h dose of oxycodone, which is the same molecule that is in Percocet. Some of them said they did not understand that before.

I told him that while he may not have tons of patients for Butrans or OxyContin, I was confident that he could find some who may benefit. Dr Fedorko said he is not writing any OxyContin. He said he has only a couple of patients per month who he gives Percocet to & that is it. I asked him what about patients on hydrocodone. Dr Fedorko said he has some of those. He asked me if it is correct that BWC pays for Butrans. I told him yes. He said that might be the only area where he can use Butrans, adding that he is going to stop taking BWC due to cost & paperwork. He said there are patients who irritate him because they call him every month for refills of Vicodin. I asked why not try Butrans on some of them who may be appropriate. He said the only problem with that is that they have to fail "all kinds of other stuff first". I told him this is not the case with patients who have commercial insurance, adding that those are patients who can use the trial/savings cards as well. I asked how frequently someone like him presents in his practice. He said this patient is "too clean" to be real. I told him it doesn't have to be exact, but the point is to show some of the characteristics of a potential Butrans candidate. Dr Ortega said he has had various other patients who have recently started on Butrans & they are doing very well, so he plans to continue writing. He also said his patients are liking the DVD's I gave him for Thai Chi, Qi Gong, & Meditation. He said he always spends a lot of time educating patients & many of them are receptive to Butrans so they are willing to try it. Reviewed OxyContin q12h for appropriate patients taking immediate-release oxycodone around-the-clock chronically if they are beyond the Butrans range.
PPLPMDL0020000001

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	12/17/2012	I told dr Esterle that Butrans is the ONLY CIII, 7 day transdermal system for moderate to severe pain and if she has patients that have been on IR opioid for at least 3 months to switch them to Butrans. Dr said most of her patients in pain are seen more for acute pain and asked if Butrans is indicated as such. I explained to dr that it is not but if the patient is taking pain medicine for more than 3 months, it probably is not considered acute pain. I gave dr the approximate conversion slide guide and asked her to keep it with her to remind her of patient types and starting doses.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	12/17/2012	Due to the drastic reduction of new Butrans starts I decided to provide dr Shah with a Butrans patient Experience Kit. I explained the kit and its contents to Dr and the staff. I made sure that kits are for new patients to Butrans only and explained the surveys and how it will make the patient and the doctor even more in tune with how the patients is progressing with Butrans. Dr said he will use them and likes the idea. I told dr that the surveys will make it easier to ensure the patient is on the correct dose based on how they perceive their own pain level. I also told dr that they will help him decide when the patient needs to be titrated.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	12/17/2012	I asked Elaine to tell me more about her clinical experience with Butrans & what types of patients she has been giving it to with most success. She said she has been having a lot of trouble with Butrans lately. I asked her to elaborate. She said "no one" is covering Butrans & that prior authorizations are not going through. I told her this is somewhat surprising to me based on the plans they see there, but asked her what plans if she could think of any specifically. She said Caresource. Explained prior authorization requirements & asked if she has been trying to write Butrans for patients who were not meeting the criteria. She said no. She said she simply cannot sit after hours with a pile of charts & go through every one to justify her clinical decisions. She said when she tries a patient on Butrans, she has to write them Butrans plus whatever else they were taking just in case the Butrans is not covered. I reminded her that supplemental analgesia is permissible if necessary with Butrans. She said she knows but she has to give them their full amount rather than a reduced amount like she would for supplemental just in case Butrans isn't covered & they have to stay on what their current med is because they only have patients follow-up every 4-6 wks & their office policy is to not phone in any prescriptions. So patients are "stuck" with whatever scripts they leave the office with. I let her know I would work with the office to get her a list of where Butrans is covered.

I asked if he generally continues them on it & he said he does. I let him know I try to focus primary care physicians on initiating Butrans for appropriate patients who are waiting to get in to see a pain management specialist. Dr Hernandez said he wishes more would do this. I asked if he sees patients coming in on OxyContin also. He said he does, but when that happens, depending on the patient & their situation, he tries to get them off OxyContin, with a goal of being on Butrans at some point. He did say that he is willing to keep them on OxyContin if it is only for a shorter period of time.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	12/19/2012	Dr Jack said he probably should find some more patients for Butrans. I asked her where she sees herself using Butrans and she said for a patient that she thinks need to be switched to an ER product. I asked her if she has a mg cutoff with vicoden before she switches? Dr said she does not because everyone reacts differently to medicine but typically about 5-6 pills a day. I asked her if it makes sense to switch to a 7 day patch like Butrans before the patient gets to 5 pills? Dr said maybe. nothing else learned.

Dr said his Kent office is very busy and his patients are all suffering from the same things he sees in Fairlawn. Spinal stenosis, chronic low back pain, cervical spine issues. PPLPMDL0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	1/2/2013	I told dr that in 2013 I wanted him to re-evaluate his patients that present to him in some type of pain and are currently on a short acting opioid or non opioid analgesic. I told him that if he has patients on a short acting for some time and to ask a couple of questions. Is the current therapy the patient is on providing enough analgesia and patient is still in pain? Is the patient tolerating their short acting product? if one of the answers is NO then he should use Butrans as the 7 day transdermal patch for moderate to severe pain. Reviewed doses and titration and reviewed copy cards and cost. I told dr to gain more clinical experience with Butrans and allow the product speak for itself. Dr said he will use it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	1/2/2013	Dr Zaidi said he always doses OxyContin q8h because he finds that that eliminates the need for short-acting opioids plus OxyContin q12h. I reminded him that OxyContin should only be written q12h. He said he would rather dose it more frequently & not have the patient on short-acting with it- he prefers to have patients on only one opioid medication at a time. Reviewed managed care coverage, highlighting positive Medicare coverage. Dr Zaidi said he thought he had a patient for Butrans. I asked him to elaborate. He said a patient taking Suboxone was open to the idea of Butrans. I reviewed dosing & told Dr Zaidi this patient may be out of the appropriate range. He said he did tell the patient that he would have to taper quite a bit to be a good candidate. I asked Dr Zaidi why not try patients who are taking Percocet a few times per day on Butrans if they are appropriate. He said patients do not believe that any medication will last a full week, even when he assures them it will. He said patients are afraid that they won't be able to take anything with it. Reviewed ability to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans if necessary. He said he knows, but he prefers to have patients on only one opioid medication at a time.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/2/2013	Saw dr at window today and told him that Butrans is covered for his Caresource patients with a PA. Explained PA and dr said he had forgotten that and he has many patients with Caresource. I told dr about OxyContin copy cards and 7 doses. Dr said he uses it for his more severe pain patients. I asked him to take his patients on IR oxycodone and move them to OxyContin Q12h. Dr said thats when he moves them is when he knows the patient is going to be on an opioid for a long time. nothing else learned

Explained indication, dosing, patch design, approximate conversions, appropriate patients, titration, and copy cards. Dr said he can see using Butrans but said he does refer out often after vicoden. I asked him at what dose he typically makes that decision? Dr said that all patients are different but around 30-40mg/day. I asked dr why he titrates to that dose if it continues to not provide enough analgesia?
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/3/2013	Dr said mostly cost and options available he feels comfortable using. I told dr that I want to make him feel comfortable using Butrans. Dr said he will give me a chance.

I asked about the ages of the patients and she said that they are all working and in their 50-60's. She said they have most doses. Asked about Butrans dispensing again. Jackie said they have not dispensed any and do not have it on the shelf. I reviewed appropriate patient types, steady state, appropriate starting dose based on approximate conversion chart.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/3/2013	Showed Dr Mike Butrans 3 strengths. I asked how comfortable he felt with Butrans. He said he is "OK" with it & added that he did try it on one person, but unfortunately, they complained of itching with it. I asked if it was local or systemic. He said systemic, which can happen with opioids. I let him know I would let the company know. Dr Mike said opioids are "a touchy subject" & added that he hates writing them. I asked what would happen if an appropriate patient came in to him on Butrans doing well- would he at least continue them on Butrans. He said with Dr Scanlon retiring, he has had this happen, but he sends most to pain management as in his opinion, their condition does not warrant long-term use of opioids. He said he is "OK" with Butrans & perhaps if he has a patient in hospice or something, he would look at that or OxyContin as an option for them.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	1/3/2013	Dr Sundaram told the resident he was working with that I sell the "patch with buprenex". I clarified that Butrans is a once weekly transdermal system of buprenorphine. The resident asked if Butrans is for drug addiction or pain. I told him Butrans is indicated only for pain & should not be used for the treatment of drug addiction. I explained dosing. Dr Sundaram said he very much likes the idea of Butrans & has no issues with it, it is just that for some reason, it is hard for him to actually prescribe it. I asked why that is. He said he doesn't know- it is just that when he is in front of a patient, he just doesn't prescribe. Dr Sundaram added that this year, he promises he will find someone. I told him he probably won't have to look as hard as he thinks & reviewed appropriate patient type/range. Also reminded him of OxyContin q12h for appropriate patients beyond Butrans.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/3/2013	Myra said she has been writing Butrans a lot & giving out Patient Experience Kits, showing that she has only one left. I let her know I would look into when she would get more. Also reviewed trial/savings program with Dawn & gave cards. Dawn said she feels like she gets a lot of managed care pushback from Butrans. She said she has 4 charts on her desk of patients who "couldn't get Butras". I asked her what patients mean when they say that- is it too expensive, is managed care not covering it, is the pharmacy just out of stock? She said she would start asking them to clarify. She asked about Aetna & Medical Mutual as those were 2 charts on her desk. I assured her that Butrans is tier 2 preferred on both plans, reminding her there is always a chance a patient's plan has some sort of carve-out. She called the pharmacy & was told that Butrans for a patient with Medical Mutual was a $274 co-pay, but it was possible that the patient had a deductible for prescriptions. I told Dawn this made sense since it is a new year. She agreed that this is possible. Myra said she is going to keep writing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	1/3/2013	Met w/ Nurse Educator, Merri Bunge to discuss in-service topics. After she consulted with a Nursing Supv., it was decided that an in-service on pain assessment would be a great review. I also offered branded in-services on Butrans and Oxycontin. Merri stated, "we use a large amount of Oxycontin," She asked if I could do an in-service on pain medication in general and what to use when. I explained that I could only talk about Butrans and Oxycontin. Merri stated, "maybe you can do a 30 minute branded in-service for just the nurses following the unbranded in-service. Dr said he likes Butrans because it has proven to him that it does provide good analgesia and has helped him get some of his patients off of vicoden or percocet. Dr said he will continue to use and that Pherin is doing a good job getting patients PA's pushed through for Caresource.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	1/4/2013	I told dr that one of the most important things when using a medication has to be patient selection? Dr agreed. I spoke to dr about the appropriate patient types especially William and asked dr if he has patients like him in his practice? I asked dr if he will at least discuss the option of Butrans with the patients we discussed to see what their thoughts are? Dr said he will.

Dr said he will but he has tried on a couple of patients and it was not covered. I reminded him that Medicaid other than Caresource is not covered and Medicare patients may be difficult. Told dr to focus on commercial patients and Caresource with the PA.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/4/2013	Dr Khoobiali said he hasn't written Butrans for awhile. Reviewed points of this profile with him & reminded him that he has said in the past that he does see patients like this in his office. Reviewed Butrans managed care & range of patients, pointing out that if a patient has Medicare or is beyond the Butrans range, & they are appropriate, they may be a candidate for OxyContin. Dr Roheny said he thinks he will write Butrans in 2013. I told him there is no time like the present if he sees an appropriate patient.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/4/2013	good discussion about Butrans and how to initiate for patient on vicoden. I showed dr the initiation and titration guide. Discussed dosing, titration, and appropriate starting dose. Dr said he needed to know that information and it was helpful to get the titration information and when. Discussed appropriate patients and how to initiate. He said he knows he told me that he hasn't found success with it, but wanted me to know that he has not, nor will he, given up on Butrans. He added that he only gives up on medications if he thinks they will harm his patients. He went on to say that he still thinks Butrans can be a good medication. Dr Kansal said the most important aspects of a medication are #1- cost & #2- drug-drug interactions. He said so far he does not have those issues with Butrans & he just needs to find more patients so he can get better clinical experience with it so that he can see what kind of efficacy he gets. Reviewed trial/savings program & showed him patient experience kits. I asked him to try Butrans for the next patient who he sees who he thinks is appropriate for the medication & give them the kit. He said he would try his best.

I also asked who has prescribed it and she did not know.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	1/4/2013	Met Greg Wood and discussed the pharmacy linked up with Summit Pain Specialists and how it works. Greg said they see fill at least 50% of Bressi, Geigers prescriptions. Greg said he can order quantities like any hospital pharmacy can which makes it nice. I asked him what insurance plans their patients have that fill from them? He said BWC is vast majority, then Medicaid, then various commercial plans. I asked Greg about OxyContin and Summit Pain Specialist and he said they do not prescribe it because of past issues but did say that they prescribe large quantities of high dose percocet and vicoden. Greg said they also do all the PA's for the pain doctors and has someone on staff dedicated to that alone. I asked about issues with Butrans and he said it has been ok but that Caresource has been asking for failure on more than one IR opioid. Told Greg to contact me if he needs any Butrans resources or copy cards

She asked if she was going to have to do a prior authorization for those plans. I told her the national formularies have Butrans at tier 2 preferred, therefore she should not have to do anything other than write the Butrans prescription & give the patient a trial/savings card. She said she would see if she could find someone. Pointed out favorable OxyContin Medicare formulary coverage.

I told him OxyContin is intended only for q12h dosing & showed him 7 tablet strengths. I told him the recommendation would be to increase the total daily dose rather than the dosing interval. He said what if the patient is on 80mg q12h- can he just have the patient take 80mg q8h to increase the dose if they are asking for supplemental analgesia with it being dosed q12h. I told him he could instead maintain the q12h dosing interval & increase the dose from 80mg upward to what he thinks is appropriate. He said he thought 80mg was as high as it could be dosed. I told him that while 80mg is the greatest tablet strength, OxyContin can be dosed higher. He asked how high. I told him it was patient-dependent & that he would want to balance tolerability with efficacy, adding that it was studied in doses as high as 640mg. Discussed importance of appropriate patient selection & abuse/addiction potential of all opioids. Discussed Butrans appropriate patient type/range & asked Dr Paat to consider Butrans for patients who are taking short-acting opioids around-the-clock, if they have a chronic condition. He said he likes using long-acting opioids for chronic conditions because it makes sense. Discussed once weekly transdermal dosing.

He went on to explain that over the last month or so, 3 different pharmacies have contacted him regarding fraudulent prescriptions that patients are trying to get filled under his name. He said that is the problem with "those people". I agreed that all opioids carry abuse & addiction potential, but reminded him that there is a place for them when patients are in legitimate pain & cannot get adequate relief from other measures. He said this was true. I told him those are the patients I would ask him to consider for Butrans or OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	1/8/2013	Spoke with technician who said Kim was on a phone call with a customer, so she could not come speak with me. Showed her Butrans trial/savings brochure & walked her through how the customer would use them, if eligible. Also showed OxyContin cards. She said she thinks it is mostly their older patients who are on OxyContin. I let her know as long as the patient is not on any type of government insurance, they can utilize the card for savings. She said she would give my information to Kim when she became available.

	Parma	OH	44129	1/9/2013	Dr Chagin said he has been on vacation & doesn't think he has written Butrans for anyone lately. He also said he is still sending more patients to pain management. I reminded him of previous conversations when he has told me that he has some patients who he feels are in legitimate pain who he does maintain himself. He said this is true. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who fit the indication & who could benefit from once weekly transdermal dosing. He said he would try. Reminder for OxyContin q12h for appropriate patients beyond the Butrans range.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	1/9/2013	Dr Moufawad showed me his REMS packet for Butrans & OxyContin & asked me if it is obligatory at this point. I told him it is not mandatory, but is encouraged. He said he thinks it is a great program & that higher restrictions on prescribing opioids will be very helpful in reducing abuse & diversion because he believes it will help cut down on physicians prescribing inappropriately. He said many physicians don't realize that short-acting opioids are just as dangerous for abuse/addiction/diversion as long-acting opioids. I agreed that caution & screening should be utilized in prescribing opioid medications & that they should only be used for appropriate patients. Dr Moufawad said he would prefer using more long-acting opioids because there are more "problems" with Vicodin & Percocet. I advised that the same amount of caution be used in prescribing long-acting opioids, including Spoke to Amy about Butrans and OxyContin and asked her if she knew of Butrans and she said she did but has not filled it in this location. I discussed appropriate patients for Butrans and what I am speaking to physicians about when it comes to appropriate dosing, indication, patients types. I asked how much OxyContin they dispense? Amy said tons. She said the most common dose if 40mg followed by 80mg. She asked me if I call on primary care doctors? I told her yes and she said that they see OxyContin from Bonyo, Amanabu, Petrus, Hazra are prescribing the most. I asked about the age group of patients for OxyContin? She said all age ranges from young adults to elderly. I explained the indication, dosing and dosed at Q12h.

He said Wal-Mart's new policy is that they cannot accept any savings cards from reps anymore because it is "a kickback". He added that they can accept the cards from patients when they are filling a script (ie if the patient gets the card from their doctor), but can't take them from us anymore. I asked if that is just this location or all of them. He said as far as he knows it is a new corporate policy & that is his understanding of the policy. I asked if they are able to print savings cards from the internet for patients when they bring in prescriptions. He said they can do that. Told him about Butrans & OxyContin savings online.

She asked if patients can wear two patches at a time, adding that a patient had wanted to do this & she told them they couldn't. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44302	1/9/2013	quick window call with Dr Petrus and Rhonda about OxyContin use. I asked when they get a referral for pain management what the patient is on typically when they come in? Rhonda said they are typically either on one or more short acting products most of the time in high doses and they have to adjust from there. Dr said that OxyContin is typically a go to for patients that need a long acting product for their condition or taking too many pills. Rhonda said that cost is always a factor so they use a lot of methadone and ER morphine because it is so cheap. Rhonda said they needed copy cards and will continue to use it for patients that meet the indication. I told Rhonda to keep Butrans in mind for those patients in more moderate level pain who are in chronic pain as a CII, 7 day transdermal patch.

Dr Gene said he has had a patient on Butrans who did very well. He added that the problem with pain medication is that it is difficult to tell who is legitimate & who is not. I agreed that this can be difficult to assess, adding that they should continue to remain critical about screening patients & should only prescribe for those who are legitimate. I asked if they would agree that there are legitimate patients in their practice who are taking up to 40mg hydrocodone or oxycodone who could benefit from Butrans's once weekly dosing transdermally. Both Dr Gene & Dr Dale said they have patients & both said they would try to find some patients. OxyContin savings program reminder.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	1/10/2013	I told dr to ensure she is initiating Butrans on the appropriate dose and showed her the slide scale. Dr said she still typically starts on 5 and titrates from there. I asked her how soon after the starting dose does she see the patient back to adjust the dose? Dr said about 3 weeks or she will tell the patient to call in if they feel they need more. I told dr that Butrans can be titrated every 72 hours and the patient may not be getting enough analgesia if the patient was on a higher amount of short acting. Dr said she understands and will try to keep in mind.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	1/10/2013	I told Amy that Butrans as a partial mu agonist allows patients to take short acting opioids like vicoden as needed as supplemental analgesia. Titration is 72 hours once steady state is achieved. Amy said that its good to know because patients complain about needing something for breakthrough pain. Amy said she has not filled any new prescriptions. I asked if she has filled any new OxyContin and she said no but does have patients on it. Left her with dosing information.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/10/2013	Myra said she is really trying to use Butrans more. She asked me to go over insurance coverage with her & she took notes again as I told her about formularies. She also said the biggest problem in getting patients to try Butrans is that the patients have the mindset that they need to take pills & they are very resistant to other options. I told her that patient education & counsel is important & that it might take more than one conversation with the patient to get them on board with the idea, but if she does feel that Butrans is the right medication for the patient, it could be worth the time spent. She agreed. Myra said one of the patients who she had on Butrans reported that he felt light-headed after sitting too close to a heater in his neighbor's house. He wished to discontinue after this experience. She said again she is really trying to get more & more patients on Butrans, adding that she wanted more kits. I let her know I have ordered them for her & asked her to be sure to give the savings cards out in the mean time. She agreed. She asked what starting dose she should use for someone taking 7.5 hydrocodone 5 times per day, I showed her chart & told her 10mcg would be the recommendation, also going through titration information. She said that is what she has been doing- starting at 10mcg & titrating to 20mcg. She said she just wishes patients would come down from their short-acting when she titrates the Butrans upward. I told her that would be up to her & each patient
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/10/2013	Gave overview of Butrans and discussed the patient savings cards and insurance coverage. pharmacy extremely busy.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/10/2013	Dr Hernandez said he really does like Butrans. He asked me for more savings cards as he was out of them & he went back into a patient room to give someone one. Dr Hernandez said he is starting this patient today. Dr Hernandez said he has had such good experience with Butrans. He said he does have a female patient who is on Butrans who called saying she is pregnant. He asked me if he should take off Butrans or not, adding that he does not think there is any reason to do so with buprenorphine. I showed him FPI Pregnancy section, letting him know that it has not been studied, but Butrans is Pregnancy Category C. Dr Hernandez said he would keep the FPI for reference. I told him he would really want to assess whether or not the benefits would outweigh the risks. Reviewed OxyContin savings program.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/11/2013	Dr Gigliotti said he has given out some Butrans cards lately. I asked if he meant savings cards or the actual patient experience kits I gave him. He said he forgot about the kits & has been giving just the cards. I reviewed with him the difference between the kit & the savings card, encouraging him to give the kits, but letting him know he is still helping to reduce the out-of-pocket cost for patients by giving them the savings cards. I asked him to identify more Butrans candidate & give them the kits. He said he would. I reminded him that we also have a savings program for OxyContin & reviewed the details with him regarding usage & eligibility.
PPLPMDL0020000001

PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/11/2013	Stopped Dr Jack with Butrans savings card that I got from his holder. I showed him the cards. He said he has been giving them out & asked if they are "showing up". I asked him to continue to identify appropriate patients for Butrans, adding that he probably will even see a few today. He said I was probably right.
	Parma	OH	44129	1/11/2013	Reviewed Butrans dosing & titration with Dr Rossi. Went over choosing the recommended starting dose based on the patient's current opioid therapy. Discussed Butrans as a potential option for appropriate patients suffering from pain from conditions such as spinal stenosis or osteoarthritis, taking up to 40mg equivalent hydrocodone or oxycodone per day chronically. Discussed Butrans being the only CIII long-acting opioid analgesic & advised of abuse/addiction potential. I asked Dr Rossi to think of someone commercially insured in her practice like this & prescribe Butrans for them if appropriate, giving them a trial/savings card to minimize out-of-pocket expense. She said she would see. Positioned OxyContin as a q12h form of oxycodone.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/11/2013	Discussed Butrans with Karla(pln). Discussed indication, CIII, 7 day transdermal patch, appropriate patients and titration. Gave initiation and titration guide to Dr Londorf

She checked their shelves & said they could use some for Butrans. I asked about stocking & she said they do have it. I asked if she gives out the savings cards or if the pharmacists do that. She said they all do, it just depends on who gets to it first.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/11/2013	began to discuss the introduction of the Butrans patient experience kits and Dr said he was really short on time. Told dr to continue to prescribe Butrans for his patients on short acting medications to Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/11/2013	Passed back OxyContin savings cards & asked him to give them to patients who do not have government insurance when he is giving an OxyContin prescription, especially a new patient start. He said that was "good" & told me again about the one patient who he has who is on Butrans, doing well. I asked if he thought he had other patients like that who could benefit. He said probably, but they don't have the right insurance.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	1/11/2013	Told dr that when he has a vicoden patient in for a follow up appointment and they tell him that their pain is increasing and they need more vicoden to prescribe Butrans if they meet the indication. Dr said he knows where to prescribe it and cost is a factor. I asked him where and he said all plans. I told him to prescribe it first then tell me its not covered.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mogadore	OH	44260	1/11/2013	Gave Jerry Butrans overview and gave all key selling points. Jerry said they have filled it b ut not much and said that they are seeing a lot of short acting opioids like percocet and vicoden. I gave him dosing info and copy card info.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/11/2013	Spoke to Mikel(pharmacist) and asked him what experience he has with Butrans? Mike said that he knows about it and has dispensed it a number of times. PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma Heights	OH	44129	1/11/2013	Spoke with pharmacist Carol & reviewed savings cards for Butrax & Oxycontin. She asked for more OxyContin cards as she was out of them. I reviewed eligibility requirements for usage & details of the program. She asked if patients with any insurance can use the cards. I told her again that patients with any type of government insurance (including Medicare, Medicaid, TriCare, & BWC) cannot use the cards, but patients with commercial insurance or cash-paying patients can use the cards. I asked about Butrans stocking. Cathy said they usually do carry it but she did not see it on their shelf, so it was either dispensed or it expired & got sent back. She said she can order it for someone if necessary & get it in the next day usually.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/11/2013	Roman said all his patients with total joint replacement surgeries go home on OxyContin plus Percocet for breakthrough pain. He said this is by far the most effective regimen. He said his tickets coverage is better now than when he last talked to me. Reviewed coverage with him. Also discussed savings program. He & his nurse, Colleen, said that they wish there was a way for the hospital to start the prior authorization process for patients for OxyContin when they leave the hospital because the surgeries are performed on Tuesday & patients go home on Friday, so if a prior authorization needs to be done, the patient is without the medication over the weekend. Colleen said they do not mind doing the paperwork, it is just that the patient ends up having to wait so she & Roman said they would talk to the hospital case managers to see if something can be done. I let them know I would follow up & bring them formulary grids as they both said they would take them to the hospital & they would be helpful. Roman said he has given some Butrans. I asked what makes him try it for some patients & not others. He said if he has someone on chronic Vicodin, he thinks that is a Butrans candidate. Discussed appropriate range of patients.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	1/18/2013	Quick call- Dr Kansal said he hasn't written either of my products since he saw me last. He quickly added that he is sure he will, I just have to give him time. I asked him to tell me more, but he said he didn't have time today. Spent time with Dorothy & Sharon & reviewed savings information for Butrans & OxyContin. Also delivered Intermezzo indication & asked what they thought Dr Kansal's interest level would be. Dorothy asked if it was expensive. I told her like all medications, it depends on the insurance. She said to talk to Dr Kansal about it next week.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	1/18/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Danielle, pharmacist, & asked her thoughts on it. She said she actually has never thought about it. She said she notices patients being switched to long-acting opioids from short-acting but hasn't noticed any switching back or discontinuing. She said it is not that it doesn't happen, it is just that she does not pay attention enough to that specifically. I asked if she ever notices difficulty in patients adjusting to the change of going from a short-acting opioid analgesic to a long-acting option. She said she can understand why it would be challenging for physicians to do this, but hasn't herself noticed anything. I asked about Intermezzo stocking. She said they have both strengths on the shelf but have not yet dispensed it. She said she has heard of it but did not know much about it. I showed her pharmacy information brochure & reviewed key points. She said she would keep an eye out for activity.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Richmond Heights	OH	44143	1/18/2013	I e-mailed Maria Fiarici and informed her that upon returning from the Nat'l Meeting, that I was told that at this time I am not able to present an in-service to the community. She thanked me for letting her know and said that she would remind the D.O.N. on in-services for their staff.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	1/18/2013	Dr told me that after our last discussion about appropriate starting dose that he will now be using the 10mcg when it's appropriate instead of starting all patients at the 5mcg. I asked why and dr said that his patients are telling him that it doesn't work well enough. Dr admitted that I was right in telling him how to approximate the correct starting dose based on the initiation and titration guide. I reviewed the new titration piece and told him to use the 20 mcg dose where appropriate. Dr said he needed copy cards and information guides in his Kent office which I left. -CHUDAKOB's query on 01/19/2013-What happened to the insight. I sounds like you got time with him. Just because he led off the conversation, doesn't mean you cannot direct the conversation to the insight.-REICHL's response on 01/21/2013-My intent was to lead with it but got side tracked with the discussion. Dr was also an hour behind and his nurse was pushing him into the next exam room as we talked. Next time -CHUDAKOB added notes

PPLPMDL0020000001	akron	OH	44333	1/21/2013	Led with the insight statement and asked dr what that would mean to his practice? Dr said that his patient base doesn't support many patients on long acting opioids however since he had joined Uzh that he is hoping to gain many new patients. I asked dr what he does to ensure patients maintain their medications? Dr said that he will continue to do his concierge service to make house calls and he can't think of a better way to hold his patients accountable and have the personal touch. I told dr that Purdue hold many resources that he can use to strengthen the bond between his patients and Purdue medicines. I asked dr if he used any of the BPEP kits and how that is a good start. Dr said he has not but intends to. I provided review of Butrans patients provided OxyContin patient types. I asked for continued use of Purdue products and dr agreed and said I have already been a great help with him expanding his use of extended release products.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/22/2013	Delivered insight one to Dr. Sundaram. He said "once they get a taste, they never want to get off it." I asked what he would estimate the discontinuation rate for his practice is for that type of patient, reminding him that we are talking about extended release opioids. He said he has no idea and that he has never thought about that before. He went on to say that patients get in the mindset that they need to take a pill every few hours for their pain. He said this is what makes it difficult to switch patients to along acting opioid option. I reviewed Butrans dosing, titration, and ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans. I asked if he typically allows patients to take supplemental medication with their extended release opioid. He said sometimes. I asked if he thought this would help with appropriate patients giving long-acting opioids a fair trial. He said he doesn't know. He said that he does know that once patients are on OxyContin, they never get off the medication. I asked if he really thinks that. He said that's how it seems. CHUDAKOB's query on 02/01/2013Ashleigh, remember, that impact comes from the impact on the discontinuation to his staff, himself, and his patients. It really doesn't matter what the rate is because any level of discontinuation will interfere with his ability to adequately manage his patients pain. Show him how this impact his practice. Explain how the tools we have may reduce the impact on his staff. This will be the value you bring. The explain how all of that relates to our product. Make sense?APSEGA's response on 02/04/2013SureCHUDAKOB added notes on 02/04/2013Thanks Ashleigh!
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	1/22/2013	Delivered first part of insight 1 to Dr Diab. I asked him if that mirrors what he sees in his practice. He didn't answer. I asked what type of impact this has on his practice. He just said okay and walked into a patient room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Northfield	OH	44067	1/22/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Stecky. He said he was already far behind and did not have time to talk today. I told him the reason for me giving him this information was to have a discussion with him that would hopefully help me bring more value and resources when I come see him. He said that was good, but didn't have time today. I gave him Butrans dosing information and intermezzo sheet.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	1/22/2013	Lynda came in and said that since Dr. Scanlon has retired, they have had a very large increase in patients who are taking chronic pain medications, sometimes in very high doses. She said that Dr. Scanlon was essentially practicing pain management, and that virtually all of his patients were on some sort of chronic pain medication. She added that none of the remaining practitioners are willing to continue to prescribe these patient's medication. Lynda said that they are referring all of them to pain management physicians from Parma. I asked Lynda if she would mind if I shared an interesting piece of information with her. Delivered insight one. She said that it doesn't seem to her that anyone on any pain medications ever wants to discontinue. She said that they have tried to reduce the amount that some of the patients are taking and many of them become belligerent. I reminded her that while there are people who are not legitimately in pain trying to get pain medications, there are also patients truly suffering who can benefit from opioid medications. I reminded her that Purdue offers many tools and resources to help practitioners protect themselves and their practice from patients who do not have good intentions. I told her about Partners Against Pain. She said she would use this information. Delivered Intermezzo indication. Lynda said she was instructed by the physicians not to get her DEA number, so she has not done this and cannot prescribe any scheduled medications.CHUDAKOB's query on 02/01/2013Doesn't look like she could prescribe opioids if she wanted to if she has no DEA. How do you see her interacting with physicians regarding opioids?APSEGA's response on 02/04/2013This was the first time she told me that she doesn't intend to get a DEA number. I think she would say something if she thought it was warranted to use opioids when seeing a patient as the physicians there still prescribe.CHUDAKOB added notes on 02/04/2013OK. Sounds like you have a good handle on it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Northfield Center	OH	44067	1/22/2013	Spoke with Paul, pharmacist, and reviewed intermezzo pharmacy selling points. He said he has maybe seen one prescription for it. I gave him new savings cards for each medication and explain how each one works and eligibility requirements for usage. He said they always look for each medication to see if there is a savings program for them, so the cards would be very helpful.CHUDAKOB's query on 02/01/2013Remember that Intermezzo is on relay health and with limited savings cards you might want to save them for your physicians or independent pharmacies. It appears you didn't get that many Intermezzo cards. Am I wrong on this?APSEGA's response on 02/04/2013No. You are correct.CHUDAKOB added notes on 02/04/2013OK. Thanks
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/22/2013	Spoke with Ashley, pharmacist, and showed pharmacy selling points. She said she can remember that they ordered it for a female patient a while back. She said she doesn't know if the patient liked it or not. Reviewed savings programs/cards for all three medications. She said they have a lot of customers on Butrans, most of which have BWC.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	1/23/2013	I led with insight. I asked Dr. what affect a statistic like that has on his practice and what his experience our experiences are with discontinuation rates of long-acting opioids. Dr. said that he does not have much discontinuation rates when he moves his patients to long-acting opioids. I asked Dr. why that is an doctor stated that when he moves a patient to along acting opioid from an immediate release opioid he spends a lot of time discussing that option with the patient. Doctor did say that getting long-acting opioids approved for insurance is becoming more and more difficult which makes it more difficult for him and his staff to appropriately place patients on the correct medicine that is necessary. I discussed the option of Butrans and the resources that are available for Butrans and also intermezzo and introduced intermezzo to Dr. and he seemed very intrigued with the low doses Oldham middle the night awakening product. I reviewed indication patient types dosing and limitations of use with Dr. and left him with a Internet so kit as well as discussing co-pay cards and also reviewed Butrans patient types and dosing for appropriate patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/23/2013	I delivered first sentence of Insight 1 & asked Dr Gigliotti what his thoughts were on that finding. He said that opioid medications are difficult & the patients they are used to treat can be difficult as well. He added that converting patients from short-acting opioids to long-acting options in general is not easy. He also said that this is compounded when switching delivery systems, such as a change from a short-acting oral opioid to a transdermal like Butrans. I asked why let the patient dictate what they want & give them what you as the physician thinks is the right medication. He said he wishes it was that easy, adding that patients have a way of getting what they want- either by saying they tried something & that it didn't work or that they had an adverse reaction to it. He said this is just one of the things that makes it so difficult. I asked if, thinking of his Butrans patients, any of them have discontinued. He said if they have, they have done it on their own, not because he has told them to stop. I asked how often it happens that a patient does this without consulting him. He said all the time. I asked if he is still writing OxyContin for appropriate patients & he said he is, although he wishes he didn't have a DEA number most of the time.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/23/2013	Dr walked into lunch and immediately wanted to tel me about how he initiated a patient on Butrans. Dr said that the patient was on Vicodin 20mg and still complaining about pain. Dr said he had good insurance and he initiated on the 10mcg dose. Dr asked if he initiated properly? I showed dr the patient profile Nancy which was very similar to his patient. I asked dr why he knew the patient was appropriate for Butrans. Dr said he remembers our conversations and knew from our discussions that it was a good patient. I asked dr if he gave the patient a copy card? Dr said he was not sure. I explained the new card with the $50 savings and 28 days potentially free card. I asked dr to identify more patients like the last one and to initiated on Butrans. Dr said he plans to. I discussed the statistic with dr and asked him if that is something he experiences in his practice? Dr said life has become very difficult in trying to manage his patients pain. I told dr that I have many resources available for my products to help to strengthen his patients bond with their medications such as copy cards, pain diaries, Butrans rotation video, etc. dr said that is good but he is trying to avoid long acting narcotic prescriptions. Dr said he is getting Percocet and OxyContin names out of his vocabulary because it is causing him too much grief. I introduced intermezzo and discussed all key points. All drs said they are glad to see a product like it especially in low doses.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Broadview Heights	OH	44147	1/23/2013	Spoke with Jason, pharmacist/pharmacy manager, & reviewed pharmacy information for Intermezzo. He said they have not seen anything for it yet. Reviewed dosing & savings program. Also gave new savings cards for Butrans & OxyContin & explained card utilization. Jason said the OxyContin cards would be particularly helpful.. Reminded him of eligibility requirements. He said they do not currently stock Butrans because they don't have anyone on that either. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	1/23/2013	Spoke with Mary about all three products. Explained OxyContin dosing and asked about dispensing patterns. Mary said they do not fill much at this location but do in Springfield where she came from. I explained appropriate patients and new $90 copy cards. Introduced Butrans and Mary said she has not dispensed it and did not know much. Provided all key selling messages and review patient types and initial starting doses. Introduced Intermezzo and explained key points on pharmacy sell sheet. Explained patient selection, indication and copy cards with 5 free pills. Mary said she will use that and sees prescriptions coming. Mary thanked me for coming in and being so thorough with the product information.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/23/2013	Discussion along with dr Wells about his Butrans patient last week. Discussed Butrans indication, appropriate patients, approximate conversions from IR opioids, titration, need for supplemental analgesia and copy cards. I also discussed application sites, appropriate site prep and to avoid external heat sources. Dr said he will find patients. Introduced Intermezzo and discussed indication, patients, driving study, and dosing and dose adjustments per selling aid.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	1/23/2013	I asked the pharmacist which IR opioids they dispense most? The pharmacist said that they dispense a lot of Vicodin and Percocet. I asked if they see the patients continuing to go up on the doses? The pharmacist said yes. I explained how Butrans is a CIII 7 day transdermal patch for patients failing on IR opioids. Explained copy cards and appropriate starting dose. I asked about OxyContin and appropriate patients. Introduced Intermezzo and reviewed pharmacy flash card.

	Bedford	OH	44146	1/23/2013	Spoke with Oleg, pharmacist, who said he has really not seen any activity for Butrans with the exception of one person who had a prescription but wasn't able to get it due to managed care. I delivered Insight 1 & asked if what he sees in his pharmacy mirrors what that statistic says. He said he honestly finds that all his customers generally stay on the long-acting opioids. I asked about patients who were taking short-acting therapies for awhile, then switching to long-acting- does he notice discontinuations there. He said he has not. Gave him new savings cards & explained each program. He said most or all of the people they have there who take opioids are on some sort of government insurance, although occasionally, he does see a 3rd party plan. He said he can think of one customer in particular who would be interested in Intermezzo. Oleg asked if a patient is on Ambien CR if they can also take Intermezzo. I told him this is not recommended. I gave him the FPI for his reference.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Munroe Falls	OH	44262	1/23/2013	I led with the insight and asked dr what she thinks about the statistic and how it may affect her and her practice? Dr said that it is a very interesting statement because she thinks that it is important when a patient discontinues a product to ask them why they stopped taking it. She said she will start to gain more specific information from her patients as to why they discontinued their medications. Dr said that they are having to spend less and less time with their patients due to the demand by the AMA and other health agencies. I told her that I have many resources available for my products that may be able to strengthen the bond between the patient and the medication. Dr said she will take whatever an have. I went into the two case study profiles for Butrans and discussed them both and asked for continued business. Dr said she thinks about using Butrans more and
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	1/23/2013	Spoke with Monica (coordinator at Seidman Cancer Institute) & Val, who had requested OxyContin savings cards for the office. I gave them 3 packages & showed them how the card is used. Also reviewed eligibility requirements for card usage. Monica said they had tried to go online to get savings, but the program was the $70 savings that she said was expired. She said the pharmacist would not help them with any type of savings cards. I asked the to please call me if they need more & discussed scheduling a lunch with the staff & physicians there. Also reviewed Butrans indication, dosing, & delivery system. They said to schedule something to talk about at
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44128	1/23/2013	Completed 6 - 30 minute in-services @ 6am,6:30am,1:30pm,2pm,3:30pm & 4pm for the STNA's on pain & pain assessment. total in attendance was 35. Spoke w/ NE, RoseAnne Howell about future in-services. She stated that she will have me come back, but it will be after the surveyors come. They are expected at anytime. She stated, "I will be in touch."
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	1/23/2013	Spoke to Ashley and discussed Butrans appropriate starting doses and ability and need to titrate when appropriate after steady state is achieved. I asked about OxyContin prescriptions and how often they dispense. Pharmacist said that their numbers have gone down significantly due to reformulation but she does dispense and uses most 20, 30, and 40mg doses most often. Reviewed doses and titration every 1-2 days. Introduced Intermezzo but pharmacist was building a line of patients behind me. Next time.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/23/2013	Caught dr as he was leaving for the day and attempted to recte insight and dr said he had 30 seconds. I gave review of OxyContin patient profiles and asked him to use OxyContin instead of titration through Percocet. Dr said he is not using much OxyContin anymore. Told dr about intermezzo indication and dosing. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	1/23/2013	I led with insight to dr Bonyo and Dr Adams. Both drs said they are doing their best to not prescribe long acting opioids and to refer out earlier because it becomes too difficult to manage those types of patients. I asked why patients are taking so many IR opioids instead on long acting? Dr Bonyo said that he is trying to be very careful with what he prescribes to who and said he needs to be safe. Dr Adams said she sees how Butrans fits in but the managed care is making it hard for her to identify patients. Dr Bonyo said Butrans is a good product and that maybe it can help reduce the discontinuation rate I spoke about. I asked both drs to use Butrans for patients like Scott and Nancy and explained profiles. Introduced Intermezzo and explained dosing, limitations of use and copay cards.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	1/23/2013	I led with insight. Dr said she can see how those numbers would be accurate. I asked why and she said because most patients on pain medicines are addicted and its to the short acting medicines like Vicodin and Percocet. I asked her if this is what she has experienced and dr said unfortunately it is. I asked her if resources that I have to offer on my products could help her get her patients more in tune with the medicine they are on? Dr said maybe. I gave quick review of OxyContin and Butrans and provided introduction of Intermezzo. Dr said she will continue to identify the patients for the medicines I have as I have discussed with her and said she sees
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	1/23/2013	Intermezzo as a good product but if its not on Medicaid she probably won't use it. Nothing else learned. Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Moufawad & asked how this compares with discontinuations he sees in his practice. He said that the insight was quite vague, so it is difficult to draw comparisons without knowing more details, such as from which specialties the data was coming from. He said sometimes a discontinuation is good- for example, if a patient had been started from an orthopedist for a month or so following a surgery, a discontinuation would be a good thing. He said he doubts it is by day 35 & he doubts it is 59%. I asked what processes he has in place to ensure that patients who are appropriate for extended-release opioid therapy beyond day 35 stay on those medications. He said appropriate expectations must be set up-front. He said it completely is patient & case-dependent. Dr Moufawad also said if patients are resistant to his suggestions & recommendations to try a long-acting option, he considers discharging the patient, depending on the situation, because he sees this as somewhat of a red flag. He said Butrans is his first choice as a long-acting option & added that OxyContin is considered
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/23/2013	for patients on higher doses of opioids. I also let him know I am now promoting Intermezzo & that we have started DTC marketing, so he may see an increase in patients requesting it. Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Trickett. She repeated back to me that 59% of patients initiated on some long-acting opioids are no longer on that medication by day 35 & asked if she has that correct. I reviewed that this statistic is coming from an analysis by IMS. I asked her what reason(s) she thinks are the largest contributors to a discontinuation rate of 59%. She said getting a patient to take a long-acting opioid after they have been on short-acting around-the-clock opioid therapy is usually extremely difficult. I asked her to elaborate. She said patients who seem to be on these medications for any length of time seem to have very minimal reason for any pain & they tend to be people who just want to rely on pills to get through their day. She said they usually ask for their short-acting back if she starts them on long-acting. I asked her what she does, as the physician who has taken time to evaluate these patients & determine the appropriate therapy for them, for patients who have this situation. She said she has two choices- she can put the patient back on short acting or the patient will leave her practice & go to a new doctor. I asked if that is business she really wants anyway. She said she would prefer not having that type of clientele. Dr Trickett said she does believe in long-acting opioid analgesics like OxyContin & Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Warrensville Heights	OH	44122	1/23/2013	Shared Insight 1 with Dr Zivic & asked him how this compares to what he sees in his practice. He said he actually does not find that he has many patients who wish to discontinue due to anything other than common opioid adverse events. He said for whatever reason, he does not have any problems with patients who he initiates on an extended-release opioid staying on that medication. I asked what processes he has in place in his practice that he may attribute this perceived lower discontinuation rate to. He said he doesn't know & that he has never really thought about that. He added that he assumed that other physicians had similar experiences. Dr Zivic said he has always had good success in treating patients with some of the long-acting medications such as OxyContin. He said he can't remember the last time someone discontinued. I asked what type of expectations he sets with patients in the room when he initiates these long-acting options. He said he doesn't know & didn't really understand the question. I asked what he tells patients they can expect when they start on OxyContin. He said he doesn't really tell them anything other than how often to take it. He asked me to leave Butrans information for him because he said he thinks he should be able to utilize it in some patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/24/2013	Dr came in and told me he has a patient he believes is appropriate for Butrans. I asked him needed confirmation on as an appropriate patient is currently on Vicodin 3 pills a day but has chronic back pain. Dr said he doesn't want to titrate the Vicodin and thought Butrans would be a good option. I showed him the patient profiles along with the initiation and titration guide. I told him that the patient would be a candidate for Butrans and to initiate at the 5 mcg dose. I explained titration and the copay cards. Dr wanted to know pricing and about cost for cash pay. I told dr that cash patients can use the savings card. Dr said he will start using Butrans and said I did a great job of explaining the product and explaining the appropriate patient.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/24/2013	Led with insight and dr wanted to just get th fact about my products because he said he was very interested in Butrans because he has heard good things about it. I gave dr all the key selling points and focused on the appropriate patient selection and initial dosing. I used the initiation and titration guide, patient profiles, and titration guide to help him learn about the product. I showed dr the placebo patch and dr asked about potential abuse. I told him that Butrans is an opioid and can still be abused like any other. Dr said he sees it be less a usable due to the route of administration and low dose. I told dr that patient selection is very important and discussed approximate conversions from IR opioids. Dr said he will not use OxyContin and would not even engage in a conversation about it. Reviewed Intermezzo with indication, limitation of use, and dosing. Dr said one will remember Butrans and that it has a place in his practice.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44305	1/24/2013	I asked Brian if he has filled any Butrans recently. Brian said he has not but have all doses in stock. I reviewed appropriate patients for Butrans and introduced Intermezzo. He said they have dispensed it a few times. I explained indication, dosing, and limitations of use.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	1/24/2013	I spoke with Sarah( pharmacist) about all three products. I gave her key selling messages for all and asked her if she has dispensed a Butrans prescription yet? She said she has not and does not have any in stock. Sarah also said that they have dispensed an intermezzo but does not currently have any in stock either. I asked if the dispense many pain medications? She said they d but the numbers have gone way down because of abuse. I asked if they dispense many long acting products and she said not too many because most don't get approved by their insurance. I asked which plans and she said most of them. Gave OxyContin dosing and appropriate patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/24/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Myra. She said she just had a patient who she had put on Butrans who reported that it gave him a rash on his face, so she had to discontinue him. I asked what she thinks causes a 59% discontinuation rate by day 35 for patients initiated on extended-release opioids. She said she thinks a lot of it comes down to patients being resistant to the idea of changing or what they perceive as giving up their other/short-acting medication. I asked her if she would say that this is what causes the most amount of discontinuations on Butrans. She said she seems to be having a hard time at the pharmacy level lately. I asked her to elaborate. She said it almost seems like pharmacists don't want to order Butrans for patients because it seems like they are telling her patients that they can't get it in or that it will be very costly. She said most recently this happened at a Walgreens. Myra said it is very frustrating because it then takes a lot of back-and-forth between the office, patient, & pharmacy to get the patient the medication. She also said since it is an opioid, patients are supposed to only go to one pharmacy so that it doesn't appear that they are shopping around. Myra also said getting patients to even agree to make the change is difficult, but she has been finding successes with it along the way. Discussed patient counsel & expectations with Myra. She agreed that she could & would be more insistent that appropriate patients at least try Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/24/2013	Dr Kalin said that since his practice is expanding, he thinks he will find a bigger place for Butrans. Delivered first part of insight, but he got called away to deal with a new patient situation. Spent time with MA Jocelyn & reviewed Butrans Patient Experience Program kits, asking her to remind Dr Kalin to give the out to appropriate patients who he initiating on Butrans. Also asked her to give him Intermezzo information. She said to return soon to continue my discussion with Dr Kalin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	1/24/2013	Led with insight. I asked dr what that would mean to his practice when that happens? Dr said he didn't think that 59% was accurate and that his results are not that high. I asked what he does when patients discontinue their medicines? Dr said it slows down his entire day even though he said he tries hard to keep all that in check. I told dr about how my medicines can help strengthen the bond between his patients and their medicines. Dr said he likes that and then I discussed Butrans and Intermezzo and partners I against pain.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/24/2013	Spoke with Nate, pharmacist, & showed Intermezzo pharmacy cell sheet, pointing out key points. He said he thinks he might have one or two people who get it, but has not seen much activity nor has he heard any feedback from patients who have filled the prescription. Reviewed new savings cards/programs for Butrans, OxyContin, & Intermezzo. Nate said they dispense a lot of Butrans & asked if the e-voucher will work with Butrans. I let him know that the monthly savings will work through e-voucher, but patients would need the actual card for the trial/$100 off first month's prescription.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/24/2013	Spoke with technician, (Joan?), & presented savings cards/program details for Butrans, OxyContin, & Intermezzo. I reminded her of eligibility requirements for usage & asked if she is the one who typically gives the cards to customers. She said usually. She did not know whether or not they stocked Intermezzo.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/24/2013	Spoke with Keith, pharmacist, & presented Intermezzo pharmacy information points. He said he wasn't sure if they have it or not, but he doesn't think they do. Gave him new savings cards for Butrans, OxyContin, & Intermezzo. Keith said they do stock Butrans & he thinks they dispense it occasionally, although not a lot. He said he has not had any feedback on it at this point.

	Akron	OH	44310	1/24/2013	Dr is leaving for India until Feb 7 and did not have time to talk much. I provided quick review of Butrans patient profile Nancy and asked him if he has patients like her? Dr said he does and that he will use Butrans but its tough because its not covered on Medicare. I asked dr if he has commercially insured patients? Dr said he does but those patients are mostly NOT in chronic pain. I told dr that I understand but he probably does have patients under 65 that meet the Butrans indication. Dr said he will look more into it. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma Heights	OH	44130	1/24/2013	Placed a follow-up phone call to D.O.N., Katherine Myers 440-888-5900 to set up appt. to discuss educational opportunities and schedule in-service. N/A, Left Msg. on her voice-mail
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	1/24/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Mandat & asked how it compares with what he sees in his practice. He asked me to repeat the statistic. Dr Kansal said no one discontinues long-acting opioids. I told him that seemed difficult to fathom & asked how this can be, since he has had a few patients on Butrans, a single long-acting opioid, who have discontinued. He said maybe 20% discontinue. I reminded him of multiple conversations we have had when he has told me that it is difficult to get a patient to give long-acting opioids a fair trial because they want the short-acting. He said that is right. I asked how, then, he has a relatively low discontinuation rate for long-acting opioids-what processes does he have in place that assist with this. He did not respond. He said he thinks it is going to go back to how it used to be in medicine when opioids were only allowed to be used for cancer pain. I asked if cancer pain of all types is always more severe than pain from other conditions. He said yes.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	1/24/2013	Placed call to Staff Development Coordinator, Gretta Redus to discuss pain & pain Management Educational Opportunities. N/A, left msg. on her voice-mail.

	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/24/2013	Led with insight to all drs at lunch. All drs wanted to discuss product due to limited time. Discussed Butrans indication, dosing, titration, appropriate starting dose and patient selection. I asked drs if they would use Butrans when a patient is failing a short acting opioid and meets the indication. They all said they would and like that Butrans is a schedule 3 medicine and that it is a transdermal patch administration. Introduced Intermezzo indication, dosing and limitations of use.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/24/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Mandat. I reminded him of our previous Butrans conversations & asked what percentage of those patients who he has initiated on Butrans does he think are still on it. He said he thinks almost everyone & he could not think of very many patients who did discontinue. Reviewed dosing/titration, reminding him that 20mcg is maximum dose. Also gave him new savings cards & asked him to give one to appropriate patients with their Butrans prescription.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Euclid	OH	44117	1/24/2013	Placed a call to speak w/ D.O.N., Kathy Nemeth to set up an appt. to discuss educational in-service opportunities. N/A Left Msg. on her voice-mail.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Chagrin Falls	OH	44022	1/24/2013	Called and spoke w/ D.O.N., Janet Johnson, introduced myself and purpose of call, Re: Pain & Pain management education opportunities at no cost. Janet stated,"we are busy right now, transferring to a computerized documentation system and will be busy in-serving on that." She said, "I don't foresee us being able to use your service at this time." I asked if I could check back with her in the spring. She agreed to me calling her back in Saw dr at window and asked her if she had a minute to talk. Dr said not really and told me that she began using Butrans again after she had some issues at first. I asked her what she is doing differently? Dr said that the last lunch I had with her helped her learn more about how to dose and choose the right patient. I told her that we have a lunch coming up and we can discuss further. Nothing else learned but did speak to Carolyn and asked her if there have been any other managed care issues with Butrans. She said no and that she is hearing good things about Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	1/24/2013	Good discussion around the insight. Dr said that she understands how difficult it can be to get patients to do what you tell them and to take the medicine prescribed. Dr said patients these days feel they know everything and what's best to treat them. Dr said that she knows I have OxyContin since I'm with Purdue and wanted to know if had anything else? I asked dr what her experience with OxyContin? Dr said that she uses it sparingly. I asked where? Dr said for her patients she doesn't want on Percocet anymore. Dr said the transition is easy and most patients like 1 pill 2 times a day. Gave review of patient types and asked about Butransnin her practice? Dr said she does not know much about it. I gave all key selling messages and discussed patient types as well as copy cards. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/24/2013	I attempted to lead with the insight and he started telling me how hard it has been getting OxyContin approved. I asked him for specific examples and he had a hard time sating them. Finished insight and he told me that it is a never ending problem. Reviewed dosing and told him about the new copy cards. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	1/24/2013	First time meeting dr. Led with insight and asked her what that means her practice. Dr said she is too new to experience that issue and she is building up her practice. Dr said if and when that happens it just puts a huge strain on the day and gets her backed up. I asked her how she treats pain currently? Dr said she does not initiate a patient on opioids and that she will start neurons in or gabapentin. Shen she said she moves to opioids if chronic pain persists. Good discussion about Butrans and OxyContin. Dr said she is now tapering off a patient from OxyContin per the patients request but believes it is a good product for the right patient. Gave all key selling messages and asked for the Business for all products when the indication is met.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Tallmadge	OH	44278	1/25/2013	Discussed all three products with Aubrey(pharmacist). Explained Butrans indication, dosing, titration, CII 7 day transdermal patch. Aubrey said she just dispensed it last week and could not remember who prescribed it but dispensed the 5mcg. Explained OxyContin dosing, patient types, conversions from oxycodone. Introduced Intermezzo key messages from pharmacy visaid. Aubrey said she has never dispensed it and said she doesn't see it being used much. I asked why and she said because Ambien is generic and most people will take that. I reminded her of the indication and how it is different. Left with doing cards.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/25/2013	Spoke with Lynn (nurse) & Anita (MA) & reviewed Butrans dosing, delivery system, & appropriate patient type. Pleaded my case for an appointment to discuss Butrans further with Dr Gallagher, letting them know of his prior interest in Butrans & letting them know that discussing it further could help him have more clinical success with Butrans for appropriate patients. Also reviewed Intermezzo indication & asked if Dr Gallagher has discussed it with anyone in the past. Lynn asked what insurances would pay for it. I let her know the best chance for managed care approval would be commercial insurance plans, although there is a chance of prior authorization or step edit. She took down my information & said she would ask Dr Gallagher about an appointment & would get back with me. I left Butrans, OxyContin information sheets.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	1/25/2013	Lisa said that she has a Medicare B patient who was on 10mg of Vicodin a day and wanted more. Lisa said that she did not want to increase the short acting so she prescribed Butrans 5mcg. Lisa said however the patient told her that Butrans was $180 for one month and the patient said he could not afford it. I told her that Medicare patients do have a tough time getting abutrans at a reasonable cost and to look more at patients with commercial insurance.m I reviewed indication, dosing, titration and appropriate patients. Lisa said that she will continue to use Butrans in the appropriate patients and she like the efficacy that Butrans brings.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	1/25/2013	Quick hello at window and gave him the insight statement. I asked what he does when he has a patient that comes back in for a follow up appointment after being placed on a extended release opioid and tells him that they stopped taking it? Dr said it doesn't happen much because he does not prescribe much of those and said, you know that Cliff! I told him that my point with the statement was that the discontinuation rate is high for patients on extended release opioids and my hope is for him to provide him with resources and materials his patients can use to become more familiar with their products. I particular my products. Dr said he will not use OxyContin but can see with Butrans why those things may help. I told him that I want him to become familiar with the materials I have to hopefully make you feel even more comfortable with Butrans. Dr said ok and left.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/25/2013	Quick call- Delivered first part of insight 1 & let Dr Pal this is a topic I'd like to discuss at our upcoming lunch. Passed back new OxyContin savings cards & updated him on the program. He said his Butrans patient is still on it, doing well. Spoke with Jill & updated her on OxyContin savings & eligibility requirements for usage. She said it seems like everyone has some sort of government insurance now.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/25/2013	Delivered first portion of Insight 1 to Dr Roheny & asked when this happens what impact it has on his practice. He asked if that was for Butrans & OxyContin. I told him it is for commonly prescribed extended-release opioids in general, as found by an analysis. He said he had to go. Lorraine said they are transitioning to EMR & Dr Roheny is not spending much time with reps anymore. I scheduled first available appointment, as that is the way to get more time with him now.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/25/2013	Dr Jack saw me & said, "I know... Butrans... write it!" I told him while that was a nice message, I actually wanted to share some non-product-specific information with him. Delivered first part of Insight 1. He said he has never thought about that before but it was "food for thought". He then walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/25/2013	Delivered Intermezzo pharmacy key points to Laurie, pharmacist, & asked about stocking. She said they don't have it & have not seen any activity. Gave her trial/savings cards & reviewed eligibility requirements. Also gave her Butrans & OxyContin savings cards & updated her on each program's increased savings. She said they don't stock Butrans & most of their OxyContin customers are on some sort of government insurance, but she wanted to keep some cards on hand in case a new customer came in with a prescription.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	1/25/2013	Got through part of the insight and dr asked me if he needed to sign. I said no and that he knows that. Dr said if I don't have samples then there is no reason for me to come. Nothing else learned. I left him the Butrans Nancy profile.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	1/25/2013	Provided insight to dr and asked what he experiences are with patients discontinuing long acting opioids. Dr said he doesn't prescribe them because they are too expensive and if they need it he refers anyway. I asked what pain products he prescribes for patients who have spinal stenosis or chronic back pain? Dr said whatever is cheap. I asked him if cheap is always the best option? Dr paid most of the time because his patients can't afford much else. I asked if he has any patients with commercial insurance? Dr said not many. I told him that Purdue has resources that can help patients pay less for their medicines and help them be more knowledgeable about them. Dr said ok and that he had to go. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	1/25/2013	Spoke to Brian about Butrans indication, dosing, titration, steady state and copy cards. Brian said he has a few patients on it but nothing recent. I asked if he knows the dose they are on and he did not. I introduced Itermezzo and explained three points on pharmacy sheet. Brian said he knows of it but has not dispensed it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlwan	OH	44333	1/25/2013	Quick hello in the lunch room and dr remembered I had Butrans and said the patient he told me about a few weeks ago came back in and is doing great. I asked what dose and he told me 5mcg. I reviewed the titration guide and ability to use supplemental analgesia. Dr said he likes the product and feels the administration through a patch is a nice change, especially for 7 days. I gave quick review of new copy cards. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/25/2013	I led with insight with dr and he told me that it is the toughest thing he does and it is every day. I asked him what he and his staff does when that happens. Dr said they have to re-evaluate the patient and figure out a medicine that they will take and not abuse. I told him that it must take a lot of time to reevaluate. Dr said it does. I told him that I have many resources at my disposal to help him, his staff and his patients for my products. Dr said he likes the copy cards and pain tracking guides for Butrans. Dr said that since our last discussion he has used a lot more Butrans and is getting good results. Dr would not expand on the results after I asked him. I told dr that I want to continue to provide resources each time I see him to hopefully strengthen the bond between the patient and their medicine. I asked dr if he uses the copy cards for his patients and he said yes. I explained the added savings for the new cards and dr said that Purdue has always done a nice job helping with patients pain through patient materials.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/25/2013	Spoke with Alla, pharmacist, & reviewed Intermezzo pharmacy selling points. She said she hasn't dispensed it & it seems like it is not covered by many insurance companies. I let her know commercial insurance plans will be those most likely to cover Intermezzo, but there is a chance of prior authorization requirements or step therapy. Reviewed trial/savings cards with her. Also presented new Butrans & OxyContin savings cards & reviewed eligibility requirements. Alla said they have a patient who order Butrans in for, but she thinks that is the only customer they have on it & she said they don't keep it on hand. I asked if she knows why not & she said the
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/25/2013	Delivered first part of Insight 1 to Dr Rakhit. Before I could finish, he just said "Ok, very busy" & walked into a room. Iryna said he was very far behind today. I asked if she ever takes calls from patients who complain of middle-of-the-night awakenings. She said she does often. I asked if Dr Rakhit prescribes sleep aids. She said she knows he has many older patients who are on them. I let her know that while there is no issue clinically with older patients & Intermezzo, managed care for that population can be challenging to get approval on. She asked about savings. Discussed programs for Butrans, OxyContin, & Intermezzo. She said to give them to him when I talk to him at upcoming lunch.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	1/25/2013	Saw Dr Rob briefly in the hall- Stopped him with new Butrans savings cards & told him I have interesting information that I wanted to share with him that may help him when treating patients with extended-release opioid medications. He said, "no, thanks" & walked into a room. Attempted to schedule lunch with Maria, but she said to check back another day because she was too busy.

	Akron	OH	44312	1/25/2013	Dana was present when I gave the insight to Dr Lababidi. Dana said that she is always dealing with patient issues and their medicines. She said she has to be extremely careful prescribing certain medicines to certain people. I asked her to expand and she just said that she want most of her patients to be on extended release but most are low income or on Medicare which many of the long acting products are either too expensive or not covered. I told Dana that she needs to continue to be very specific about patient selection and that I can help her through all the materials I have. Dana said go and had to get to a patient.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	1/28/2013	Spoke to Victoria about all products. Provided key selling messages for all. Victoria said that they fill OxyContin but not as much as they used to. She said they are filling more Vicodin and Percocet than ever. I explained OxyContin dosing, indication, and titration. Explained Butrans and Intermezzo indications, dosing, and appropriate patients. Victoria said that she has filled Butrans a few times but didn't know about intermezzo. She said that it seems like a great medicine and since the zolpidem dose reduction it may be used more often. Discussed new copy cards and patient savings.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Macedonia	OH	44056	1/28/2013	Dr Pai came into lunch with his Butrans initiation guide. He said he was trying to show me that he keeps it in front of himself all the time. Delivered Insight 1 & asked what impact it has on his practice when this occurs. He said he doesn't find that a lot of patients on long-acting opioids discontinue. He said he finds, rather, that changing a patient from a short-acting opioid to a long-acting is the hard part. I asked why. He said patients do not want to change & they just want to take pills many times per day. I asked him why someone would want to do that. He said he isn't sure, other than they are addicted. I asked if he really thinks that. He said many of them he thinks are, so he sends them to pain management. He added that pain management sends them back to him to do the med portion of the treatment. I agreed that caution should be used in writing all opioids. I asked Dr Pai what type of expectations & education he provides patients when discussing a change to a long-acting option for pain control. He didn't respond. Reviewed dosing, titration, use of supplemental analgesia, application, & savings information with Dr Pai. I asked what appropriate patients would have to lose by simply trying Butrans. He said nothing. I asked him, then, since he agrees, will he at least educate appropriate patients about Butrans when he identifies a potential candidate & ask them to give it a fair trial. He agreed. Introduced Intermezzo dosing, indication, savings. He was interested.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	1/28/2013	Dr Myton-Craig said she knows Butrans is covered on BWC & commercial insurance. Started delivery of Insight 1 message. She cut me off & said she didn't have time today. Spent time with MA Tammy & went over Butrans appropriate patient type, dosing, & new savings/trial cards. I asked Tammy what happens if an insurance company rejects a prescription- who takes care of that. Tammy said she usually does. She said she is the one to deal with the patients mostly. She said she puts the PA paperwork in front of the doctor & then the doctor decides what to do depending on the situation. Tammy said she wishes Dr Myton-Craig would at least try Butrans & added that there are several patients there who could benefit. Gave overview of Intermezzo to Tammy, delivering indication, delivery system, & dosing.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	1/28/2013	Quick call at window. Told Dr I had a statistic to throw at him and he said he's behind and will try to discuss next time. I did tell him about the new additional patient savings for OxyContin and Butrans. Dr said good and to discuss with Jen. I explained the new patient savings programs and asked Jen if she has seen any new starts for OxyContin or Butrans? Jen said he had a new patient start on Butrans last week and said she had a heck of a time getting it covered. I asked if she knew the plan and what the patient was taking previously? Jen said it was a CareSource patient and she thinks the patient was on Vicodin. She did not know what dose he was initiated on. Nothing else learned
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	1/28/2013	Dr Zaidi came up to the window as I was discussing new OxyContin savings cards. He said he was glad to have more of them because he thought they were low. I told him I had some interesting information to share with him. He said I would have to wait to discuss that at a lunch. Scheduled with Kim.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	1/28/2013	Spoke with Ashley, pharmacist, & Beth (floater pharmacist for Cleveland Clinic Pharmacies) & presented Intermezzo pharmacy sheet to Beth since she was unfamiliar with it. Also gave her new savings cards for Butrans, OxyContin, & Intermezzo. Ashley said Butrans movement has been steady- she still has patients consistently filling it, but she hasn't seen a lot of new patients starting.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	1/28/2013	Dr came to front desk to say hello. I told dr the insight and he told me we need to discuss it in an appointment because it was a loaded statement. I told dr my products and gave quick review of Intermezzo. Nothing else
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Macedonia	OH	44056	1/28/2013	Introduced myself & Purdue's products to Natalie. I asked what types of patients she sees at the office, being a new NP there. She said she sees mostly acute cases. I asked if she sees patients with pain from conditions such as osteoarthritis or spinal stenosis. She said she does, but she does not have a DEA number, so she cannot prescribe any controlled medications. She said as a new NP, she likes this because it takes away the responsibility of weeding out the bad from the good as far as patients go. I agreed that prescribers must be cautious in prescribing opioid medications, but reminded her that there are patients in legitimate pain who can benefit from pain medications when appropriate. She agreed. Shared Insight 1 with her. I asked what type of impact this has on the practice from her point-of-view. She said she knows Dr Pai & the MA's spend time with paperwork from denied medications from the insurance companies. Gave information on PAP & let her know we have resources available to help clinicians in their practice with pain medication prescribing & the patients they help. Lead with insight and told him that he probably spends lots of time identifying which patients are appropriate for specific medicines. I asked him what his experience has been like with patients discontinuing? Dr said that he does not see much discontinuation. Dr went through the statistic and tried to figure out if he has had any of them. Dr said he can see cost, efficacy, and adverse events but said that it he AE's would be within the first few days or so. Dr said he reduces the discontinuation by ensuring he has the follow up appointment within the first 30 days to check on the patients status. Dr said it comes down to the time the dr can spend with the patient and the busy ones can't afford to take the time necessary to reduce discontinuation. I told dr about the resources available to help him and his patients like initiation and titration tools, partners against pain, and others. I discussed Butrans and OxyAcontin patient types and appropriate starting doses. I reviewed Intermezzo indication, dosing, and copy cards for all.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	1/28/2013	Spoke to Kieth(pharmacist) about all products. Reviewed dosing, titration, appropriate starting dose for Butrans, and application sites for Butrans and discussed dispensing of OxyContin. Keith said he filled a Butrans script last week and believed it was the 5mcg. I introduced Intermezzo which he had not seen. Explained dosing, indication, limitations of use. Keith said its good that a low dose is available for that indication and thinks it will pick up when the Ambien dose gets reduced.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/28/2013	Quick call- Dr Ortega was on his way out of the office. He stopped to say that he just put a patient on Butrans today. I asked if it was a new patient or someone who has already been on it. He said it was a patient who was already on it, but he gave them a different strength for titration today. I told him that made me think of an interesting piece of information I learned. Shared Insight 1. He said a lot of patients probably give up on medications before talking to their doctors, so that causes them to just discontinue. He then said he had to go & to talk to Cindy. I asked what impact it has on her when Dr Ortega prescribes a medication & then the patient discontinues before they are supposed to. She said she basically does everything in the office, so she talks to the patients usually before the doctor does. I asked if she talks to them about titration & application. She said she does sometimes. Reviewed new savings cards with her.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	1/28/2013	Spoke to Sue and Gilbert about Butrans and OxyContin additional patient savings cards. I explained the dosing of Butrans and appropriate starting dose and titration. I asked if they have seen any new Rx's and Gilbert said they have been seeing more Butrans and has also noticed more 10mcg coming through as new starts. Explained Intermezzo dosing, indication, and limitations of use.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/28/2013	Spoke with Amanda, technician, as the pharmacist was busy. Went through savings cards/programs for Butrans, OxyCotin, & Intermezzo. She said they do have customers on Butrans, but do not have Intermezzo that she was aware of. Delivered indication.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/28/2013	Delivered insight one to Dr. Taylor. I asked what type of impact it has on her practice & the patient when this scenario occurs. She said it is always cost & coverage that causes patients not to get medications even filled, so it doesn't even give them a chance to try it. Dr Taylor & Mary spent time telling me about a patient who they said was unable to get Butrans at a Wal-Mart pharmacy. They said the patient reported that the pharmacist said they don't carry it & can't get it from their warehouse even. I told them this doesn't sound right because I visit Wal-Mart pharmacies frequently & many of them stock it regularly or can order it in 1 day. I asked what type of insurance the patient had. They said it is through Wal-Mart as the employer. I told them this doesn't sound right. I went over savings information & gave them new cards. Dr Taylor started making notes on Nucenta literature. I told her I do not promote Nucenta. They then realized that they were thinking of the wrong medication. Dr Taylor said she has been getting Butrans through just fine. I asked what type of information she goes over with the patient when giving a Butrans prescription. She then got called away to deal with a patient issue.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	1/29/2013	Started to deliver Insight 1 to Dr Fedorko. He interrupted me as soon as I said "extended-release opioids". He then told me that he is just firing a lot of patients because they want their Vicodin. I told him he should be screening patients & should not treat patients who are not in legitimate pain with opioid medications. He said he keeps getting calls from pharmacies about false prescriptions in his name & he is tired of "all these medications". He told me to find a new job. I told Dr Fedorko I was not there to ask him to prescribe anything for anyone he is not comfortable with, telling him again he is doing the right thing by weeding out inappropriate patients. I offered tools & resources to assist in appropriate patient selection. He just started walking away. Spoke with Mindy & reviewed Intermezzo indication & patient type. She said she does not think they have ever had
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Northfield	OH	44067	1/29/2013	Spoke with Greg, pharmacist, & delivered Intermezzo pharmacy messages. He said he has never seen a prescription for it. He said he does stock Butrans but only has one person who gets it & she gets it filled "every 6 months". He said she visits from out of state & gets her prescription for Butrans filled at his store when she is town & her script is up. He has heard no feedback on it clinically. Reviewed appropriate patient type & ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans. He said people get in the mindset of taking pills every few hours & don't want to change. I asked why he thinks patients are being able to make these types of decisions for themselves rather than having the doctor tell them is the appropriate option. Greg said he does not know.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Akron	OH	44308	1/29/2013	Contacted PI and SC to notify them of a change in the MSL supporting the site. Offered a "refresher" protocol training session for site staff. PI responded, noting this was not necessary.

PPLPMD.L0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	1/29/2013	Dr Diab asked if I had OxyContin savings cards. Gave him a new package & asked him if offering savings for medications he is initiating patients on is something he does during patient counsel. He said whoever remembers gives the cards & then walked out of the room.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	1/29/2013	Made a drop-in visit to meet w/ Linda Dabney in Staff Development to discuss Pain/Pain Management educational opportunities. She was not answering her page. Left BC
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	1/29/2013	I led with the approved insight message. I asked dr how this level of discontinuation affects her practice and if she has experienced discontinuation with extended release products? Dr said she did not know about discontinuation rates in her practice and that she didn't have time to discuss at all and headed towards an exam room. I told her I'm leaving her resources for OxyContin and Butrans.

Upon arriving, I was informed by the receptionist that Judy was in a family conference covering for the social worker who was out sick today. At 2:20, I was informed by the receptionist that Judy will have to reschedule our meeting that Tuesdays is "Care Conference Day" and she had 3 other families waiting to see her. She apologized and said that Judy would call me to reschedule.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	1/29/2013	Discussed all products with Kim. Discussed OxyContin dosing and explained the new copy cards. Explained Butrans appropriate starting and titration dosing. Kim said she has a couple of patients on Butrans but has not seen any new recently. She said she has been seeing more of Fouads and is happy about that. Explained intermezzo key selling messages and explained pharmacy messages. Kim said she has not seen any prescriptions but does have the 1.75mg dose.
PPLPMD.L0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	1/29/2013	I opened the discussion with the insight then asked dr what his experience is with patient discontinuation of extended release opioids and what steps he takes when that happens? Dr said that he does have patients that stop taking their long acting especially coming off multiple pills. Dr said that it is a very complex situation for each patient. Dr said that the key is to hit long acting opioids before they get to taking lots of pills in a day. He said it becomes too difficult and will always want their 5-6 pills a day. I asked dr if he does put a patient back on their short acting if they are deemed chronic? Dr said he does not in some way that because it is not the best therapeutic option. Dr Fouad said that he figures 7 out of every 10 patients don't want extended release opioids because they are abusing or diverting the short acting products during the day. Dr said if they stop taking it he finds out the reason why then decides another extended release option for them. Dr went on to say that Butrans is working so well with his patients that it has become his medicine of choice for patients that need adequate pain relief when they are not coming off high doses of an IR opioid. Dr said he had a meeting and we will pick up the discussion next time.
PPLPMD.L0020000001

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/29/2013	Dr Hernandez asked if I knew any more information about the patient he had called me about & why Butrans might have been so expensive for her despite her commercial insurance coverage. I explained to him that the patient might have had a deductible, which means that regardless of what medications she filled, until she reaches that deductible, she will have to pay cash price for her medications. I told him this is the most likely scenario for that situation, although unless she checks with her provider, we cannot be certain. He said he was satisfied with that answer & agreed to continue to prescribe Butrans. Delivered Insight 1. I asked what impact that has on his practice when it occurs. He said he doesn't see many discontinuations. He said he believes the reason for that is two-fold. One, he spends time with his patients educating them & setting expectations. Additionally, he does not allow patients to tell him what they want. He, rather, prescribes for them what he feels is the best clinical option for them. I agreed that these are both probably helping him keep the discontinuation rate to a minimum. Discussed resources & tools available to assist him in patient discussions surrounding Butrans & OxyContin. Dr Hernandez said he does not use OxyContin as much anymore because he likes Butrans better. I asked him if it is differentiating the two patient types, since our recommendation is that many OxyContin patients may be out of the Butrans range. He said he thinks it works
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	1/29/2013	I led with insight and asked her what her experience is in dealing with discontinuation? Dr. Keith said she did not treat chronic pain and does not prescribe extended release opioids. I asked dr if a patient presented in pain already on low dose Vicodin, what would the next move? Dr said, again, she will not treat chronic pain and she refers to pain management if a patient has a condition that deems a chronic condition. I told the dr my products and asked her if she has had experience with Butrans? Dr said she has not. I gave quick review of product and asked her if it made sense to prescribe Butrans for a patient that meets the indication who may have to wait a month or two before they can get into pain management. Dr said she didn't know. I asked if I could further discuss Butrans at another time? Dr said ok.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	1/29/2013	Placed a follow-up phone call, spoke to Staff Development Coordinator, Michelle Williams, 234-466-5222 ext. 137, introduced myself and purpose of call. I asked if she has had an opportunity to speak w/ the D.O.N. on educational in-services that I could offer. She stated Briefly. Appt. scheduled to meet w/ Michelle on 2/7 @ 1pm.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	1/30/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Roberta. I asked how it impacts her & the way she treats a patient when this occurs. She said she does not change a patient's medication & sees only follow-up visits. She said Dr Yokiell starts or changes patients medications & she just continues them if there are no issues. She said managed care & cost tend to be a big issue because they cost time. She said also, this causes patients to be in pain unnecessarily if they are not getting relief from the medication. I let her know we offer tools & resources for her & staff members in effort to help with these types of issues for our medications. Also discussed managed care & savings cards. She said she has not prescribed Intermezzo for anyone. Reviewed indication, dosing, & patient type & gave dosing card.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Solon	OH	44139	1/30/2013	met with Denny and Chuck to review 2013 programs for DDM and Marcs. Marcs has placed an order for 27 dozen Senokot-S 10's bonus packs. DDM will order Bonus Packs on Senokot-S 10's and Senokot 20's. Denny asked to have window signs made for DDM for sweepstakes program. The price has increased to a $1500 fixed fee for future DDM promotions. DDM is down over 20% this past year. They have put in a lot of facings of generics.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	1/30/2013	I asked dr our last call if she had put any more thought into her patient discontinuing on the opioid medications? Dr said she actually has and that she thinks she has identified 2 patients that may be good candidates for Butrans. I asked her why she thinks these patients are good candidates? Dr said because they are both in chronic pain and on short acting narcotics. Dr said she has to try to convince the Butrans option to them. I asked dr what she plans on saying to the patient to get them to buy into the Butrans option? Dr said that it is tough because patients don't want to give up their pills even though they are still in pain. She said she plans on fully explained Butrans and how it is patch technology. I told dr that the patient information guide for Butrans may come in handy to help back up what she says and may strengthen the bond of the patient and their medicine. Dr agreed and wanted them. Dr said she will keep me in the loop as to her success of introducing Butrans to these patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/30/2013	Called Linda Belford to discuss Staff Development to schedule in-service on pain/pain assessment as discussed in our meeting on 1/21. PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44104	1/30/2013	Spoke with SC regarding a website referral of a potential patient for OTR3001. Two return calls have been made and messages left but no response from the family have been received to date. SC agreed to try three more times at various times of day/week. Also reviewed current status of addition of Dr. Appachi to 1572 as a Sub-4 for this study. Final form submission was delayed due to it being received without a manual signature. Completion is expected within a week. Inquired to confirm that Dr. Henry had notified her of change in MSL and offer to provide a "refresher" protocol session. She was interested and would raise the discussion with the site's CRA. CRA and Clinical Operations were notified of the above.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	1/30/2013	Called and spoke w/ Staff Development Coord., Nancy Strausser 330-945-9797, to schedule educational in-service for nursing staff. Nancy stated, "I'm sorry, but I cannot do anything right now, I am acting D.O.N. and also running orientation. I am barely keeping my head above water, if you know what I mean. I have your card and I will call you when things settle down." Nancy agreed that it would be fare to call her in April, if she don't call me
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44122	1/30/2013	Quick call- Caught Dr Rastogi at the window. I told him I just had a quick point to make & delivered first part of Insight 1. He interrupted me & said he had to go. Spent time with Lucy & asked her what role she has in the office. She said she takes calls & messages from patients and schedules their appointments. I asked if some of the calls she takes are from patients who call about their medications (such as adverse events, cost, efficacy issues). She said she takes the calls & transfers the patient or takes a message regarding the issue. She said it really all depends. I asked her to give each of the physicians the Intermezzo packet & she agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/30/2013	Quick call. Elaine said she has been giving out the savings cards that I have been giving to the office when she is writing Butrans. She asked me to review dosing with her, so I did, giving her an initiation guide. She said she had to go. Spent time with Dawn. She said Elaine always seems confused about coverage & dosing of Butrans. She said she has been trying to help her when she can. I asked Dawn what additional tools I could give her that would assist with that. She said nothing she could think of & said she would think about it. She asked for updated formulary grids. I let her know I would get them to her as soon as they are delivered to me.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	1/30/2013	Led with insight with dr and asked him about his experience with discontinuation. Dr said that his discontinuation rates are very low because of the way his practices which is conservative. Dr said that he knows I have learned that he does not prescribe many CI products except for Exalgo because dr said it is a once a day opioid and it is very difficult to manipulate. I asked dr the steps he takes to a unsure low discontinuation rates? Dr said that when he does have a patient stop taking an extended release product it's because of an adverse event or efficacy. Dr said when that happens to re-evaluate their pain and try his best to choose another ER opioid. I asked dr what resources he uses to help him in this process? Dr said that the drs in his practice have many forms and documents that patients can fill out to help them evaluate what products a best. I showed him the partners against pain webkey and he said he will look it over. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	1/30/2013	I asked dr if he had identified patients for Butrans yet and if he has any ideas to his approach in treating pain? Dr said he knows he needs to use Butrans. I asked him what the hang up is? Dr said he doesn't have an answer for it but knows he needs to begin prescribing. I asked dr where he thinks Butrans would fit? Dr said that I have been doing a good job identifying patient types and he is going to try it on patients who are taking Vicodin. I asked him what his approach is going to be? He said he will take patients on low to moderate doses and do his best to convince them to try a patch. I showed him the initiation and titration guide and explained how to initiate and titrate. I also showed him the patient information guide and explained how it may help. I asked dr for intermezzo business and explained the dosing, and indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/30/2013	Provided introduction to intermezzo and discussed Butrans. I asked the technician Sara if she knew about intermezzo and she did not but the pharmacist had. I explained dosing, indication, limitations of use. Explained trial offer and copay cards. Told pharmacist about Butrans dosing, CI, and titration. The pharmacy has dispensed once but has not seen it since. I left the initiation and titration guide.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	1/30/2013	I led with the insight with dr and asked him what level of discontinuation is like for extended release opioids in his practice. Dr said that it is an interesting statistic but he has very little discontinuation because when he makes the decision to move to an ER opioid the patient is chronic and typically elderly. Dr said a large portion of his patients that are in chronic pain are much older than 65. Dr said that his patients on extended release opioids don't discontinue because either it is working or they are selling it. I asked him how he identifies between e two and what questions do he ask? Dr said he does urine testing and if it comes up positive for opioids then he will continue them on that product as long as their pain is controlled. Dr said if the screen comes back negative, he sends them to pain management. Dr said he prescribed 2 Butrans last week. I asked dr why he thought of Butrans for those patients? Dr said because they both had chronic back problems and the short acting opioids were not working. Dr said he initiated Butrans 5 mcg for each and told them to take the IR for breakthrough or a pro basis. I explained the dosing and titration as well as steady state and told him to continue prescribing. Dr said he is still upset about Butrans not covered on Medicare. I explained coverage and told him about the Caresource PA. I asked dr if he would find the partners against pain, pain assessment guide helpful in determining what the patients doing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/30/2013	Caught Dr Chagin at the window. Delivered Insight 1 & asked what impact it has on his practice when this happens. He didn't respond. I asked of his Butrans patients if any have discontinued. He said he hasn't taken anyone off it but he doesn't know if they still take it. He saw the Intermezzo savings cards & asked me about it. Delivered indication, dosing, & savings information. Also discussed delivery system. He asked for literature, which I provided. Updated him on Butrans & OxyContin programs. He said he promises he will write Butrans when he gets a patient who he determines is legitimate & who has chronic pain. He also said he plans to use Intermezzo.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Woodmere	OH	44122	1/30/2013	Spoke with Ashley Miller, pharmacist, & reviewed Intermezzo pharmacy selling messages. She said she knows she has dispensed it here but was unsure if it is something kept on the shelf consistently. Gave her new trial/savings cards & reviewed eligibility requirements. Also reviewed new Butrans & OxyContin savings programs. She said they do stock Butrans & have a few customers who get it regularly.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	1/30/2013	Reminded Dr Moufawad of our previous conversation regarding discontinuations on extended-release opioid medications. I asked what processes he has in place in his practice are done in effort to reduce discontinuations. He said a lot of time is spent educating patients. I asked what tools he uses in the exam room to assist with this. He said he uses the Butrans patient information guides a lot & also gives savings cards to help reduce costs. I provided him with new savings cards. I asked his thoughts on Intermezzo. He said he doesn't want to hurt my feelings, but he thinks it is a medication for rich people because he does not see it as a necessity. Reviewed indication. He said he just doesn't see that as a big problem & it isn't worth doing a prior authorization for. He said he has noticed that prior authorizations from various managed care companies are now saying that he himself has to fill them out, not his MA or nurse. He said he does not know how he is supposed to find the time to do all of this paperwork.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	1/30/2013	Spoke with pharmacist, Rina, & reviewed Intermezzo pharmacy selling points. Also went over new savings programs for each medication. She said they have a few patients on Butrans regularly as well as someone on Intermezzo. She said she has heard positive feedback on both medications.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/30/2013	Quick call with dr in hallway. I asked dr if he has seen his patient back he initiated on Butrans? Dr said he did not and was concerned it wouldn't be covered but has not heard back from patient so he figures it was cost wise. I showed dr some of the resources for Butrans and dr said he likes the pain assessment comfort guide and he liked it and may use to help him with his patient chart documentation. I explained intermezzo copay cards again and asked him to identify patients that meet the indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	1/30/2013	Delivered Insight 1 message to Dr Yokiell. I asked what impact this has on his practice when it occurs. He said it takes a lot of his time. I asked what questions he asks & considerations he makes when choosing the long-acting opioid that is right for any particular patient. He said it really is all patient & situation-dependent. He said the thing is, patients who come to him have already been on so many different medications, it narrows down significantly what medications he can consider because the patient has typically already tried many options with no success. He went on to say that he has tried Butrans & he does like to use it when he can, but patients he sees are typically beyond the appropriate range. I agreed that he probably sees more patients who he may consider for OxyContin therapy. He agreed, saying that when they are on tramadol or a non-opioid, or even Vicodin, he may consider Butrans as the long-acting of choice, but if they are on Percocet multiple times per day, that would be an OxyContin candidate. I agreed. I explained to him the reason for me asking him about that was in effort to understand his practice & patients so that I can bring valuable information to them. He said what companies don't realize is that managed care & cost play more into a physician's decision than anything else.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/31/2013	Reviewed managed care & savings programs. Also asked about his experience with Intermezzo. He said other than cost, he has had good experience with patients liking it. Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Moysaenko & asked what impact it has on his practice when this happens. He said it takes a lot of time when a patient's medication is rejected due to cost or coverage. He said he ends up just having to write whatever is covered for the patient. I asked if this is always the best clinical decision. He said at that point it does not matter. He said a medication can be clinically great but if it is very expensive or not well-covered, no one can get it. He said his hands are tied & he has to do what the insurance company wants him to do. I asked what about when there is more than one choice on the plan. He said then it depends on the patient & the case & it is all different for every person. I asked what I can do for OxyContin & Butrans in this regard. He said to keep bringing savings & grids. He asked if Medicare covers Butrans. Reviewed coverage & reminded him of OxyContin's broad formulary access. He said he would only use long-acting opioids for chronic conditions. He added that he would, however, only keep a patient on OxyContin short-term due to its abuse potential. I agreed that he should be cautious in prescribing, reminding him all opioids carry this liability. He said he would use Butrans if it was on Medicare because those are the only patients he is keeping on opioids. He sends all others to pain management. I asked him to start appropriate patients age 50-60 on Butrans before sending to pain management. He said he would. Gave Intermezzo info

	Independence	OH	44131	1/31/2013	Reminder Dr. Sundaram of our previous conversation and asked him what types of questions he asks his patients if they do discontinue their extended release opioid medication. He said it depends on why they stopped taking it. I asked what resources I could provide for Butrans & OxyContin that would help him. He said I do a good job of that. I told him maybe not good enough since he has not put the information into practice. Reviewed appropriate patient type for Butrans & discussed broad formulary access for OxyContin, including Medicare plans. He said he has some Medicare patients on OxyContin & added that coverage is never a problem for that medication. Reviewed new savings programs & walked him through both Butrans cards. I asked if he could teach that back to his next appropriate patient who He identifies as a Butrans candidate. He agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Shaker Heights	OH	44122	1/31/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Agarwal & asked how this impacted his practice. He said he doesn't know. I asked if it takes time away from him & his staff. He said, "OK" & walked away. Spoke with MA Michele & reviewed Intermezzo. She said she hadn't heard of it & agreed to give information to Dr Agarwal. CHUDAKOB added notes on 02/08/2013You are bringing some really good value to the practice for her to say that. Nice work Cliff!
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	1/31/2013	Spoke to dr as she was walking in for the day. Dr. started by telling me that they are prescribing Butrans more often. I asked what prompted them to increase prescribing. Dr Azem told me that it has been my attention to their practice and they feel more comfortable with the product. I gave an abbreviated insight statement and told her about the new copay cards with an increased patient savings. Dr said she is looking forward to taking with me soon at my lunch.CHUDAKOB added notes on 02/08/2013You are bringing some really good value to the practice for her to say that. Nice work Cliff!
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/31/2013	Spoke with Connie, pharmacist, & gave her intermezzo pharmacy sell booklet. Reviewed key messages with her. She said she was aware of it but has not dispensed it. She added that it can be ordered & received next-day if they need to get it in. Gave her new savings cards for Butrans & OxyContin. She said they do stock Butrans & have a few customers on it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	1/31/2013	Quick call. Reminded Dr Jugulion of our previous conversations & gave him Partners Against Pain information. Also gave him intermezzo information & let him know about DTC marketing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Met Kim for first time as she is new to the office. she listened to the discussion surrounding the insight message with drs in a lunch. I explained all three products and key messages for all.
	Parma	OH	44129	1/31/2013	Quick window call. Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Paat & asked what kind of impact it has on his practice when this occurs. He just said, "OK" & walked away. Spoke with Shari & explained that I was interested in finding out more detail about things like that in effort to bring support materials & resources to help them & their patients. I asked Shari what role she plays when a patient calls bac regarding not wanting to stay on a new medicine or if their insurance doesn't cover it. She said she does prior authorizations, talks to the patients, & gives savings information when she remembers. Reviewed savings programs & asked her to give Dr Paat Intermezzo information. She agreed.CHUDAKOB added notes on 02/06/2013Nice job of finding out what Shari does. Perhaps finding out how she interacts with the physician may help as well. Is there another nurse for Dr. Paat? I don't remember.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	dr not involved in insight discussion as he came in very late. I gave a recap of the discussion to him and he said that yes he has some discontinuation but said that he knows it is much lower than most. I asked him why and he said that he tries to have a very candid discussion with each of his patients outlining the medicine he is placing them on and why. I asked dr what he does when patients do atop taking their medicines? dr said most of the time is because they want to abuse a short acting medicine.I attempted to ask more questions but dr said he has to leave. I asked dr to continue prescribing Butrans for his patients failing on short acting medicines and handed him the new piece on initiation and titration of opioid naive and experienced patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Dr was involved in the discussion around the insight message. Dr said that when he has a patient discontinue their medicine he reevaluates them to decide if the patient has legitimate pain or is seeking. If he decides the patient is legitimate and the patient tells him there is still pain, he will typically move to another long acting product either ER morphine or something equivalent to the previous medicine as long as there is no adverse reaction that may be something another medicine will have as well. Dr said he does not have much problem with discontinuation because of the time he spends with the patient as an inpatient and an outpatient. Dr said that if he finds out the patient is abusing or is even suspected as abusing it is a violation of their pain contract and he discharges them. Dr Ali also said that he finds that switching a patient from oxycodone air to OxyContin can make a big difference from efficacy and adverse events for his patients that are legitimately in pain and with less pills. No other questions were able to be asked of this hcp due to the nature of the lunch with multiple drs and
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Caught dr in hallway and lead with the insight. I asked dr about his experience w/ discontinuation and what he does to reduce discontinuation rates. Dr said that it has been more and more difficult for him to prescribe extended release opioids because of managed care coverage. I asked him for an example. Dr said that he has tried to write an extended release opioid recently and was told he has to go to ER morphine or duragesic. Dr said that those products were not options he felt were best for the patient. Dr said he likes OxyContin but it is even become hard to get approved. I asked dr who does he reimbursement. Dr told me to speak to Lisa and she was out for the day sick.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	1/31/2013	Spoke with Alicia, pharmacist, & reviewed Intermezzo pharmacy selling messages. She mentioned recent news regarding lower dosing of zolpidem for female patients & asked if that was also true of Intermezzo. I reviewed dosing with her, pointing out gender-specific doses. Also gave her new Butrans & OxyContin savings cards. She said they have a few patients on Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Sole to Patrick about Intermezzo and Butrans. Gave him all pharmacy selling messages and he said they don't have it in stock but knows about it. He said that intermezzo is timely because of all the changes to zolpidem.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	1/31/2013	Patrick said he is still filling Butrans. I asked him which dose is most often dispensed. Patrick said that he has seen a shift from mostly 5mg to more and more 10mg and said that it is most appropriate for what he sees the doses being of e Vicodin. I showed him the approximate conversion chart and reviewed it with him.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Twinsburg	OH	44087	1/31/2013	Spoke to dr through window and led with insight. Dr immediately said it is a pain when he finds out patients stop taking their medicines. He said that he basically have to start over and ask the patient again all the questions he asked when he first prescribed the product. Dr said that most patients he has had that stop their medicine is because of cost or adverse events. Dr said he tries to use everything at his disposal to give to the patient when prescribing like copay cards, patient materials etc. I told dr I may have the answer when it comes to Butrans. I explained and introduced the Butrans experience program and told him that hopefully this can help to reduce his discontinuation rate because of the bond that may be strengthened between his patients and their medicine. Dr said it seems really cool and he will use them for sure. Dr said that he initiated a patient on Butrans last week who has anthem bc/b's and took the copay card to a cvs in Hartsville and was told he has to pay for the 28 days and ended up being too expensive after the copay card. I told dr I will go to the pharmacy and check it out.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Manchester	OH	45144	1/31/2013	Made a drop-in visit to speak w/ D.O.N.,Shawn McMahon. Spoke w/ receptionist, Marge Adams, introduced myself and purpose of visit, re: pain & pain management educational opportunities at no cost. She stated that Jody Smith in HR is now handling all education and she will be in on Monday 2/4. left BC
PPLPMDL0020000001	C. Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	I introduced myself and Butrans. He immediately thought of the Duragesic patch. I restated the Butrans indication . He thinks it is a good idea but he thinks his patients will want their pills. He also had concerns that he will start ring and no one will cover. He stated he does have some commercial patients that meet the indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	C. Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Discussed all products with Cindy and lead with intermezzo. I discussed the indication, limitations of use, doses, and patients appropriate. Pharmacy does not have it in stock but Cindy has heard about it. Explained trial offer and copay card. Butrans dosing and asked about dispensing. Cindy said that they still do not see many but have had more than normal from the pain management center. Cindy said they still dispense OxyContin and the doses 10, 20, and 40mg remain the most commonly filled.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Lad with the insight message. I asked dr how he deals with his patients discontinuing on their extended release pain medicines? Dr said he finds out if they want their short acting products back and why they stopped taking their extended release products. Dr said he sees discontinuation mostly because they want to abuse the short acting and the long acting didn't provide the high they are looking for. Dr said when the patient stops and they have legitimate pain, he will find out why they stopped first. He said most commonly it is an adverse event or efficacy. Dr said then he will possibly move them to another long acting product with either equal dosing or slightly higher if their pain has increased. I told dr that from a standpoint of Purdue products, there are many resources available which he already knows that can help hi and the patient feel more knowledgeable and comfortable with the product they are on. Dr said that he realizes that the pain center uses all Purdue materials for their patients and it makes him feel that much more comfortable using Purdue products. I introduced intermezzo and gave all key selling messages. I asked dr to continue using all products for his patients when they meet the indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Met awake for first time as he is new in the practice. Jake listened as I discussed the insight message and explained all three product key selling messages.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	1/31/2013	Met dr for the first time. Dr said he only had 30 seconds because he had a patient on the table. Dr said he wanted to know about intermezzo because he saw the commercial. I explained the indication, limitations of use, dosing. Dr said he likes it and will use. Dr said he likes OxyContin and uses often and wanted quick information on Butrans. I showed him the placebo patch and gave him all key selling messages. Dr said he has lots of Medicare and wanted coverage for my products next time I come in. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/1/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Barrett. I asked how this impacts his practice. He said he does not allow patients to tell him what to do. He said as long as they afford a medication & don't have an adverse reaction to it, if he feels it is the right choice, that is what the patient will be on. He said he believes in using a comprehensive approach to pain management & he does not understand why the Clinic is so opposed to using opioids, especially long-acting ones. He said there is no singular opioid that is great for everyone, nor is treating patients with opioids only without other treatment measures. He added that he allows patients to take 3-4 short-acting opioids per day. I asked what happens after that. He said he puts them on a long-acting. He said he likes Butrans because it gives him a long-acting CII opioid & he has had good results with it. I asked what information I can provide, specific to Butrans & OxyContin to assist him in teaching appropriate patients about each medication. He said he wants me to bring him practical, usable information that he can apply when treating patients- ie adverse events, dosing, managed care etc. Discussed Butrans titration & dosing. Also discussed adhesion & taping edges with first aid tape or covering with Bioclusive or Tegaderm. He said this was good to know. He said he should start using more Butrans because he really does like it. Reviewed managed care. I asked him to write it today for a few appropriate patients. He agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/1/2013	Introduced myself & Purdue's products to Zhanhong (goes by "Helen"). She said she had not yet heard of Butrans. Delivered indication, dosing, application, rotation, disposal, managed care coverage, & savings. Spent time reviewing appropriate patient type/range. Helen said she is a new NP & this is her first time in pain management. She said she is still learning. Dr Barrett told her that the Clinic does not, as a rule, like opioids, especially long-acting options. He went on to tell her that he has had good success with Butrans. He said he starts most patients at 10mcg & has found that about 50% of patients will need to be titrated to 20mcg. He also told Helen it is very difficult when you are with a patient to tell him/her that they cannot have their short-acting opioid back when initiating Butrans or other long-acting opioids. He encouraged her to be stern, saying again that that is very difficult. After he talked to me, Dr Barrett told Helen that he will write it today so that she can see how to write/dose it & counsel patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Tallmadge	OH	44278	2/1/2013	Dr stopped in hallway and asked me what product I have. I told him Butrans and intermezzo. I showed him the placebo patch and gave him the indication, CII, 7 day transdermal system. Dr said he knows of it but has not used. Dr told me to make sure I schedule a lunch and we can discuss further. I handed him the intermezzo piece and gave him the indication. Nothing else learned
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44195	2/1/2013	Contacted site to notify PI and SC of a change in MSL coverage for the site. SC responded with an update on positive progress in study start-up documents and a near-term IRB submission. Offered additional assistance from Quintiles Start-up team, if needed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/1/2013	I followed up with dr about his patient that he explained to me that he prescribed Butrans and the patient went to fill it and get the 28 day trial offer. The patient told dr that he didn't get 28 days free and had to pay. The patient has Anthem bc/b's. I went to pharmacy and checked and ended up finding out that the patients copay must have been over $75 and so the patient had to pay the difference. I explained it to the dr and he said he understands and that sometimes the fine print is not read or understood. Dr thanked me for the clarification and will ensure to communicate that to his patients going forward. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	2/1/2013	Placed a follow-up phone call and spoke w/ Staff Development Coord., MaryAnne. Introduced myself and purpose of my call. MaryAnne stated, I am in a crunch w/ staffing this morning d/t the bad weather. She took my name & phone number and said that she would get back w/ me.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/1/2013	Spent time South Pointe Pain Management nurses. I asked what role they play in the patients' visits/experiences at their facility. They said they give savings information, do prior authorizations, take call-backs from patients, & teach them about medications sometimes. Showed them initiation guide & walked them through application, disposal, rotation. Linda asked what to do if the edges loosen. I told her that they can tape the edges with first aid tape or cover with Bioclusive or Tegaderm covering. Also discussed titration & dosing & ability for patients to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans. Carol asked about insurance coverage, so I reviewed this with them & also gave new package of trial/savings cards. Showed each card & discussed how the patients use them if they are eligible. All the nurses agreed that Butrans would be a good option for many of the patients they see in their facility. I asked them to alert the physicians when they identify a patient that may be appropriate for Butrans therapy. They said some of the doctors there are more receptive than others to taking their suggestions. Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dosing form of oxycodone.

I introduced intermezzo using the pharmacy piece and reviewed the three pharmacist points, dosing, limitations of use, and copay cards and 5 pills free. Irena said she has not filled it but sounds like it will have a niche. She asked about taking zolpidem with Butrans or other opioids. I read the safety information from the visad and told her that opioids are CNS depressants and so is zolpidem. The decision of dose is up to the doctor. I explained Butrans dosing, titration and appropriate starting dose. Pharmacy has filled Butrans but not much.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/1/2013	Dr said he overheard me taking to Dr Manning about Butrans. Dr asked me what schedule it is and how long it works because he couldn't remember. I showed dr the initiation and titration guide and gave him all key selling messages again. I asked dr where he sees himself using it? Dr said that his problem is that it is not covered on Medicare. I told dr that it is and if the patient has coinsurance the cost can be very manageable. I told dr to focus on patients under 65 that meet the indication and asked him if he has patients like those? Dr said he does but not too many. I gave dr the patient case studies and asked him to review. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	2/1/2013	Provided dr with the partners against pain web key and patient pain comfort questionnaire and handed him the new piece on dosing and titration for opioid or opioid naive patients. Dr said they may come in handy. I told dr that Purdue has many patient resources that they can get. I explained intermezzo indication, limitations of dosing, dosing and copay cards. I asked dr if he would use intermezzo? Dr said he will use it especially since it is such a low dose of zolpidem. I have him the intermezzo information.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	2/1/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Roman & asked him what impact it has on him & the practice when this happens. He said he doesn't understand why I'm telling/asking him about this. I told him I was interested in learning more in-depth facets of the practice & patients & was hoping to use this information to help me bring more pertinent information to him when I come in. He said that did not make sense & added that patients just want to save money. I updated him on OxyContin & Butrans savings programs. He said he wanted the OxyContin cards & wouldn't take the Butrans ones because he has not had good success with it. He requested Senokot-S samples then Good discussion around the insight and product discussion. Dr said he has seen the intermezzo commercial. I asked dr what steps he takes when a patient stops taking their extended release opioid? Dr said he finds out why they quit and that will determine what his next move is. I asked him if a patient stops because of an adverse event what does he do. Dr said that the answer is not simple because it can take time from him and his nurses to determine what to do. Do asked again about intermezzo. I explained the indication, limitations of use, dosing, and patient savings. I asked dr if intermezzo is a product that he wouldn't find himself prescribing? Dr said yes because he likes the low dose and has had patients complain about not being able to get back to sleep. I introduced the new OxyContin patient savings card with a potential $90 savings per month. Dr said his patient do well on it and doesn't have many issues. I asked dr when he initiates OxyContin? After Vicodin, Percocet? Dr said he tries to get the extended release on as soon as he can. He says his patients like it better. Dr thanks me for the information but had to go to a meeting. Nothing else learned.

Greg said he dispensed a lot and said that the 10mcg is the most common. He said he will hand out the cards as he always has. I asked if patients come to fill their script already with a copay card and he said about 50-60% of the time.

He said he doesn't know what to do about writing "anything" anymore. I asked him to clarify. He asked if I was aware of a FL law that allows only pain management specialists to prescribe narcotics. I told him I was not. He said he is afraid that will happen here too, adding that the system of medicine almost is designed now to scare physicians. He said 2 years ago, he was not afraid to write medications like Butrans or even OxyContin, but now he is concerned. I asked if he would agree that there are patients who's cases do warrant treatment with opioid medications. He said yes. I asked what he is doing with those patients. He said he is trying to refer a lot, but sometimes patients just get sent back to him for medication. I asked what, then is he doing with those patients. He said that is too hard to answer because each person is different & it just depends on too many factors, many of which are difficult to explain. I told him I am just asking him to consider Butrans as an option for appropriate patients who he is comfortable treating with opioids, even if that is a small section of his patient population. He asked me to review dosing. Discussed titration every 3 days. Discussed Intermezzo indication, dosing, & showed him how the prescription could be written.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	2/4/2013	Lynda came back to breakfast, saying she wishes she could write the medications I carry because she would like to help me. I told her I was not the person to worry about & that my concern is only for the patients they treat. I told her I wanted to be sure they all (including staff) have the information necessary to help them in the event that an appropriate patient presents who may benefit from Butrans, OxyContin, or Intermezzo. Lynda said she has considered getting a DEA number so that she can prescribe if necessary, but just is afraid. I agreed she should be cautious in prescribing any scheduled medication, but reminded her that there are patients who can benefit from opioid medications as part of a comprehensive plan to treat their pain. I asked what information or tools I could provide that would help her with this comfort level. She said she wasn't sure. I gave her PAP information for HCP's. She said that would help.

I asked what tools/resources he thinks may be able to assist him in choosing patients who are appropriate for Butrans so that he can get the experience he needs with it. He said he doesn't know- he just has to "do it". I asked what he tells patients who he has started on Butrans when he initiates them to help them have the best experience possible with the medication. He said he just tells them how to use it. I told him that sounded like a good start. I reminded him of the value of the Butrans Patient Experience Program & suggested that may assist him in instructing patients & setting them up for success with Butrans. Reviewed contents & trial/savings program. I asked if he would simply identify a potential Butrans candidate & if appropriate, initiate therapy & give them a patient experience kit with their prescription. He said he is
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	2/4/2013	Dr Mandat said he had recently started a patient on Butrans but he was unsure if she got it because he thinks it might not have been covered by her insurance. I asked how it effects his ability to adequately manage a patient's pain when something like this happens. He said it doesn't even phase him anymore because that is a common occurrence with many prescription medications now with all the managed care restrictions out there. I agreed this can make it difficult & asked what types of information he would like to see from me that may assist with this happening in the future specifically for Butrans. He said nothing really. He said he evaluates a patient's situation/case & decides clinically what he thinks is best for the patient & writes that prescription. He added that he has his staff (Linda) do prior authorizations when applicable, but sometimes medications are just too expensive. I reviewed Butrans managed care & savings, reminding him that patients who use the savings cards will have a reduced out-of-pocket cost if eligible. Gave him Intermezzo packet & reviewed indication. She said it occurs when she puts a patch of Butrans on & continues even after she removes the patch. Deb said that patient reports that she is getting such good pain relief that she doesn't want to stop Butrans, but the itching is becoming a problem. Deb asked me what to do about it. I told her we do not have specific recommendations regarding when/if a patient should be discontinued, but reviewed with her that if the adverse events a patient experiences are outweighing the analgesia they are receiving, she & the patient may decide that a different therapy should be chosen for that patient,

He said writing opioids for pain is a big part of what he does, but he does not notice discontinuations occurring very often. I advised again that this is against the law & asked that he give them to eligible, commercially insured patients. He said he doesn't typically use the intermediate strengths of OxyContin because he is not used to writing them. I showed him how these strengths can be useful in titration to find each patient's appropriate dose. I led with insight with both drs and they both admitted that possibly some of e discontinuation is due to doctors not knowing enough about extended release opioids and how to appropriately use them and how to identify the right patient. I agreed and said that my job is to educate those doctors about the products and how to initiate them and titrate them. I reviewed Butrans and intermezzo products reviewing all key selling messages. Dr said that she really likes Butrans because of the administration mode and said she recommends it to anyone who is having issues with short acting opioids. Dr said it is also a product that she said is safe and effective. I reviewed the adverse events, application sites and skin prep. Explained all information about intermezzo and she said she sees herself using it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlwan	OH	44333	2/6/2013	Quick message in his hallway. Showed dr the new Butrans piece showing dosing and titration for opioid experienced and naive patients. Explained the new copy cards. Dr said he likes Butrans and has seen good results. I asked him to continue prescribing and he agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	2/6/2013	Dr Moufawad said he doesn't feel like he has been seeing many new patients lately & has not started as many people on Butrans recently as he had in the months past. I asked if that is due to something specifically due to Butrans. He said there is nothing wrong with Butrans, it is just that many of the new patients he has seen lately have been on high doses of opioids, so he is not taking them as new patients because they are drug seeking. I asked if he was saying that patients on high doses of opioids when they are referred to him are viewed by him as drug seeking. He said not necessarily. He went on to explain that he will almost always see a patient at least once, but if they are on high doses of opioids & are unresponsive to the idea of attempting to decrease the doses, he likely will send them elsewhere once he determines that because to him that is drug-seeking behavior. I showed him the table displaying initiation doses/range of patients for Butrans & asked if he follows this chart as a gauge as to if someone is beyond the Butrans range & may be a candidate for another therapy such as OxyContin. Dr Moufawad said he does, adding that he has found more success than he would have thought with the 5mgc dose, although he does titrate when necessary. He said he gets patients on a long-acting option as soon as he can. I asked if he would continue to choose Butrans as a first long-acting opioid if they fall within the range & OxyContin for those beyond Butrans. He said he would.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/6/2013	Quick call- Caught Elaine between patients & reviewed Butrans dosing with her, per Dawn's request. Reminded her that patients can be titrated after 3 days if necessary. She said she thinks she has it now & then went into another room. Reviewed initiation/titration guide with Dawn & gave her one to keep on hand.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	2/6/2013	Some to for minute through window along with Char. I recapped our last discussion and told dr that I want to ensure he has the resources to make the bond between his patients and my products as strong as possible. Dr said he likes that advantage because his hope is to keep his patients on the medicine they need. I referenced the Butrans information guide and discussed intermezzo. I asked dr what his thoughts on intermezzo are? Dr said he does not like prescribing sleep aids but intermezzo because the dose is low and it is a different indication. I asked dr to try and identify a patient and to just try it. Dr agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	2/6/2013	Spoke with technician as Jim was too busy. Gave her Intermezzo pharmacy information. She said she hadn't heard of it. She said if they do not have it in stock, they are willing to order medications for customers, so getting it in shouldn't be a problem. Discussed updated Butrans & OxyContin savings information. She agreed to give the information to Jim when he was available.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	2/6/2013	Discussion with dr in his office about taking advantage of the resources available for him and his patients to aid him in managing pain. I asked dr to continue to identify his commercially insured patients on ultram or Vicodin that are failing. I explained the patient information guides and the help that it can give his patients and discussed the partners against pain webkey. I asked dr if he thinks these resources would be helpful and dr said yes. I asked if he has seen any of his recent Butrans starts back in the office or have called in and he said no which makes him happy!

	Parma	OH	44129	2/6/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Salama & asked what impact these type of discontinuations have on his practice & ability to manage his patients' pain. He said he finds that if a patient is in legitimate pain, switching from short-acting opioids to a long-acting option is not difficult at all. He said those who discontinue are typically people who may not be taking pain medication for the right reasons. He said when this happens, he sends the patient elsewhere for care because that is not the type of medicine he practices. I agreed that care & discretion should be used when prescribing any opioid medication, including Butrans & OxyContin. Dr Salama said Butrans is a wonderful medication & he has tried it in several patients. I told him it always seems like he really does like Butrans, but yet I don't get the sense that he is using very much of it since he has not been going through savings cards as much as he used to. He said the problem is that younger patients who come to see him are typically on higher doses of opioids, 8 Percocet per day, for example, & therefore are beyond the Butrans range. He said the patients who he would like to use it in are those who are older. Reviewed managed care & savings information. I asked if he would at least try to identify additional Butrans patients, perhaps in the 50-60 yr old range. He agreed. I asked if he would agree that OxyContin is a good medication. He said yes, but its stigma prevents him from using it. Gave Intermezzo information pack
PPLPMDL0020000001	Hudson	OH	44236	2/6/2013	Led with insight and dr said he does a pretty good job with it but when it happens with any product it sets him back. I asked him what he does then? Dr said he must reevaluate the patients pain and determines if he is going to treat or refer. Dr said that all patients are different and it does take time to determine those types of things. I told him that Purdue has tons of resources that can help his patients bond with our products stronger. I discussed all Butrans, OxyContin and intermezzo key selling messages. Dr said that he does not use much OxyContin anymore but feels comfortable w/ Butrans but said he has found it difficult trying to get patients to use it when they have taken a lot of IR opioids for many years. I told dr to initiate Butrans earlier in the treatment plan and it may help. Reviewed approximate conversions, adverse events, and applications sites. I showed him the patient information guides and their value to his patients. I asked dr if it makes sense to initiate when a patient is failing Ultram to initiate Butrans instead of going to another IR opioid? Dr said it does and said he will
PPLPMDL0020000001	Warrensville Heights	OH	44122	2/6/2013	Quick call- Reviewed with Dr Zivic 7 tablet strengths of Butrans, pointing out intermediate doses. He just waited, thanked me, & walked away. Reviewed broad managed care coverage for OxyContin with Michelle. She said she does not have a problem with OxyContin being covered.
	TWINSBURG	OH	44087	2/7/2013	Spoke with Amy, pharmacist, & gave her Intermezzo pharmacy information, pointing out 3 key points. She said they have a customer on it who is doing well. She added that the patient had tried other sleep aids in the past, but she did not like them, so she is very happy to have Intermezzo now. Also gave her Butrans & OxyContin updated savings cards. She said she doesn't see much movement of Butrans because Suboxone seems to be the preferred medication. I reviewed that Butrans is only for pain & is not equivalent to Suboxone. Amy said she did not realize this & was happy to know that. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range. She said that helped her understand who Butrans is for.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/7/2013	Good discussion over lunch about all products. Janet knew about OxyContin but not Butrans or intermezzo. I discussed indication, dosing, appropriate patients and conversions from oxycodone to OxyContin. Gave full presentation on Butrans and intermezzo discussing all key selling messages. I asked Janet if she would see herself using Butrans for a patient uncontrolled on a IR opioid? Janet said she would and thinks it is a novel approach to pain management especially since it is a 7 day patch and a CII. I asked her if she would try it and she agreed. Janet said that she also thinks intermezzo is a good product and agreed to find patients to use it. Discussed all savings cards and left information for Dr Lonsdorf.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Twinsburg	OH	44087	2/7/2013	Spoke with pharmacist, Bob, & gave him intermezzo pharmacy information. Pointed out 3 key points. He said he was aware of intermezzo but they do not stock it due to lack of activity. He added that it can be ordered in next day if someone gets a prescription. He asked about savings for IR. I let him know it is part of Relay Health's e-voucher. Gave him new trial/savings cards for Butrans & OxyContin & explained how to use & eligibility

He asked if we could set up something for next month, so he can get his feet on the ground. Appt was scheduled for March 5 @ 1:00
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	2/7/2013	Spoke to Amy about intermezzo. Amy said she had a prescription come through last week so she ordered the 1.75 dose. Discussed the indication, limitations of use, dosing and copy cards. Amy said she did not know about doses for men and women and also said she just thought it was a low dose Ambien. She thanked me for the clarification. Discussed Butrans/nin appropriate starting dose and how to titrate. She said she only has about 3
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	2/7/2013	Discussed drs ability to continue to be efficient with his prescribing of medicines and looking at patient type specifics. I recapped the last call saying that he likes Butrans but the Medicare coverage makes it tough. I told dr that I'm guessing that he has patients with commercial insurance that would be appropriate for Butrans. I reviewed the Scott case profile and made sure dr knew how to initiate Butrans starting dose at 10mcg for that patient. I asked dr if he has patients that fit that profile? Dr said he might and agreed to look for them. I provided intermezzo dosing, indication, limitations of use and asked him to prescribe. Dr asked what the price is for intermezzo? I told dr that I did not know and told him I was sure he could find it out.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	2/7/2013	Quick introduction to intermezzo. Reviewed indication, limitations of use, dosing and copy cards. Left pharmacy flash card.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	2/7/2013	Dr Hernandez said he couldn't talk today due to getting a late start & a long line of patients waiting. He said he has written both Butrans & OxyContin this week. I let him know I would return another day & told him I have been thinking about his practice & would want to get his thoughts on when to use short-acting opioids & when to use long-acting. He said that would be good. He said he was OK on savings information & hasn't had cost issues with Butrans since he saw me last.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	2/7/2013	Continued discussion about Butrans and intermezzo along with dr and bailey. Recapped the insight with dr and told her that when using Purdue products she has options for resources to help in increase the bond between the patient and their medicine. Dr said she likes that. I reviewed the Scott profile for Butrans and asked her if she would feel comfortable using Butrans for a patient like Scott. Dr said the product makes sense but she needs to determine if the patient is treatable by her or she needs to refer out. Explained intermezzo dosing, indication, and limitations for use. I asked dr if she would try it and dr said ok.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	2/7/2013	Discussed new OxyContin copy cards with dr and Liz. I asked if there have been any new OxyContin prescriptions in the last week or two. Dr told me he is always prescribing. I asked if he has other extended release agents he goes to. Dr said he does not like Opana because it is not efficacious. Dr said he does like Nucynta because it works but is difficult to get approved. I reviewed the managed care with dr and asked for him to continue
	Tallmadge	OH	44278	2/7/2013	I asked dr what he does when he has a patient on Ultram who is not getting enough analgesia? Dr said that most of his patients on ultram are only taking 3-4 50mg doses a day and that the patients are therapeutically stable. I asked him if and when the patient on Ultram is NOT therapeutically stable if Butrans makes sense? Dr said maybe. I asked him if he has patients on Vicodin? Dr said yes. I reviewed the Vicodin patient profile and asked him if it makes sense to go to Butrans when the patient is not therapeutically stable? Dr said maybe and he does not want to treat chronic pain? I asked dr if he has a ceiling dose for either product before he makes the decision to move to another product? Dr said if he has a patient on a short acting for 3 months or longer he refers out. I asked him if he believes that he can manage a patients pain beyond ultram or Vicodin will he use Butrans? Dr said maybe. I asked dr if Butrans is in his e-scribe databases. Dr looked and said both Butrans and intermezzo are with all appropriate doses. Gave quick review of intermezzo with indication and dosing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	2/7/2013	Met w/ Staff Development Coordinator, Michelle Williams, introduced myself and purpose of visit. Unbranded and Branded Materials were reviewed. When I asked Michelle, if she was familiar with Butrans, She stated, "yes we have used it on Hospice patients." She also was excited about intermezzo and felt that there could be a need for that as well. Upon reviewing the Laxative Line w/ her, she said, "The staff needs educated on constipation immediately, that seems that our staff has a big problem recognizing that with our residents." She then said that she was going to forward the branded information to their NP, Pat Long and their Medical Director, Dr. Robert Norman. I asked, if there was a possibility for me to meet w/ them. Michelle stated that Pat works on Tuesdays & Thursdays and Dr. Norman is there quite frequently. An in-service on constipation was scheduled for 3/5 @ 2:30, Michelle said that I could meet w/ Pat Long at that time. A 2nd in-service on Pain was scheduled for 3/20 @ 2:30, which I will plan on meeting Dr. Norman on that day. I confirmed # of beds as 81, including LTC, Skilled & Hospice. She explained that they were restructuring their facility as "households", meaning that all 3 floors will be independent of each other. They also have an Assisted Living as well as Independent Living facility on the same grounds. Michelle stated that only about 20% of their residents are currently taking some type of pain medication. She said, "I know, thats not alot."cb>WOOLFKA added notes on 02/15/2013Good documentation of call notes
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44305	2/7/2013	I led with the insight again and asked dr what he is doing when a patient either stops taking an extended release opioid or switches from one product to another. Dr said that he must start over to determine what is the best medicine to prescribe to the dr. Dr said he likes that option on the Butrans patch for patients that cannot or should not take short acting narcotics. I told him that I guess that it takes a considerable amount of time to make those decisions? Dr said it does and it is frustrating. I told dr that Butrans is an excellent option for those patients who fail a short acting and have a condition that an IR product may not be the best option. I told dr that I want to be a resource for him and provide him and his patients with the tools necessary to strengthen the bond between his patients and their medicines. Dr said he would very much like what I can provide. I gave him the pain assessment comfort guide and told him I want to discuss other resources for my products each time I come in. Dr agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	2/8/2013	Stopped Dr Jack between patients & told him I just had one direct, quick question for him. I asked him why not give Butrans a try for some appropriate patients in his practice today. He said he doesn't know. I reminded him that he has told me that he has a patient on it, who he has told me is doing well. He said that is correct. I asked why then not allow other patients who are appropriate to try it- especially if they have commercial insurance & are not currently getting adequate analgesia. Dr Jack said it makes sense to use a long-acting option when a patient's condition is chronic. I agreed & asked again why not allow some appropriate patients to try it to see if it benefits them. He said he guesses he has nothing to lose. I agreed. I asked if that meant he was going to write it & he said he would.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	2/8/2013	Dr started out by asking me if all the doses of OxyContin have been reformulation. I handed him the field card and told him to read the card. I asked him why he asked? Dr said that he heard that the 10 and 15mg doses were not reformulated. I asked if he heard this or read this information. Dr said that he heard it. I told dr that he needs to rely on me for information about OxyContin. Dr agreed that he would going forward. Dr said that it is becoming more difficult to get Butrans approved. I asked where and he said he couldn't remember. I told dr that I will review the formulary with him on my next visit.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	2/8/2013	Short discussion about the Nancy Vicodin profile and I asked her if it makes sense for her to identify a patient like her in the practice? Dr said she is working on it. Nothing else learned.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	2/8/2013	I asked dr if the office has a policy about how pain patients need to be treated before pain management specialists get involved? Dr said that Dr Bonyo is trying to set a 2 week treatment period and if the patient is not under control in that time period then the patients gets referred. I asked if a patient gets initiated on Butrans when would you see the patient back? Dr said in two weeks. I told dr that it may not be long enough for Butrans since it is a 7 day patch. Dr said possibly and I need to take it up with him. Reviewed the Nancy Vicodin profile and asked her to TRY it in a patient like her.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/8/2013	Delivered insight 1 to Dr Roheny & asked how it impacts his practice when this occurs. He didn't respond. I told him I was asking because it is my true goal to partner with him as well as his staff to provide resources & tools that he can use in treating patients with our extended-release opioids like Butrans & OxyContin. Dr Roheny said he would like me to bring resources like a pain contract fo his practice. I let him know I would bring him any information I could find & reminded him about Purdue/CP.com & Partners Against Pain. Left Intermezzo information packet.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	2/8/2013	I told dr that I have a solution for his patients that are either failing on Vicodin or those that he does not want to up titrate the Vicodin based on patients still in pain. I reviewed the case study on Vicodin and told dr that he should use Butrans for his Medco, Medical Mutual and Caresource patients and explained copy card. Dr said he understood it but is concerned that his patients won't want to take it. I told him he needs to educate his patients about Butrans and gave him a patient information guide. Dr said ok and he will give it a try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	2/8/2013	Gave review of intermezzo and asked if they has seen any more prescriptions? Jessica said she has not filled anymore but has the 1.75mg dose in stock. 	Independence	OH	44131	2/8/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Pai. He interrupted me, shaking his head "no" & said "not in my practice." Dr Pai said he finds that if these patients do discontinue, it is to switch to another long-acting option. He said patients in real pain like long-acting opioids in his experience. I agreed that he should be cautious in prescribing & asked what else he attributes a lower discontinuation rate to- what processes does he have in place during those first 35 days to ensure the patient has the best possible experience with the medication. He said he talks to the patient & explains why he is giving them a long-acting option. He went on to add that another big reason patients discontinue is because of managed care coverage changes. He said plans will cover something, then they change. He referenced an OxyContin patient on Caresource & one on Medicare D UHC. I asked what I, as the rep, can do to help him in his practice with initiating OxyContin or Butrans. He said nothing & that he doesn't use patient education & sometimes even forgets to bring savings. I let him know I could help Jill learn about savings as well so she can help him with that. Dr Pai said patients aged 50-60 who may be appropriate for Butrans tend to not have any insurance, which he added is unfortunate because that is where he would like to use it. I let him know I would continue to look for tools that may help him & his patients. Gave Intermezzo packet of information & delivered indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	2/8/2013	Discussed Intermezzo dosing, indication and limitations for use. Showed the pharmacy card. Gave quick review of Butrans indication and appropriate starts dose. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/8/2013	Good discussion with dr about his frustrations with treating his patients in pain. Dr said that it is very difficult too try and figure out how to get a patients pain under control. I dr talked about how his patients come to him on multiple short acting medicines and he feels he is in over his head and that he gets nervous on how hard the DEA and FDA is coming down on I restricting pain management. I told dr that Butrans is a product that is administered through a transdermal system and that if his patients are dissatisfied with their current therapy why would you not use a product he has not used before? Dr agreed. I explained Butrans indication, dosing, and how it is a CII/7 day transdermal patch. I told him to at least try it clinically in the right patient, which I explained, with the right formulary and to let the product speak for itself.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/8/2013	Short talk over coffee about his recent Butrans patient. Dr started off by telling me that he has not heard back from the patient about cost, efficacy or adverse events so he is glad that all things are good. I asked when he has the patient coming back in and he said in a couple of weeks. I asked him if the efficacy meets or exceeds his or the patient expectations will you continue to use more Butrans? Dr said that he will for sure. I gave him the Intermezzo dosing card and reviewed the indication, dosing and limitations of use. I asked dr if he feels he could find a place for it? Dr said he does think he will use it. Nothing else learned.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	2/11/2013	Doctor told me that he recently titrated a male patient with chronic low back pain from 10mcg to 20mcg. Patient told dr that he was not getting any pain relief even with the 20mcg. Patient had commercial insurance but cloaked cost was too high. Dr did not have any cost information. I discussed with dr that some patients may not have a positive experience and even though a vast majority of his patients experience has been positive, he will have patients that Butrans will not work well. Dr said despite a couple of experiences that have not been positive, he still believes in Butrans and will continue prescribing. I gave dr a quick review of the initiation and titration guide and asked him to continue to follow. Quick mention of Intermezzo dosing and indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44303	2/11/2013	I introduced Intermezzo but Rod said he knew about it because he had seen the commercial and said he thought it sounds like a good medicine at is needed. I explained the indication, limitations of use and dosing differences. Rod said he didn't know there was a men's and women's dose. He asked about formulary coverage and told him I am still waiting on it which he thought was weird. I explained new OxyContin copay cards and he has he continues to fill it occasionally. He has not filled a Butrans prescription yet.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	2/11/2013	Discussed Intermezzo indication, limitations of use and doses. Tom(pharmacist) said that he has filled one prescription. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	2/11/2013	I asked dr if he had implemented any of the resources we discussed on the last visit. Dr said he has not had time yet and to speak with Marsha about it. I told him that the Butrans experience kits are the most important resource he has to strengthen the bond between His patients and Butrans. Dr said he gave one out already. I asked if it was a new patient and he said yes. I reminded dr to use Butrans for his BWC and Caresource patients like we discussed when they meet the indication. I explained new Butrans copay cards to Marsha and the value to of the Butrans patient information guides and they are to be given to the patient at the time of the
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	2/11/2013	Speaking with Jen at window and dr walked up. I asked if patients are able to get OxyContin at a good price or if they have been having to due more PA's an normal. Dr and Jen both said that OxyContin goes pretty smoothly and do not have too many issues with coverage. I asked dr to continue to move his Percocet patients to the q12h OxyContin. Discussed Butrans formulary coverage based on their patients coverage. I explained the Aetna win and explained the Caresource win. Dr said he has not used Butrans for too many Caresource patients but he said that it certainly will make it easier to prescribe for that population. I asked dr to use his experience kits.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma Heights	OH	44130	2/11/2013	Left the Intermezzo dosing guide and explained to Jen. Jen said they have lots of copay cards in Canton.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	2/11/2013	Made a drop-in visit to speak w/ D.O.N., Katherine Myers to set up appt. to discuss educational opportunities and schedule in-service. Spoke w/ receptionist, Helen who said Katherine is in a "First Path" meeting. Left my BC w/ handouts.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/11/2013	Good discussion, but a confusing one, surrounding insight. I asked dr about his experiences surrounding discontinuation rates in his practice with his patients on extended release opioids? Dr said that if patients of his stop taking their extended release opioid it is because they have felt they don't need it anymore because their pain has reduced. I asked dr if his patients are being placed on short acting opioids? Dr said not typically. Dr said that it he sees a patient on an opioid it is usually following a surgical procedure and the opioid has been prescribed initially by the surgeon. Dr said he will either continue the opioid or discontinue based on the patients pain level. I asked dr if he believes that a patient of his must understand why they are being placed on a certain medication and that the more a patient understands what and why they are taking it would make them feel more comfortable taking it? Dr said he agrees with that. I discussed the resources available for my products and discussed the partners against pain resources. Dr wanted the web key and Butrans information guides. Reviewed the OxyContin and Butrans patient types and importance of initiating appropriately for each. Dr agreed to continue prescribing and that he will look for the right patients we discussed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44309	2/11/2013	While on my way to making a drop-in visit, I rec'd a phone call from ADON, Jasvir Brar, inquiring about the NE program from my BC that I left from a previous visit. Dr Popa just walked away. Spoke with Renee & asked what her role in the office involves. She said she talks to patients on the phone, takes messages, & checks patients in. I asked if she does anything with regard to medications. She said not really, adding that she gives those calls to nurses typically, but does take messages regarding medications at times. I asked if they give out savings information when they have it. She said they try but sometimes just get too busy to do it. I asked what I can do, as a rep, to make things easier for her or the other staff members. She said she can't think of anything.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Hudson	OH	44236	2/12/2013	Reviewed OxyContin broad formulary coverage from commercial to Part D plans, including the majority of AARP patients. I asked why and she said because CII's are for pain management. I asked her if Butrans is in the cards at all for her to prescribe? She said possibly but the patients she spoke to about it doing want patches. I told dr about the resources available to back up when she is speaking to her patients about Purdue products. I told me to leave information and she will ok it over. Nothing else learned.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	2/12/2013	Reminded Dr Agarwal of the information regarding extended-release opioid medication discontinuations & told him it was my goal to partner with him as well as his staff to provide resources & tools for OxyContin & Butrans in effort to give him & his patients the most success possible when starting these medication. He just waved & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001					Spoke with pharmacist, Lauren, & gave her Intermezzo pharmacy piece. Pointed out 3 key points. She said she has not dispensed any nor do they stock it. Updated her on Butrans & OxyContin savings cards & discussed eligibility requirements for usage. She said they do have some customers on Butrans & also carry OxyContin. She said the cards would help with the ever-rising co-pays that customers seem to have.

	Cleveland	OH	44130	2/12/2013	Dr Fedorko said he hasn't found anyone for Butrans yet. He added that "no one" wants to pay for medications anymore, so he always has to write what is cheap. I told him I understand it can appear that way sometimes & let him know I was there as a resource to provide tools to help him know what plans have favorable coverage specifically for my products, Butrans & OxyContin. I asked what I can provide him & his staff with that would help them ensure patients who he does decide to prescribe for have an opportunity to try the medications at the lowest out-of-pocket cost possible. He said it doesn't matter because they just deny the script anyway. CHUDAKOB's query on 02/21/2013-Ashleigh, instead of asking what you can provide, think about just providing him something based on your conversation. Usually asking physicians what we can provide leads them to tell you nothing or what Fedorko said, as they do not know what we have to provide. Make senseAPSEGAS's response on 02/21/2013-Yes. I plan to use the pain management kit for this.CHUDAKOB added notes on 02/24/2013-Ok. PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	2/12/2013	Short discussion about Butrans patient profiles with Scott and Nancy. Explained new patient savings cards with Butrans and asked him to continue identifying new patients. Dr said he continues to be impressed with it and asked when Medicare will pick it up? I told dr I didn't know but to continue focusing on the commercial patient who meets the indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/12/2013	Dr Khoobball apologized, saying he hasn't had anyone to put on Butrans, but he thinks for the right type of patient it would be a good option. He showed me that he has his initiation guide I gave him in the event that a patient who he thinks is appropriate presents. Reviewed appropriate starting doses & titration ability after 3 days if necessary. I asked Dr Khoobball what processes he has in place when initiating a medication to ensure success for the patient. He said he spends time with his patients & talks to them about their medicines but that is it. I asked if resources such as patient education & pain assessment tools are helpful. He said he guesses but he just does not treat a lot of pain. I let him know I can provide resources like these for Butrans so that when he does decide to prescribe, he & his patient have the tools necessary to ensure the best possible experience with the medication. Gave him some patient information booklets.CHUDAKOB added notes on 02/21/2013-It will be interesting to see how he responds to insight #2. Look forward to reading that note

PPLPMDL0020000001	Tallmadge	OH	44278	2/12/2013	Spoke to pharmacist again about intermezzo and asked if she thinks the product has a market place? She said she thinks it does but asked about insurance coverage. I told her I don't have information yet but the coverage is getting better. PPLPMDL0020000001	Strongsville	OH	44136	2/12/2013	Spoke with Megan, pharmacist, & gave her pharmacist information for Intermezzo, pointing out 3 key points. She said she has not seen any activity for Intermezzo, but was familiar with it. Reviewed updates for Butrans trial/savings cards & showed each one. She said they do have several customers who get Butrans. She said she is surprised it is not more popular given the patient type, adding that she supposes it is due to physicians being overly comfortable with writing hydrocodone chronically. She also said she read recently that that "they" are trying to make hydrocodone a CII instead of CIII in effort to cut back on utilization of it. Reminded her of abuse/addiction potential of all opioid medications, including Butrans & OxyContin. She said they have many cancer patients who get relief from OxyContin. Provided new savings cards & updated her on program.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Tallmadge	OH	44278	2/12/2013	Good discussion surrounding Butrans and intermezzo. Discussed all key selling points with each product. Dr said he may be more open than others in the practice in possibly using Butrans. Dr said that in the times where the patient can't get into pain management and are in severe pain, he might see the need to provide the initial prescription. Dr said he lied the transdermal application and that it is a CIII. Dr said he sees himself using intermezzo because he knows that many of his patients have complained of middle of the night awakening. I asked for his commitment and he agreed to give it a try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/13/2013	Dr Al-Abousi said she hasn't used Butrans. She said when a patient has chronic back pain, she refers to pain management because those tend to be the more difficult cases where patients have tried "everything" & "nothing" is working. She said she would think of Butrans if she has someone in severe pain. I showed her appropriate range of patients & pointed out that if the patient is on more than 80 mg morphine (40mg hydrocodone or oxycodone) per day, they are out of the appropriate range. Discussed possibility of Butrans for appropriate patients aged 50-60 who have pain from osteoarthritis. Discussed Butrans as a CII opioid with abuse & addiction potential. Explained that CII means she can call it in & write up to 5 refills in a 6 month period. Showed patient information booklet. I asked if she discussed possibility of titration up front with a patient when starting them on a medication. She said she always does. I told her this is a good thing to do. Also showed her pain management kit & pointed out pain assessment tools & pain agreement. She said these are good tools & said she would use some of them in her practice. Dr Al-Abousi said she uses OxyContin for severe or cancer pain or in some of her nursing home patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/13/2013	I asked Dr Taylor what she thinks contributes to discontinuations of long-acting opioids most frequently. She said people know what medication they want when they come in & they will just discontinue anything that isn't that medication. She said she is paranoid about OH laws regarding pain management & chronic opioid therapy. I reminded her that there are patients in legitimate pain who can still benefit from opioid medications & our goal was to make her as comfortable treating those patients as possible. She said she recently started doing drug screening & I told her this was a great tool to use & should help give her the confidence to treat appropriate patients. She said Butrans is the only long-acting opioid she prescribes. I asked her to tell me about a patient type who she would try Butrans on. She said no one. She added that she is not starting any new patients on OxyContin either. She said she's taking no new patients at all & isn't switching anyone's medications at this time. Asked why keep patients on Vicodin around-the-clock chronically when they could be appropriate for medications like Butrans. She said it is difficult to take patients off or taper them down. Gave her pain assessment tools & sample pain agreement from the pain management kit & she said that would be very helpful in her being less paranoid & comfortable with treating these patients. I let her know I had many tools that could help her & would follow up on these tools.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	2/13/2013	Dr Hernandez said he continues to have clinical success with Butrans & uses it "all the time". He said he recently had a patient tell him that a CVS or Walgreens told a patient that they are no longer going to order branded medication & will only carry generics. I told him I had not heard that from anywhere else. He added that he also had a patient who has Anthem insurance for prescription coverage & has a deductible on the plan. When she went to use the trial card, the pharmacy would not allow her to use it. I asked if it was a Medicare plan & he said it definitely was not. I let him know I would look into this at that CVS location. I reminded Dr Hernandez that he has told me many times of the success he has had with treating patients who were on Opana or OxyContin who are getting relief from Butrans 20mcg, but I wanted to talk more about patients on the other end of the spectrum, such as those taking hydrocodone 4-6 times a day. He said he just had a patient start on 5mcg Butrans who had been referred by a chiropractor who had multiple herniated discs. He said he just wrote it yesterday, so he will let me know how the patient does. Asked what the clinical benefit of keeping patients on hydrocodone around-the-clock chronically would be, since so many physicians seem to do that. He said there is none & that doctors only do that because they are lazy. Asked if his goal is to get patients on long-acting opioids as soon as possible. He said his goal is to get pts out of pain.

Dr told me that the patient said she is highly allergic to many medicines and researched Butrans and said it sounds like it would be a good option for her. Dr said he initiated her on the 10mcg dose because she was taking 20mg of hydrocodone a day. Dr. asked about metabolism and elimination of Butrans since the patient asked. Dr said he looked it up but wanted confirmation. I discussed the appropriate sections in the FPI with him.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Alakon	OH	44313	2/13/2013	Spoke to Tina and the doctor through the window about formulary coverage with OxyContin. I review plan coverage specific to their practice and asked if they have had any issues with coverage or unusual PA's? Dr said one of the reasons he uses OxyContin is because it is covered so well and he doesn't have to worry about an issues. Tina agreed and said she gets the call backs and does the approvals and has not had any for a while. I told dr that his top 4 prescription plans in his practice Medco, medical mutual, BWC and Caresource are all preferred. I explained the Caresource PA. Dr said he remembers me taking about it. I told dr to use Butrans when a patient falling on a short acting and he doesn't want to up titrate the short acting to move to Butrans. I asked dr if he will try it in his next Vicodin patient before he decide to titrate? Dr said he will.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Alakon	OH	44320	2/13/2013	I asked dr to walk me through a Vicodin patient and how he would initiate someone who was taking 20mg/day? Dr said he high he would start at the 10mcg as he was looking at the initiation and titration guide. I told dr he was right and that I was sure he had many patients that wild meet the indication. Dr said he agreed and asked bat cost. I asked dr if he knew which prescription plans were most important? Dr said I needed to speak to Rhonda or Wanda about coverage. Rhonda was off for the day.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/13/2013	Dr Kalin said one of the patients he put on Butrans experienced tachycardia & anxiety. He said the patient had been on opioids around-the-clock for years prior to starting Butrans. Asked if he allows supplemental analgesia. He said usually not & asked if he should. Discussed that patients who are already on opioids between 15-40mg per day of hydrocodone or oxycodone would start at 10mcg & could take supplemental analgesia if necessary, especially during the early stages of Butrans therapy. He said that makes sense & added that this patient probably was showing signs of withdrawal. Dr Kalin said he likes Butrans & would use it for pts taking 4-6 hydrocodone or oxycodone per day. I asked what his philosophy on using short-acting opioids vs long-acting. He said if it is a acute condition, short-acting should be used, but if it was a chronic condition, long-acting would be appropriate. He said he feels most comfortable with Methadone because he has the most experience with it & it also works on receptors other than the mu opioid receptor, so he likes those qualities as well. He told me about a patient who he has who came to him on 20mg 3 times a day of OxyContin, well-controlled. He said he keeps him on this dose. I asked if he would consider titrating to 30mg q12h, pointing out that OxyContin should be dosed q12h, not 3 times a day. He said he knows that, but the patient is steady & he wouldn't feel comfortable dosing OxyContin higher, he would switch to Methadone.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44221	2/13/2013	Led with the insight with both drs in practice over lunch. Dr said that she does not typically prescribe extended release opioids except for Butrans. Both drs said they don't think of Butrans of a true extended release opioid because it is a patch and is very low dose. The drs said that discontinuation is a problem and that is why they take the time with their patients explaining the product they are giving to their patient. I spoke about the resources available to help strengthen the bond between Butrans and their patients. I gave him the ultram and Vicodin patient profiles and asked him to continue to identify appropriate patients. I reminded him to titrate if necessary every 72 hours. Gave dr new formulary flash card.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/14/2013	I showed Dr Roheny the pain management kit & walked him through the pain assessment tools & sample pain contract. He looked through the book & said he thought these were good resources. I asked if he would implement them in his practice & he said yes. I told him I wanted him to feel comfortable & confident in treating the appropriate patients in his practice with opioids when the time arises. I told him the more documentation & information about the patient he has, the more at ease he could feel in prescribing for appropriate patients. I asked if he finds that when he starts patients on short-acting opioids, he ends up continuing the patient month after month because their condition ends up being chronic. He said that happens often. I asked what the clinical benefit of keeping a patient like that on short-acting opioids around-the-clock is. He said there is none. I told him this is an example of a situation where he may find Butrans to be an appropriate option. He said his understanding is that coverage is not very good. I told him this is not necessarily the case & reviewed coverage. He looked at his schedule & said there was one patient who was on there who is taking tramadol chronically who has commercial insurance. Showed initiation guide & showed how to find the recommended starting dose of Butrans. Discussed ability to titrate after 3 days & recommended having the patient call after 3 days. Discussed ability to take supplemental analgesia. He said he would try it today
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	2/14/2013	Spoke with Dave, pharmacist, & gave him Intermezzo pharmacy self information. Discussed indication & patient type, & pointed out that there is no generic equivalent to Intermezzo. He said they don't stock it & he has seen a few prescriptions, but insurance is not covering it, so he does not end up dispensing it. Discussed coverage. I asked him about the patient who Dr Hernandez told me about with Anthem commercial coverage who this CVS location allegedly would not allow the patient to use the trial card. Dave said that is not their policy & unless the patient had Anthem Medicare coverage. Dave said this information upsets him because that is not the way they do business. He said he will be sure to enforce this with current staff to ensure it does not happen again.

I discuss pain & pain management education opportunities. unbranded/branded materials were reviewed. Current tool used to assess pain is Wong-Baker. Sue stated that the STNA's assess Residents pain routinely, and then report to the Nurses, upon assisting the Residents w/bathing. They currently use Vicodin to treat pain. The 130 bed facility is made up of Skilled and Hospice. I asked if it would be possible to meet w/ their Medical Director or NP. They have no NP on staff. She said, "I will pass the branded info. onto the Medical Director, he is not here that often and when he is, he is seeing residents." Sue felt this educational program would be of benefit to her staff. Sue said she would call me to schedule an in-service b/c she did not have her calendar present and she had a family meeting to get to.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	2/14/2013	Provided review of nap nancy and Scott Butrans profiles and asked her that after her gabapentin when the patient needs more will she initiate Butrans? Dr said she would go to Vicodin first then move to Butrans after they hit 3 pills/day. Agreed that it would be a good place to initiate Butrans and asked her to gain some clinical experience with it to know for herself. Dr agreed that she would. Explained intermezzo messages and asked her if it is applicable for her patients a. Dr said for sure and she has read up on it and likes that it is sublingual and prn.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cuyahoga Falls	OH	44223	2/14/2013	Dr said he prescribed a Butrans the other day. I asked him about the patient and he said it was a patient taking 10mg/day of Percocet around the clock but was not getting enough pain relief. I asked him why Butrans and he said he didn't want to titrate the Percocet and the patient didn't mind the patch. Nothing else learned.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/14/2013	I asked Myra what typically triggers her to start a patient on Butrans. She said if the patient has long-lasting pain, or mentions having to wake up to take their pain medication at night, or just doesn't seem completely well-controlled on their short-acting medication, that is a Butrans candidate. She said she has had some people ask if they can put a new patch on before the 7 day period. She asked what to do. I asked if titration of Butrans would be an option for some of these patients. She said the one patient she is thinking of is on 10mcg, so she can increase them to 20mcg. Also reviewed ability to take supplemental analgesia with Butrans. Myra said there is a large psychological component. Discussed the importance of setting expectations with patients up-front that they will eventually decrease the amount of short-acting medication they take with Butrans, with the goal being for Butrans to provide the pain relief. Also discussed using acetaminophen or ibuprofen for supplemental analgesia. Spoke with Dawn & reviewed formulary information. She said they seem to be having problems with pharmacies with pharmacists telling patients that it is cheaper for them to take Vicodin, Ultram, or Methadone, trying to convince patients to change. Dawn agreed to keep a list of pharmacies that this is happening in so that I
PPLPMDL0020000001	cuyahoga falls	OH	44223	2/14/2013	Dr said he saw the information. Intermezzo that I left. Dr asked if it is low dose Ambien? I explained the indication, limitations of use and dosing specifics. I asked dr if he thought he would find a use for it? Dr said possibly.

Explained indication, limitations of use, dosing specifics and copay cards. Cindy said she thinks it is a good product and there is a need for it. Cindy said it is important that I specify with pharmacists that intermezzo is NOT Ambien. Asked about prescriptions of Butrans or OxyContin? Cindy said for some reason the pain center is not sending patients to them of at least their initial prescription. Cindy said that their prices are considerably less expensive than other pharmacies especially for my products. I told her I will speak with th discharge nurses and doctors about why patients are not being sent to New Choice to fill their prescriptions. CHUDAKOB's query on 02/21/2013Cliff. Make sure you are not recommending pharmacies to physicians. If you ask them why they are not sending patients to that pharmacy that may give the implication that they should be. I would suggest staying away from discussing this with physicians. Make sense?REICHL's response on 02/22/2013YesCHUDAKOB added notes on 02/24/2013Ok. Thanks!

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/15/2013	Delivered Insight 1 to Dr Rakhit. He said he is disgusted with this country America & how it has created patients who are "literally like dirty dogs" on pain medications. He added that India, a poor country, does not have these issues with opioid abuse like we do here. I told Dr Rakhit that I understand his frustrations, but attempted to re-direct him to appropriate patients who can benefit from pain medications like opioids. I told him my goal was to help increase his comfort level in treating these appropriate patients. He said there aren't any. I offered the pain management kit resources & tools, letting him know these are designed for this purpose. He said he doesn't want to do it & that he hates these patients. I asked if he would agree that some patients legitimately need pain medications due to a chronically painful condition, reminding him that he has shared with me in the past that he has many patients on Percocet. I told him I was merely there to be a resource for my company's medications, OxyContin & Butrans. I explained that OxyContin is a q12h dose of the same medicine as patients get in Percocet, so if he has someone taking Percocet around-the-clock, they can take an equivalent dose of medication in q12h dosing. Showed conversion guide. I asked that if he has even one appropriate patient who fits the description, he try OxyContin for them. He said that did make sense he guesses.

Dr said he has started two or three patients but said he is confused on where to use it. I reviewed the new opioid experienced patient initiation guide and reviewed approximate conversions and patient types. Dr said he guesses he did understand because the patients he thought were candidates for Butrans are what I explained. I left dr with the patient profiles and told him I would follow up.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	2/15/2013	Reminded Dr Kansal of or last conversation regarding discontinuations of extended-release opioids. He said patients don't like the long acting options because they like the feeling short-acting opioids offer. I asked what the clinical benefit of keeping a patient on short-acting opioids around-the-clock if their condition is chronic is. He said there isn't one, then said he had to go.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/15/2013	Quick discussion in lab about her identifying patient for Butrans. I asked dr if he wild AI's start to identify more patients for Butrans and to look for this w/ commercial insurance? Dr said he this Butrans works well but said he has tried it for Medicare patients and it was too expensive. I reviewed new formulary grid and asked him if those plans apply for prescription insurance in his practice? Dr said they do and will continue to look.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/19/2013	Quick call. Followed-up on our recent conversation when Dr Roheny committed to writing Butrans for a female tramadol patient that day. He said unfortunately, this patient did not show up to the appointment, so he has not yet written Butrans. Reviewed appropriate patient type/range & showed formulary grid. I asked if he could find another patient this week & he said he would try.

	Independence	OH	44131	2/19/2013	I reminded Dr Sundaram of our previous conversation & let him know my goal is not to get him to write more pain medication, but rather to feel comfortable & confident in treating the right patients with opioids if he feels they are medically necessary for a patient. I showed him the pain management kit, letting him know I have multiple resources that, when implemented, can help with comfort level in treating pain in general. I showed patient history & pain contract sample. Dr Sundaram said he has implemented a few new things to assist him in appropriate patient selection, but wanted to see our tools to see if there was anything he could add. He was especially interested in the pain contract. He said he recently put one in place, but he was open to adding things or changing them. He said he really does hate treating pain. I told him I understand, but my goal is to advocate for the right patients, even if it is a small number in his practice. He said he thinks they are adding some pain management specialists at the office a few days a week, so he will be referring even more.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	2/19/2013	I led with the insight with the doctor and he immediately told me that he does not have a history of prescribing extended release opioids and tried to avoid it. I asked why and he said that patients in chronic pain should be seeing a specialist. I asked him how he defines chronic? Dr said anyone in pain and taking an opioid for 3+ months. I asked if he considers Butrans as a product that fits that description? Dr said he can see himself using it for a patient that he feels he can manage and is on the up and up. I reviewed appropriate patients and initial dosing and titration. Dr said he will look for patients. Introduced intermezzo indication, limitations of use and dosing specifics. Dr said he has patients that meet the indication and will use it when the time comes,
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	2/19/2013	Led with insight with both drs and Dr Hershberger said that he does not have much discontinuation. Dr said the only discontinuation he has is when he changes a medicine from one to another. Good discussion about his practice and how he treats his patients in pain. Dr said he looked over my Butrans piece I left him last visit and said he is intrigued. I do, aimed all key selling messages and discussed appropriate patients with case studies. Dr said he can see himself using it for his patients that want more Vicodin. I explained appropriate starting dose. Dr said he tries to switch patients on IR oxycodone to OxyContin but said he is Leary at times using CII's because of the abuse potential. Dr said he likes that Butrans is a CII and is a 7 day patch. Dr said he would feel more comfortable using a patch instead of pills. Dr said he will try Butrans for a Vicodin patient. Explained intermezzo key selling messages.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	2/19/2013	Gave quick message about Butrans. I told her that on our last call we talked about the resources she can use for her patients she initiates on Butrans. I reviewed the information guide and the assessment guide as well as the new patient savings cards. Dr said she is trying to find patients. I led her with the case studies. Left intermezzo dosing and administration guide and OxyContin conversion guide.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	2/19/2013	Spoke with Rosemary and Matt about intermezzo indication, limitations of use and dosing specifics. Neither pharmacist knew the dosing specifics based on sex and age. Pharmacy has the 1.75 mg dose. Matt said they just dispensed an intermezzo last week for the 1.75mg dose. Discussed the copy cards and 5 free pills. Explained Butrans dosing and titration and new copy cards. Rosemary said they have the 5 and 10mcg doses but have not filled any recently. I told pharmacists about the OxyContin dosing and they said they had all 7 doses in stock.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/19/2013	Quick call- Dr Ortega said he just returned from a long trip to the Philippines so he has not started anyone new on Butrans or OxyContin to tell me about. I showed him the pain management kit & let him know I had these resources to share with him next time I come in that are designed to help him, his staff, & his patients with issues related to pain management. Dr Ortega said he wants to look at them but didn't have time today- he said to come back another time. Showed Cindy the kit & she said Dr Ortega would definitely be interested in tools like those even though they have several measures in place already. She added that they recently started urine drug screening. I told her this was a great way to help protect the practice. I asked if they used DARRS. Cindy said they do not as their computer connection is very slow. She said the pharmacists are usually pretty good about alerting them to problems. I encouraged her to have Dr Ortega look into signing up for it as a way for them to catch potential problems before even writing the prescription.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/19/2013	Good discussion with dr on all products. I led with the insight and dr said he is trying to get patients down on opioids as much as possible but when a patient does discontinue a product it takes much more time to figure out the next course of action. I asked how it affects his staff? Dr said anytime a patients stops taking a medicine or is taking too much it slows his staff down. I told dr that Purdue products have many resources available for its products to help the patient become more educated about the medicine they are on. I discussed OxyContin dosing and conversions from oxycodone. Dr said he tries to get patients off of oxycodone and on hydrocodone. I asked why and he said because of the abuseability. I asked dr if it makes sense to move a patient that is failing. Oxycodone to the q12h oxycodone. Dr said he can understand the benefit of that. I reviewed case studies and asked for him to continue using. I explained all key selling messages for Butrans and explained product in detail. Dr said he can see the viability of Butrans for his tramadol patients who are in pain and want more. Dr said he will try Butrans in that setting. Told Barb about Butrans and OxyContin and that comprehensive pain management is building a new office next to Giant Eagle and they may see an increase in prescriptions. I told Barb to ensure they had as many doses of Purdue products as they could. Especially OxyContin and Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/20/2013	Quick call- Caught Roberta at the window. I passed back updated Butrans formulary grid & asked if she pays attention to that type of information before writing a prescription. She looked at the grid & asked about BWC, so I told her they are paying for it without prior authorization at this time. Reviewed appropriate patient type & asked her to recommend it to Dr Yokiel if she sees a patient who is appropriate for Butrans therapy.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	2/20/2013	I asked all drs if they are telling me that the office has a policy to treat pain for two weeks then if the patient needs additional pain medicine that they refer to pain management is there room for Butrans? Dr Adams said she thinks there is because she would rather give a patient a 7 day patch for pain instead of a bunch of short acting pills. I told dr she must be very specific with her patient selection and reviewed patient types and managed care plans. Dr said she will continue to look for appropriate patients. I also asked if intermezzo will be used? Dr said she thinks so as well. I explained indication, limitations of use and dosing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/20/2013	Quick call- Showed Dr Chagin the pain management kit & reminded him that he has expressed interest in resources like this in the past. He said he didn't have time to review those today, but said I can come back to discuss them further because he does want this type of information. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	2/20/2013	I told dr that he should continue looking for Butrans candidates that are his current patients taking up to 40 mg of Vicodin per day. Dr said that he knows he needs to keep looking and that Char usually tells him when he might have a Butrans candidate. Dr said he is going to implement the pain assessment comfort guide into his practice but will make a few changes. I explained the partners against pain web key to doctor and Char and reviewed the tools available on the website. They both thought it was pretty cool and will look at it. PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/20/2013	Elaine said she was too far behind to stop. I showed Butrans patient information booklet & encouraged her to give them to patients for whom she is initiating Butrans in effort to help the patient have the best experience possible with the medicine. She agreed. Spoke with Dawn who said she just got a Butrans prescription approved on Medicare D. She added that the pharmacist (at CVS on Madison in Cleveland) wanted to switch the patient to morphine, but she told him he cannot do that. I asked what she had to do to get it approved. She said she & Myra sat on the phone with the plan & argued with them until the plan relented. She said they gained approval for one year for that patient. Dawn said she doesn't have time to sit there & do that for every patient. I reminded her of favorable coverage for Butrans elsewhere, so she wouldn't likely end up in that position very frequently.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/20/2013	I asked if she would do that on occasions when Myra or Elaine feels that Butrans is truly the best medication for that patient & she agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	2/20/2013	Quick call- I reminded Dr Yokiel that he had mentioned the importance of cost & coverage for medications & gave him updated formulary grids for Butrans & OxyContin. I asked if these would help him better keep track of coverage. He said he doesn't really have time to look up each medication on each person's plan. I suggested that spending this time up-front could help save his & his staff's time on the back end by helping to reduce call-backs due to non-coverage issues. He said that was a good point & walked away.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	2/20/2013	Spoke to Carla(pharmacist) about intermezzo. Carla said she is familiar with it and has dispensed it a couple of times. I told her that intermezzo is for sleep maintenance middle of the night awakenings and Ambien is for sleep onset. I told her both should not be taken in the same night. They have the 3.5mg dose in stock and have dispensed a couple recently. I asked about the Relay Health patient savings for Butrans and OxyContin. Kristen said she didn't know about patient savings appearing in their system. She asked a technician and she told her they did have it and if the patient forgets to bring in their savings card the system will show the pharmacist the savings available. I explained the additional savings for Butrans and OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Munroe Falls	OH	44262	2/20/2013	Continued discussion about insight and resources for Butrans. Dr said she has looked over the pain assessment guide and liked it and said she may use part of it. I asked if she has identified any new patients like Scott or nancy that we discussed last visits. Dr said no but she agrees with those patients. I introduced intermezzo and discussed indication, limitations of use and dosing specifics. Dr said she hears patients from time to time telling her that they have trouble getting back to sleep in the middle of the night and said he is interested in using it. I explained the copy cards which she said she will use.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	2/20/2013	Discussed how Butrans is deal for patients failing on ultram and he doesn't want to titrate the dose who meet the indication. Dr reminded me he wrote a couple of prescriptions recently. I asked for him to give me some information on how the patients are doing? Dr said they are doing fine. I asked what fine means? Dr said he hasn't heard anything about them not being able to pay for it or calls about efficacy. I asked when the follow up appointment is scheduled after the initiation? Dr said one month. I reminded dr that Butrans is good for 28 days and it may be necessary to have a follow up before 30 days. Dr said thanks.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	2/20/2013	Short discussion with doctor about his office policy on treating pain. Dr said he doesn't like treating because of the abuse potential and putting his practice at risk. I asked if there is room for Butrans? Dr said possibly but if it is not on Medicare it makes it difficult. I explained the patient type I'm looking for and formulary plans. Dr said he will try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	2/20/2013	Dr said she will not use OxyContin because of the office protocol and the abuseability. I discussed Butrans and intermezzo patient types and formulary plans. Discussed appropriate starting doses and patient types. Dr said she will look for patients.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	2/20/2013	Dr Hernandez said he was very busy today so he didn't have much time. He said he is writing Butrans & OxyContin & hasn't had any problems in the last week. I let him know I visited the CVS pharmacy that he had had an issue with & asked him to keep me informed if he has any other problems with pharmacies & Butrans. He said he thinks pharmacists are telling patients that they aren't carrying branded drugs anymore. He added that Humana is sending letters to patients saying that they will no longer cover anything but generics. I gave him updated formulary grids & asked if references like these help him & Regina. He said he would keep them for reference. I encouraged him to use them to determine the likelihood of coverage of Butrans or OxyContin before patients even get to the pharmacy so that he can verify accuracy of claims of non-coverage. I reminded him, however, that each plan has many options for coverage, so he should not rely on the grids entirely.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	2/20/2013	I told Dr Moufawad that it seems his interest in Butrans has decreased somewhat & asked why he thinks this is. He said he does feel like he is using it & OxyContin more, it is just that recently (over the last couple of months) he has had an increase in the number of patients who are displaying drug seeking behaviors, so he has not been starting as many patients probably. He said he remembers awhile back when that seemed to be an issue, but then it decreased. However, now he is seeing more & more patients who are not in real pain, so he has to get rid of those patients. I agreed that he should only treat patients with legitimate pain & told him he is doing the right thing by screening so carefully. He said Opana is going generic, so he feels that OxyContin will have an even bigger role in the market. He said he is going to keep prescribing Butrans & OxyContin.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	2/20/2013	Spoke with technician as pharmacist was busy. Reviewed intermezzo indication & dosing. She said she hasn't heard of it. Discussed patient type. Also showed information sheets on Butrans & OxyContin savings programs. She agreed to share the information with the pharmacist as soon as he was available.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/21/2013	Caught dr at window and asked him if he has any patients on Ultram or Vicodin who are failing with inadequate analgesia? Dr said he probably does but said Butrans is not covered on Medicare. I told dr that he is correct and asked him if he has patients with private prescription insurance? Dr said he does but mostly Medicare. Told dr to identify appropriate patients and handed him the profiles to review.

Dr said for a patient on ultram that he didn't want to titrate. I told him to please continue identifying patients like that. Dr told me she had a patient she wanted to start on Butrans but the patient had SummaCare Med D plan and they would not approve it. SummaCare said the patient needed to fail on multiple other medicines before Butrans would be approved. I told dr that I will discuss it with Darlene and figure out the issue. Darlene said UHC commercial is also telling its patients to pay cash for their medicines and get reimbursed on the back end and it is making it difficult for her to get patients to take anything other than generics. I called Kendra (RAE) and explained the scenario. I will get back to Darlene to ask if it is an employer group or if the patient received a letter from UHC.CHUDAKOB's query on 02/28/2013Cliff, what videos are you speaking of from Partners against Pain?REICHCL's response on 03/02/2013The videos we were auto shipped last year. Maria said she has seen the commercials and had read up on the product. I reviewed Butrans dosing, CII, 7 day transdermal system. They have the 5 mcg in stock and do not have any current patients on Butrans.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Uniontown	OH	44685	2/22/2013	I told dr that his Ultram patients are good candidates for Butrans. I told him if those patients need more or are failing due to an adverse event, Butrans transdermal patch may be the answer if the patient meets the indication. Dr said ok and he has not fund any new recently. I asked him if he started a patient n intermezzo? Dr said no but will try.

I showed dr the placebo patch again and asked him to gain some clinical experience and allow Butrans to speak for itself. I told dr to use it for a commercially insured patient with good prescription insurance who meets the indication. I reminded him that Butrans is a CII.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	2/25/2013	Quick call- Only got to see Dr Mandat briefly at the window. Dr said he knows he has a lot and it can be really difficult to get them to move to OxyContin. I asked him what makes it difficult? Dr said his patients are resistant to change but he feels he does a pretty good job explaining the differences. I told him I have some things coming in the near future to help him with those patients. Dr said ok. I gave Jen the new OxyContin Med D formulary grid and Butrans patient profiles. I asked Jen if she hands out the product copy cards, etc? She said she does. I told her to ensure that new Butrans patients get the Butrans patient experience kits.

He said he recently went to a conference where they had a law enforcement officer speaker. The speaker gave them various forms to reference & use in practice. Dr Ortega showed me the pain agreement they recommended- He asked what I thought. I told Dr Ortega he should look at the different versions & then decide what he thought was most necessary for his practice. He asked what other tools he should use. I stressed the importance of appropriate patient selection, telling him that documentation is necessary & key to protecting the practice. I asked if he uses OARRS. He said he doesn't & asked why use it. I told him this is another measure to protect the practice & gave him the information sheet, recommending that he sign up as soon as possible. He said he would do that. He asked how he should document Butrans patients vs those who are on. I asked why there would be a difference. He said patients who he puts on Butrans tend to get on it & then stay on it, doing well- not needing increases or extra meds. I told him to use his best judgement, reminding him that Butrans is still a CII opioid. Discussed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone. He asked if it was generic yet. I told him not at this time.

She said she has been sick & has not been in the office to use the forms yet. She added that she is still excited about using them & she will put them to use now. Dr Taylor went on to say that what she hopes she conveyed last time was that she really does not have a lot of patients for whom she is prescribing opioids, but she does want to use my products for those who are appropriate. I told her the goal of the assessment forms was to help her more thoroughly assess patients when they complain of pain as well as increase her comfort level for prescribing for those patients who are appropriate for opioids. Dr Taylor said there just aren't that many & she gets tired of playing "doc-cop". I told her I understand this frustration & my goal was just to assist her when possible by providing information & tools where applicable. PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/26/2013	Dr Chagin said he really has been trying to find a patient for Butrans, he is just not treating much pain anymore. I asked if it is still true that he does keep some patients who are taking chronic pain medications. He said yes. I told him my goal was to help him be as comfortable as possible in treating those appropriate patients by providing resources & tools for his practice & patients. I asked dr if he is comfortable with the fact that all 7 doses have been reformulated despite what he heard. Dr said he knows that know and thanked me for clarifying it. I showed dr the new dosing and titration card and asked how often he has had the need to titrate to the 20 mcg dose? Dr said not many and that most of his patients are on the 10mcg dose. I asked if those patients are also taking products for breakthrough pain? Dr said yes they are and that it is Vicodin for the most part that patients need to take. I asked if any have had to increase the quantity of supplemental analgesia? Dr said no. I told him that when he sees that he should titrate the dose. Dr agreed and said I asked Kim if she knew that the Lababidi group was moving into a new he office down the street? Kim said she did not but was happy to know it. I told her to ensure she has all doses of Butrans and OxyContin if they send patients to Ritzmans. Kim said they already have all Butrans and most of OxyContin except for 15 and 60mg. She said she will be sure to order some.

Dana said she will initiate Butrans for patients on Vicodin, Ultram, or even Percocet if dose is low enough. I asked what doses of IR she usually will make the switch to Butrans? She said it is different for each patients but most of the time it is 4 pills a day of IR opioids. I asked her to continue prescribing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/26/2013	Myra said she has been writing more & more Butrans. She said it seems to be working well & patients who really want to be helped & who understand why a long-acting option is good for them are the most successful with the transition. She said she has one patient who pay $66 per patch because he likes the medication so much. Myra also told me again about the patient who has asked to put on a new patch prior to the 7 day dosing interval being up. I advised that she not allow the patient to put the new patch on sooner & asked her instead to consider titrating him to the next highest Butrans dose. She said this was a good idea & she plans to do it when she sees him next. I showed her the comfort assessment journal & walked her through the contents. She said this was an excellent tool & asked me for several more so she can give them to all the patients in effort to help them stay more tuned in to their treatment. I let her know I would order more.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Fairlawn	OH	44333	2/26/2013	Discussed nancy and Scott profiles with dr and asked him where he sees Butrans being utilized most in his practice? Dr said he finds it to work well when he starts a patient from Vicodin. Dr said if he doesn't want to titrate the Vicodin then Butrans is a good option. Dr said he likes the 7 day patch and his patients told him they like it. I asked dr to identify additional patients that are similar to the profiles we discussed. Dr said ok.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	2/26/2013	Spoke w Pharm D Christy. She told me about a recent call she had to make to Dr. Rebecca Cirino of Brecksville & how Dr. Cirino had written Intermezzo 3.5 mg for a female patient, and that she remembered that the last Purdue rep discussed gender specific dosing for the patients. I thanked her for catching the error & phoning the HCP AND requesting she change the Rx and write the correct 1.75. mg for her female patient, and the HCP appreciated the guidance. I left the Intermezzo Pharmacy Guide and FPI, which Christy said she will share w other Pharm D Steve. We also discussed Butrans and 5, 10 and 20 mcg/hr strengths available. She shared that they have a few concerpventions on Butrans. As for OxyContin, they keep OxyContin in a safe. I told her there are 7 doses avail for titration. They have all strengths of OxyContin. THEY ARE PART OF RELAY HEALTH NETWORK so patients will automatically get our product savings upon pick up of their Rx.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Heights	OH	44124	2/26/2013	Spoke w pharmacist Giovanni Giardini. He says he has 2 boxes of Intermezzo 1.75 mg on shelf, but has not dispensed yet. He has 6 boxes of Butrans 5mcg/hr and two boxes Butrans 20 mcg/hr but has not dispensed recently. I showed him the Butrans patient guide and he put one on the shelf w the Butrans. He liked that resource for patients. Keeps OxyContin in a safe, and says they don't dispense that often. He has OxyContin 10, 15, 20, 40 and a little 60 mg left. I reminded him that OxyContin is available in 7 doses using the core visual aid. I also let him know we have savings cards available for all 3 products and that Butrans is now on preferred drug list for Aetna commercial lives.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	2/26/2013	Dr Fedorko said he knows, Butrans. I showed him pain management kit & told him I actually wanted to show him something I thought would be helpful for him in his practice. I turned to pain contract sample & asked his thoughts on implementing something like this in his practice. He said he does have one, but he wanted to make a copy of ours because it looked "better" than what he is using. He said there is a big problem with opioids & told me about a former staff member who had been in trouble years ago for writing false prescriptions. He said he just doesn't have a lot of patients for Butrans & asked why he would write a more expensive medication for someone when they could just take Vicodin. I told him that I understand that he may not have a huge volume of patients for Butrans & added that my goal was to make him comfortable in treating the few who may benefit from his patient population. I pointed out favorable commercial coverage for Butrans & let him know if any of his patients do meet the criteria & have commercial insurance, they can try Butrans for little or no out-of-pocket cost. I asked if he thinks he has just one of those patients. He didn't answer, saying he had to go & then walked into a room. Spoke with Mindy & showed her pain contract. She made a copy.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Village	OH	44143	2/26/2013	Very hectic day and one staff member quit (Sharon) and they have not replaced. Dr. Krishnan joined practice Feb. 1 and brought Melissa w him from old office. Found out he is only in Mondays in am; off Mon pm. he's in: Mon - Fri w no days off. Spent a good amount of time talking w Alex Tudini (ma). I let her know that I could not get a lunch appt until July, and could I say hello to Dr. Krishnan? He was too busy this afternoon, but I can stop back next week. Left a business card & product info w all 3 HCP's. Left Intermezzo flash cards w all 3 CNP's. Also left Butrans slim Jim w Dr. Krishnan. Alex asked if I would leave savings cards for each product, and she would place on each doctors' desk along w. my business card. Will stop back when less hectic. Went through all product info w Alex.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/26/2013	Quick discussion in his office w the other HCP's present. I asked dr to continue identifying patients for OxyContin and to convert patients on IR oxycodone to q12h OxyContin. I reviewed Scott and nancy profiles and also asked him how his experience has been recently since he told me he has been using more of it? Dr said the results have been positive but has been difficult in getting patients to switch to a patch instead of a pill. I told dr about some of the patient resources available such as the information guide to help the patient understand the medicine better. Dr said he uses them because he knows Dana uses them a lot. Dr agreed to continue using Spoke w receptionists Carly & Beth. The office no longer schedules lunches. I asked to see Dr. Laham, and he brought me back into the office. He wanted to know what my background was prior to joining Purdue, and asked What's new? I shared w him the resources we have for patients w Butrans and he really liked the Butrans patient guides. I asked him if we could leave a few patient guides in each waiting room, and he said he would consider. He also asked if I would be leaving savings cards today. I left him savings cards for all 3 products. Dr. Laham said he'd be happy to meet me on site w one or two of his nursing staff for lunch. We were trying to coordinate a date this week, and when that didn't work, we settled on next Thursday March 7. He provided his cell phone and asked me to text him & remind him in am and he would let me know if we're meeting at Hillcrest office. I forgot to mention to him that we cannot text our customers per Purdue policy, so I will call rather, and leave him a message. He stated he would be in Beachwood area.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/26/2013	Shown core visual aid conversion from IR forms of oxycodone page & pointed out that patients taking Percocet 4 times per day can get an equivalent dose of medication in q12h OxyContin. Dr Moysaenko said he knows that & has patients on it, then walked away. Spoke with Susan & Shelley (MA's). Susan does most of the prior authorizations & Shelley does some as well. Susan also calls medications in to the pharmacy. Maria also helps with this. Gave formulary grids for Butrans & OxyContin. I asked if information like this helps them. They said the doctors just write what they want to & then they see if it is covered based on what the pharmacy or patient says. They said they do prior authorizations if necessary.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	2/27/2013	I followed up with Dr Gigliotti & asked about his usage of the forms & tools we copied for him last time. He said he had forgotten about them & hasn't used them. He said he does not know where they are. He went on to say that he does want to start using them & thinks they are a good idea. I reviewed the pain management kit resources with him & made additional copies, giving them to Jaz, per his request. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who are on short-acting opioids who may be ready for a long-acting option. I asked what the clinical benefit of keeping them on short-acting is. Dr Gigliotti said he is going to prescribe it & just has to do it. He added that he still has many patients on OxyContin as well, although he has referred some of them that he did not want to take care of anymore.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/27/2013	Reviewed Butrans dosing, indication, & appropriate patient type with Helen. She said she will be starting to see patients on her own on Monday. Spent time going over patient profiles to show examples of potential types of patients. Also discussed setting expectations up-front, titration, & ability to give supplemental analgesia with Butrans. She said she would be most likely to keep patients on only one opioid. I let her know ibuprofen or acetaminophen can be used for supplemental analgesia as well. I asked if she was comfortable enough with Butrans information to prescribe should an appropriate patient present. She said she would. Reviewed managed care & trial/savings information. Introduced Intermezzo- indication, dosing, patient type.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Broadview Heights	OH	44147	2/27/2013	Spoke with a new MA who said Dr Samuel could not see me today. Reviewed Butrans dosing & titration with her as well as appropriate patient type. Also discussed managed care & savings programs for Butrans & OxyContin. Also introduced Intermezzo- indication, dosing, patient type, & asked her to give Dr Samuel information. She agreed.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	2/27/2013	Dr said he got positive feedback from his patient he initiated on Butrans. I asked dr to tell me about it. Dr said the patient has a herniated disc and has been in pain for a while. Patient came back and said that it is working very well and is pleased with it. Dr said that patient said how nice it is to not have to take tons of pills. I reminded dr to make sure to titrate when necessary and explained titration. I asked dr to continue to identify appropriate patients and he agreed.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	2/27/2013	I asked Dr Moufawad what he would say his biggest hurdle in prescribing Butrans is. He said currently, the biggest problem he is having is that the patients who are coming to him have been drug seekers who he kicks out of his practice. He said this has been a big problem recently. He added that primary care physicians get patients on a lot of medication, keep them on it too long, & then refer out when the patient becomes a problem. He said he does not want this type of patients in his practice. He said he would love to have more patients to put on Butrans, adding that his goal right now is to decrease the amount of short-acting opioids he is writing & increase the amount of long-acting since he is dealing with mostly chronic pain. I told Dr Moufawad he is doing the right thing by screening patients & that he should only prescribe Butrans or OxyContin for appropriate patients in true pain. I told Dr Moufawad I was trying to see if there was something I could provide that would help him with my products & with treating pain in general. He said the government has ruined pain management & then showed me a book from BWC about prescribing appropriately- he then added that BWC doesn't let him write anything. I reminded him that he can write Butrans for BWC. He said he just had a denial. I asked for paperwork. He said he will save the next one he gets & show them to me because he doesn't think it is covered. I let him know I would follow up with him on this.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/27/2013	Introduced myself & Purdue's products to Dr Yap. He said he is familiar with the medications. Delivered insight 1 to him & asked how these discontinuations impact his practice. He said it just takes more time when this happens, although he finds that patients generally follow his instructions. He added that he takes time with his patients so they understand the importance of why he is choosing the treatment he has selected for them. I told him it sounds like he is doing the right thing, emphasizing the importance of appropriate patient selection & setting expectations, especially when starting patients on a medication they have never tried before. I told him I have various tools & resources to assist in this. Showed OxyContin conversion guide & pointed out 7 tablet strengths. Also discussed favorable managed care status. Dr Yap said managed care can be a big problem, adding that that seems to be his biggest problem in prescribing Butrans. Reviewed coverage with him, pointing out favorable commercial coverage. I asked him to try Butrans again for an appropriate patient & give them a trial/savings card. He agreed. Delivered Intermezzo indication, dosing, & appropriate patient type. He said he doesn't really write sleep medications.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Copley	OH	44321	2/27/2013	Reviewed nancy profile for Butrans and asked him if he would use Butrans for patients like her? Dr said he still doesn't feel completely comfortable using medicines for chronic pain. I asked him why he has used Butrans then? He said he will continue to be selective when to managed a patients pain. I told him to use Butrans when he selects those patients who meet the indication. Dr said ok and he will keep trying it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44307	2/27/2013	Spoke to Kyle and introduced Intermezzo. Kyle immediately asked if it is covered on Medicaid or Medicare? I asked why and he said because if it isn't they will not be able to fill it. I told him I didn't have the managed care information on it yet. I discussed how Butrans and OxyContin are very well covered and asked if patients coming to pharmacy get them filled? Kyle said they fill both without issues.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Richmond Heights	OH	44143	2/27/2013	Met w/ NE, Aldona Bur, Presented branded and unbranded education opportunities and discussed future educational needs for their facility. Aldona stated, "I need to get my calendar organized and in-services for this year scheduled." Confirmed 150 beds, including Skilled, Hospice & LTC. Current pain assessment algorithms were discussed with the nursing staff during the pain management In-Service. Assessment tool used is Wong-Baker Scale. CPP is Omnicare. According to Aldona, % of residents being treated for pain is a large amount. She stated they use a large amount of Percocet and some Oxycotin as well as Tramadol and little Vicodin. Four NP's are on staff, I asked if I could meet w/ them. She asked me to make folders for each of them with the branded materials and drop it off to her and she would see that they rec'd it. Aldona had to attend to an emergency and stated, "I will call you to schedule future in-services, when I work on my education calendar for the remainder of this year." It was agreed upon, to follow-up w/ her, if I don't hear from her by April.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	2/27/2013	Shown pain management kit to Dr Jack, pointing out assessment tools & pain scales. He said he doesn't want to treat enough pain to necessitate the use of things like that. I asked if he is using OARRS, showing him the information fact sheet. He said he has to use it because it is mandated by law now. I told him this is an important tool to use. Dr Jack said he will write Butrans, he just has to think of it at the right time. I asked how I can help. He said just keep reminding him. Spoke with Maria who asked about OxyContin going generic. I told her I did not know any details at this time, she asked about the reformulation. Gave her a field card & stressed the 3 bullet points. She said she would give the information to Renee as soon as she was available.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Richmond Heights	OH	44143	2/27/2013	Originally went to see Dr. Robert Corn, and he happened to be off today, and won't be back to this location until April. the receptionist Melina says I can catch him more often at Landerbrook location. I met then w Dr. Elisabeth Roter and her med asst Bridget Cordero, who I know from their Mentor office. I led w insight, and Dr. Roter says the only reason why her patients discontinue on extended release opioids is cost/ access issues, because the majority of her patients are Medicare Part D. I went over our Medicare Part D coverage for OxyContin and the increased savings for patients. Dr. Roter says e doesn't ave many patients on OxyContin, as she feels an ER Opioid is not appropriate for her elderly, fibromyalgia patients. I transitioned to Butrans 7-day patch for her elderly patients. She stated she had tried initiating Butrans in the past, and it was not preferred/and/or covered on her patients' commercial/employer plans. After discussing in further detail, she stated she may give Butrans another try. She is not interested. In our insomnia agent, as she tries to stick to her specialty and has her patients discuss insomnia w their primary care/ internist.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	2/27/2013	Discussed the importance of setting reasonable expectations up front with patients for Butrans with the nurses at South Point Pain Management. I showed them assessment tools & pain management kit. They said they are currently using these types of materials for their patients. They also said the doctors each do a good job with that. Reviewed Butrans application, rotation, adverse events, dosing, & titration. Barb said Dr Barrett uses a lot of Butrans- probably more than the rest of the physicians. I asked why she thinks that is. She said he tends to be more adventurous in using different medications for different types of patients rather than having one or two "go-to" medications for everyone. The nurses said they educate patients when necessary & do the prior authorizations for medications. I asked what types of tools I can provide (savings cards, formulary grids, assessment tools, etc) that would be most useful for them & make their jobs easier. They said nothing, their main issue is just with insurance companies- it seems like they are always changing coverage. I let them know I would keep them updated with changes as they occur for our medications. Introduced Intermezzo- indication, dosing, patient type. They said their physicians do not write many sleep medications & really stick mostly to pain.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	2/27/2013	Review of the pain management kit with doctor Cremer and Char. Dr and Char both said they like it much better and that they may use it. I gave brief overview of Butrans initiation doses and titration. I asked Char is she has seen any new Butrans prescriptions come through and she said no. I asked her to look the for types of patients we discussed when she is rooming the patients. Char agreed.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	2/27/2013	Spoke to dr about his use of Butrans. Dr said he is continuing to use Butrans as often as possible for his patients that are naive to opioids and those experienced. Dr said he has found it to be a great product because of e delivery system, its clean, and patients are getting it covered by insurance. I discussed the appropriate starting dose and how to properly titrate. Reviewed both profiles and asked for continued business. I asked dr if he is using any OxyContin at all? Dr said he has been using more lately but admitted that a few have been refills but finds it to be useful in some patients who don't mind paying for it. Discussed patient types and managed care. Provided review of pain management kit and asked if he could use any of the resources? Dr said Dr. Mehta has all of it in place but agreed to review

I explained Butrans indication, dosing and approximate conversions. I talked about appropriate patient type selection. Kimase asked about copay cards. I told her that I cannot leave any but explained them. I asked about their Relay Health program and they realized that it makes it easier anyway than a paper copay card.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	2/28/2013	I asked Dr Sundaram given his practice, under what circumstances he would feel a long-acting opioid analgesic would be warranted. He didn't answer the question- he said it is just that abuse is such a problem, he really hates writing "those" medications. I asked if he would agree that all opioids carry abuse & addiction potential. He said that is true. I asked if he would also agree that some patients can benefit from opioid analgesics. He said yes. I told him I am simply asking him to consider Butrans or OxyContin when appropriate patients like that present. He said he would do his best.

He said it just gives him more work. I presented the OxyContin Patient Essentials Pack to him & showed him the contents of the kit. I asked if he thought a packet like this would help a patient who is new to OxyContin have the best chance possible for success with the medication. He said it depends on the patient. He went on to say that some patients care about things like that & others just care if the medication works. I showed the patient pain diary pages & asked if he thought that would help patients keep more thorough, detailed accounts of how their pain is doing as they start OxyContin, telling him again these are for patients who are new to the brand. He said it might help one or two. I asked if patients are always on a form of IR oxycodone prior to OxyContin. He said he has switched patients from a variety of medications to OxyContin & said again it depends on the patient. I asked if he thought he could find 5 patients who would be appropriate for OxyContin & give them the kits. He agreed. Dr Zaidi said he tried giving a patient Butrans but the patient said he wants his Vicodin back, so he is switching him back. I asked why the patient wanted to discontinue the Butrans. He said he only knows that the patient said they wanted their pills back. I asked why not titrate the patient upward on Butrans instead first. He said the pt didn't want to PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	3/6/2013	Dr told me she did not have time to discuss anything and asked me what I needed? I told her that I needed her to prescribe Butrans. Dr told me that she liked the direct approach and she will continue to look.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	3/6/2013	Led with insight and told dr that Purdue has many resources that can help him strengthen the bond between the patient and their medicine., especially when it comes to Butrans. Explained the Butrans patient information guide and asked him to accompany one of those with the copy card for his commercial patient. I asked dr how his lone Butrans patient is doing. Dr said great. I asked dr to continue finding patients for Butrans and to start with a patient like the ascot profile. Reviewed the profile and discussed initiation and titration. I asked dr to continue using and asked him if he would write more Butrans? Dr said yes.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	3/6/2013	Spoke to Char about their patients and the communication between them and the office staff and the doctor. Recapped some of the resources we have discussed and told her my objective is to increase Butrans prescriptions. Char said they are not seeing any new patients and that dr Cremer is trying to reduce the amount of pain patients he has and to begin tapering patients off their pain medicine. I told Char that I would speak to them more about it in the upcoming lunch.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44320	3/6/2013	Discussed appropriate patients for OxyContin and Butrans. Dr said she will not start new on OxyContin or CII's for that matter and said she wanted to focus on Butrans. I discussed the Scott profile and asked her if she has any patients similar to Scott? Dr said maybe but would not commit to any patients appropriate for Butrans. I asked her to gain some clinical experience on at least one patient. Dr said ok and that she will try.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	3/6/2013	Delivered communication insight to Dr Dale & asked his thoughts on it. He said communication about pain can be a difficult thing, adding that it seems more difficult to extract information about anything from male patients than from females. He said the problem is that people will always rate their pain a 10 on a scale of 0-10. I showed him the pain management kit & tear-off pain assessment sheets. I told him he & his patients can use this to delve more into the issue of pain & told him it would give him more detailed information about the pain & how it effects the patient. He looked over the information & said it does look to be thorough but concise. I told him tools like this can be especially useful when a patient is being treated with a new medication such as Butrans or OxyContin or if they are having a change in therapy (ie dosing adjustment). Dr Dale said he will start using the assessments. He said he doesn't use as much OxyContin now but he is interested in getting more of his patients on Butrans. He said it makes sense since it is releasing medication over 7 days instead of the patient having to take it over & over each day. Reminded him of abuse/addiction potential. I asked him to identify one appropriate patient with commercial insurance & give them Butrans. He agreed. He also said Intermezzo is a good medication for a niche group of patients. He said he has 3 patients on it who are doing well.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Maple Heights	OH	44137	3/6/2013	Delivered communication insight to Dr Gene & asked his thoughts. He said he thinks it probably is a good idea for patients to keep track of their progress on pain medications, although he added that many of them simply won't take the time to do it. I agreed that not every patient would be ideal for it, but asked his thoughts on implementing tools from our pain management kit (showed him kit) to help him better assess his patients who he treats for pain. He said they looked like good forms. Also let him know we have various pain diaries that patients could keep for daily logging of their pain experience. I used the example of starting a new or changing a dose of a medication like Butrans or OxyContin. He said tracking tools would be especially useful for patients who are newer to a medication. Dr Gene said he probably needs to use more Butrans & he thinks if pain management was using it more, it would encourage primary care to do the same. I re-visited with him the appropriate patient type/range & asked if he understands why we spend a lot of time with primary care practices in addition to pain management. He said he does & added that he thinks he will position Butrans after tramadol, instead of going to Vicodin if he knows the patient will need something chronically. I showed "Scott" profile & told him this is a great place to use Butrans. Also discussed Intermezzo indication & dosing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	3/6/2013	Good discussion about his use of the Butrans patient experience kits and to continue use them as well as asking patients if they have completed the surveys. I recapped my last call when we discussed the resources available for him and his patients to help them communicate better. Dr said he will ask his patients about the surveys because he thinks that information should be useful. I spoke about the types of patients he has on Butrans which are his older patients over 65. I asked him what he is currently doing for his patients under 65? Doctor said he follows a treatment of non narcotic therapy such as physical therapy, injections etc. I asked if he has patients on tramadol around the clock? Dr said he does and said that he does and said that he will take a patient to 400 mg/day. I asked dr to use more Butrans in the appropriate patient like the tramadol patient.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	3/6/2013	Dr Moufawad said remembers he told me about how he has been seeing an increase in drug-seeking behaviors & he wanted to share some information with me. He said he recently went to a seminar with other pain physicians who said the same thing is happening to them. Dr Moufawad said physicians need screening tools. He then said he was looking over his practice metrics & of the 70 new patients he saw in the specified time period, he only kept 7 of them. He said that means that only 10% were legitimate patients. Dr Moufawad said he wants to move his practice more & more to long-acting instead of short-acting. I asked how long it takes to make that transition. He said it depends. He said the trigger for him, for example, to move a patient from Percocet to something like OxyContin is when the patient is no-longer controlled on 4 tablets per day. He said the patients typically want 5, while his strategy for them is to change to long-acting, while still giving 1-2 Percocet per day for breakthrough. He said most patients don't want to do this, so they don't come back. He said the legitimate ones don't object, so it really takes no time at all. He also said that he really likes using Butrans as well as OxyContin. I reminded him that I also now have Intermezzo & reviewed indication. He said he probably won't be

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	3/6/2013	I stopped Elaine with the Butrans formulary grid between patients. She said she hasn't written much Butrans because it seems like when she does try it, it ends up getting denied. I reminded her of previous conversation when she told me it would be helpful to have a pocket reference. I told her she can have the grid & can use it when she chooses, keeping it in her pocket if she wants. She asked about BWC. I let her know it is being paid for as of now. She wrote it on the grid. I told her her best chance for success in getting it covered would be commercial insurance & BWC, asking her to stay away from Medicare. She wrote notes on the grid & said she would start keeping it in her pocket. She said she does want to use it more because she likes it clinically, which is why she has tried to write it. She said she just saw so many denials that she quit trying to get it for patients. Spoke with Dawn who said she does have to do quite a few prior authorizations for Caresource. She added that often times, these are not "easy", but rather take a lot of time & sometimes take a peer review to get approved. I asked what their denial reasons have been. She said usually length of therapy of tramadol or hydrocodone. She said she does not want the patients to have to be on the short-actings for a full 30 days because by then they are already in the mentality of taking pills around-the-clock. She said it takes time, but she gets the PAs approved for me.

I asked, if we could re-schedule, and she stated, "I don't have my calendar w/ me, I will call you."
PPLPMDL0020000001	Warrensville Heights	OH	44122	3/6/2013	Delivered communication insight to Dr Zivic & asked his thoughts. He said the problem with pain diaries is that patients are "always in pain" if they are being treated for pain by him, so he sees no point in having the patient document that. I told him I realize that keeping a pain diary isn't going to solve everyone's problems, but pointed out some of the pain assessment tools & diaries from our pain management kit. I pointed out that the tools do not simply ask if the patient is in pain or even just to rate the number. I asked if having more thorough information from the patient about their pain could help him better assess the patient's condition by possibly showing patterns or changes. He said that was a good point & said he would be willing to try them for some patients. He then said he had to go- gave him formulary updates. He said he needs a Butrans refresher when I come in next Dr Azar says he likes OxyContin and uses it all the time. As for Butrans, he does not know anything and says that he wants to know more. Went over indications/ limitations. I walked him through appropriate patient selection utilizing dosing slider. went through 5 mcg/hr for opioid naive patients, then possible titration to 10 mcg/hr and max dose of 20 mcg/hr. Told him I would follow up w him at lunch. as he was multitasking and not focusing as much as I would have liked.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Village	OH	44143	3/7/2013	Dr. price not in good mood and not very engaged. First visit w OxyContin & Butrans. Asked him how do my products fit into his practice? I asked dr to use OxyContin earlier on in treatment and to begin with the low doses. I told her that my hope is that she uses it before she would move to Percocet. Dr agreed. I explained Butrans and asked her if she would use it as well. Dr said she would. I explained a little of the insight and told her about some of the resources available. Dr said what would be valuable to her is brochures or resources that she can scan into her EMR system so she could get credit. I told her that it was a good suggestion and I would look into it.

Darlene said she would use it and it would be helpful.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	3/7/2013	First time I visited Dr Isakov as Purdue rep. Introduced my products. He said he's very cautious in using opioids due to abuse & diversion being such a problem. Thinks OxyContin does have a place for cancer patients. He shared w us that the office uses the OARRS program. He called over one of the nurses to talk w us & she says they call OARRS about 7x a day, and had patient file, and asked Dr. Isakov if she could call OARRS for that patient wanting more Tylenol 4. PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Hts	OH	44124	3/7/2013	Had lunch w Dr. Laham. He asked me to bring him more of the Butrans patient guides. He said the guides I left last week, were really helpful to he and his staff. He says he really likes Butrans as an option for certain patient types. He feels Butrans is a good niche product for nerve/neuropathic pain. He also likes for elderly. OxyContin he agrees is good product as well. He says he has several speaking engagements coming up over next few months all over the country for Purdue. He is willing to fly/drive to areas such as Cincinnati and Columbus. He let me know that CNP Debbie Bizjack leaving April 1 and practicing full time @ Cleveland Clinic Foundation downtown, in cardiothoracic medicine. I will make sure to mark as moved in Phoenix. Asked him if he has patients keep a pain journal to encourage open communication. He says he has certain protocols in place such as having patients bring back their "used" Butrans patches at follow up visits. He feels once he gets that extra data, for example, from a pain journal, what will he do w extra paperwork? Went through pain management kit w him. He liked the idea, but not the execution of it.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Mayfield Village	OH	44143	3/7/2013	Met w PA @ Dr David Mandels office. She is only HCP there on Thursdays. Asked her how our pain products fit into her practice. She says she has used both OxyContin and Butrans in limited amounts, but their practice is trying to get away from managing patients needing opioids for chronic pain. they are trying to stop from going beyond Tramadol. Why? because of the scrutiny on non pain mgt HCP's due to Ohio Bill 93. Does that bill include the rheumatology specialty? Yes. Went over the fact that 50% or more of their patients would have to be on opioids for at least 3 months or longer. They are still trying to refer more and more patients over to pain management that prefer oral pain pills. Made the suggestion of Butrans for chronic pain patients CII, for her commercial patients under age 65. As far as workers comp patients, she can think of only one in their practice.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	3/8/2013	Quick call- Reviewed broad formulary coverage for OxyContin, including Medicare plans. Dr Pops shook her head & walked away. I reviewed the Scott profile and asked if she had patients like him? She said she does and may try it there.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	3/8/2013	Delivered communication insight to Dr Khooball. He said he just doesn't even like to treat pain. I told him this is understandable, however, most physicians will admit that there are some, even if it is a small amount, of patients who they are willing to treat for pain. He said he guesses he has some. I told him one of my goals is to help increase the comfort with which he treats these patients & one of the ways we may accomplish that is by improving communication between him & the patient about the pain. I showed comfort assessment tear-offs & asked how something like this tool could increase that communication. He said he likes that it gives more detailed information than simply rating the pain. I added that this can simply be placed in the chart. He said he would be happy to use a form like this. I told him that way, if an appropriate patient presents, he has more comprehensive information regarding pain to assess if perhaps Butrans would be a good option for that patient. Reviewed once weekly dosing & patient type. He asked if I was going to have a program for Intermezzo. I told him I was not aware of any. Also spent time with Carla & reviewed the tear-offs. She said using that would be a lot better than their current patient information form.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Tallmadge	OH	44278	3/8/2013	Led with insight #3. Dr said he thinks Butrans is a good product and it makes sense however he said he doesn't want to communicate with his stints anymore than he has to! I explained the potential benefit from using certain resources in combination with Butrans. Dr said ok. I expressed how important how important it is to select the appropriate patient for Butrans and explained the Scott profile and his patients who are works with prescription insurance. PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	3/8/2013	Roman said that he is frustrated with OxyContin. I asked him to elaborate. He said he just had a patient who got denied for OxyContin & they made him use fentanyl instead. He said he didn't want to use fentanyl for this patient & that it made no sense why they wouldn't just give this patient OxyContin. I asked what plan this was on. He said he thinks it was a Medicaid plan. I told him it is possible that this happened. I reminded him that we discussed managed care & how I had told him about the formulary grids. I have him both OxyContin grids- 2 copies of each- & explained to him what they mean & how to use them. He said he can't possibly check these out before writing a prescription. I told him I understand that can seem tedious, but reminded him that spending the time up-front may save him & his staff time on the back end. I encouraged him to share them with his girls so they can also use them when they are dealing with managed care. Roman said OxyContin is a good drug & he doesn't want to give up on it. He said patients are on it for about a month & then do well. I asked him to not give up on it if he has success clinically with it. He said it is the one he chooses most. He added that he doesn't like "my other drug". I asked if he meant Butrans. He said yes & he thought it seemed like a good one, but then patients found it to be too expensive or they didn't like it. I asked him to at least not rule it out, shared coverage information, & reviewed appropriate patient type.

Dr said that it is the most difficult thing to do with a patient because they tell him what they want and will not accept anything else. I spoke but a few resources that may help him and he agreed to take. I asked him what he likes about Butrans? Dr said that it is moderately low dose for an opioid, it's a patch, and he wants to get his patients off their pills. Dr said the hard part is getting his patients to use a Butrans patch instead of their pills. I asked dr where he is using it. Dr said the vicoden patient. I asked if he has used Butrans for a patient on tramadol? Dr said no because Ethan a patient is on tramadol he doesn't know if they are chronic yet. I asked him if he has current patients who have been on tramadol for more than 3 months? Dr said yes. I asked why he isn't using Butrans before vicoden because if they have been on tramadol for more than three months they are probably chronic. Dr agreed and said he never thought of it that way. The nurses let me know that they will be getting a Dr LaSalle in the next few weeks. He is a new physician just out of his fellowship. He will help fill some of the scheduling spaces they have had. I asked him if he typically goes to 400 mg before he move to another medicine? He said most of the time? I asked him if it makes sense for a patient failing on tramadol to move to Butrans instead of vicoden? Dr said it does but patients need cheap medicine. I told dr to focus on patients who are working with prescription insurance and showed him the formulary grid. Dr said ok he will use it.

I asked when he does that? He said when they come back for their follow up appointment. I asked if he would help him to know how the patients pain is between the initial appointment and day 30 or follow up appointment. Dr said possibly but the patients would need to be hand picked for that information. I told her I understand, however there are patients who can benefit from opioid therapy due to legitimate painful conditions. She said this was true, it just does not seem like there are very many. I told her for the purposes of our discussion, we would focus on those patients, even if it was only a few out of her entire practice. I asked what measures she currently follows to communicate with patients. She said she asks a lot of questions about specifics of the types of pain they experience. I told her this sounds like a good start. She said she uses OARRS as well as a pain contract. I asked about pain journals. She said she was uninterested in implementing that. She said she has not found the right patient for Butrans. I told her it is possible that she has, but I haven't done a good job of helping her see who exactly that is. I showed Scott patient profile & asked if she has patients like this. She said she does have some. PPLPMDL0020000001	Stow	OH	44224	3/12/2013	Good discussion with doctor about Butrans and the role it plays in his office. Dr said he really likes it because he doesn't want to have to prescribe vicoden and Percocet but sometimes its a necessary evil because they are easy to prescribe and insurance will pay for it. Dr explained how he uses Butrans in patients who he believes the IR is not working based on their pain level and condition for treatment. I asked dr if he has a threshold that he sets for his patients on IR before he moves to an ER product? Dr said he doesn't like to do it because each patients case is different but mentioned again he doesn't like to prescribe the IR products. I asked him why Butrans doesn't any more of a role early on in treatment? Dr said it does but said it comes down to ease of prescribing and with 12k patients he needs to make good decisions. I told dr that a good decision is to use Butrans for a patient that fails tramadol or early on in the treatment with vicoden. Dr said he didn't disagree but coverage with Butrans could be better. I explained BWC, Caresource, and private prescription plans. Dr said they have not had too much trouble with coverage of Butrans and will try to use more.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	3/12/2013	Dr Hernandez said he just put someone on Butrans- he has been on it a few months & is happy with his results. He said the patient had been on Opana 30mg & reports that he feels much better on Butrans. I asked Dr Hernandez if he has a patient who is taking hydrocodone 4 times a day, getting month after month of refills, but reporting doing well on it if he is satisfied with that. He said it depends. He said he really doesn't worry so much about someone on hydrocodone as he does someone on the stronger opioids like Opana, taking that chronically. He said he tells the patient why it makes sense for them to try something like Butrans & usually that is what happens. Dr Hernandez said when patients get generics, like they would with hydrocodone or tramadol, they are not really getting a full amount of medication anyway, since generics don't have to have as much active ingredient in them as branded products. He said that is another reason he doesn't worry about patients taking those medications around-the-clock. Shared communication insight with him. He said he does not really like having patients use pain diaries because the ones who would be compliant with it are not patients he is worried about & the ones he would really want to do it wouldn't be compliant, so there is no need. I asked what about patients who he is trying on a new medication- wouldn't he like to see how they do in more detail. He said he just doesn't think it is necessary as he has good communication with pts

Dr said the patient is 70years old and didn't want to move to the 20mcg dose. I discussed the appropriate patient with dr and told him to identify patients on tramadol or vicoden who have private prescription insurance. Dr moved to cost and told me how his patients are paying way too much for their medicines even with copy cards and pharmacies won't take them. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	3/14/2013	Spoke to doctor through the window and gave insight number 3. Dr said that for the most part OxyContin is covered better than the competition but he tries to use a little of those as well. I explained the Sam profile and asked him when patients have been on the IR oxycodone for 3+ months and are still in pain or not tolerating it to move them to OxyContin.

I asked how he determines what product or decision to make when a patient presents in pain on a current product? Dr said he will either add on a product or chose a different one? I asked dr how he decides on when to use an ER product? Dr said typically if a patients condition is chronic and their current medicine of vicoden is not enough he may go to an ER product. I presented to dr the idea of using a controlled release product like Butrans earlier on in his treatment of pain in patients he has deemed chronic. I explained that before Butrans came onto market there was not much choice after tramadol if the patient was failing but to go to vicoden but with Butrans, a solution can be made for patients who meet the indication and have failed tramadol. I reviewed Scott again to show how he would initiate on Butrans for the tramadol patient. Dr said he like the Option of Butrans and that he will continue to use it.

Pointed out that OxyContin is a q12h dose of oxycodone, giving patients the same amount of medicaid in a q12h dosed form. Dr Rakhit just walked away. Spent time with Iryna, who said she is always getting calls from pharmacies about Percocet because the doctor isn't writing it properly, but she said she doesn't understand. I gave her her own conversion guide & showed her different examples of how it is dosed & explained that OxyContin is a q12h dose form of the same medicine, oxycodone, that is in Percocet. She said she did not know any of that before & now understands. She also said she was going to be sure to go over this information with Dr Rakhit. Also reviewed Butrans indication/patient type & gave Intermezzo information, alerting her to DTC marketing.
	Chagrin Falls	OH	44022	3/15/2013	Dr Rood said he probably doesn't have any more Butrans or OxyContin patients than he did when we spoke last. I told him my goal for today was more to discuss pain in general as well as communication between him & his patients regarding pain. Delivered communication insight & showed him initial pain inventory from the pain management kit, asking his thoughts on implementing something like this for the patients who come in for pain. He said he is glad I brought this information to him. He said they finally all got signed up for OARRS & run them frequently on patients. He said even as a practice who does not do a lot with pain, they need to have good practices in place for treating the patients they do have. He said he is so glad he started implementing these tools. I agreed he is taking the right steps to protecting his practice. I asked if he is currently using a pain agreement with patients. He said they are not, but he wants to. I showed him ours & he spent time reading it over. He said he would like a copy. Showed him Scott patient profile & asked him to consider Butrans as a possible treatment for patients like Scott. He asked if there is anything stating that tramadol is less potent than Vicodin, adding that he believes tramadol should be scheduled. I told him I didn't have information on that. Showed initiation guide for Butrans. Introduced Intermezzo-reviewed indication, usage. He said he finds pts with this problem are depressed & improve w treatment for depression

I asked if she has had pharmacy issues with Butrans like she did in the past. She said it has not been an issue, but Caresource prior authorizations take time depending on the patient. Dawn agreed to continue to do the prior authorizations for appropriate patients because they believe it is a good medication & they would rather have patients on that than other medications, especially since it has helped many of their patients.

I handed dr the invite and asked him to come to the Butrans window. Dr said he will block at his calendar. I recapped out last discussion and asked him what he currently does for a patient on tramadol who is uncontrolled? I asked if he has received any surveys yet and he said no. I handed dr the Scott profile and asked if I review it on next visit? Dr said ok if he has time. Left dr the intermezzo information folder.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Munroe Falls	OH	44262	3/18/2013	Follow up with dr from last week about the Butrans patient that had a cost of about $300 for Butrans 5mcg. I explained to the doctor the discussion I had with Andrew the pharmacist. I told doctor that Andrew said that the patients employer group sent a PA for Butrans and the patient said no and that the doctor would prescribe something else. I also told her that the pharmacist said that the patient did not provide a copay card. I asked dr if she would be willing to complete the PA since the patient already failed vicodin? Dr said she will discuss it with the patient because she's not certain the patient is right for duragesic patch anyway. I asked her to get a copy of the PA and complete it. Doctor said she will let me know what happens.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	3/18/2013	Dr Salama said his biggest problem with Butrans is coverage, adding that Caresource & BWC don't pay for it. I reviewed coverage with him, letting him know BWC pays for Butrans & reviewing Caresource prior authorization requirements. He said that was good to know & added that most patients come to him already on Percocet or Vicodin & he is looking to change their medication sooner rather than later. I showed Nancy profile & showed that this is the type of patient who could be appropriate for Butrans. Dr Salama said another thing is having coupons for Butrans since it can be expensive. Reviewed the details of the savings program. He said he thinks $15-$20 is reasonable as a monthly cost after savings. I asked Dr Salama to try Butrans for a patient like this & he agreed. I shared details of the communication insight with him & asked if he has patients use pain diaries. he said not usually, but sometimes it can be helpful for patients who are having their medication adjusted. He said he will occasionally have them just keep a written record of how they feel, but not as a firm protocol or anything. I let him know we have resources like this if he would be interested in making them a bigger part of the patient experience. He said he would be interested in seeing what we have. Reviewed broad OxyContin coverage & left Intermezzo information card with Mary.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	3/18/2013	Quick call- Dr Taylor said she hasn't had any new patients to put on Butrans. I reminded her that these do not necessarily need to be "new" patients. Reviewed "Scott" patient profile, letting her know this could be an ideal place where she could use Butrans, especially since she has shared with me in the past that she does not necessarily like having patients on short-acting opioids around-the-clock. She said she likes Butrans & does want to use
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	3/18/2013	Spoke with dr about identifying patients for Butrans and OxyContin. I recapped our last discussion about treating patients under 65. I asked him what he does when a patient is still in pain while on 400mg of tramadol. I showed him the Scott profile and discussed how the patient is a good candidate for Butrans 10mcg. Dr agreed and said he wrote for two prescriptions last week and one of them was initiated on Butrans 10mcg for tramadol. Dr said the other was from oxycodone 30mg per day. Dr said he initiated Butrans 10mcg and oxycodone for breakthrough. Discussed nancy profile as well. I asked dr if he currently has patients on oxycodone for 3+ months? Dr said he does. I reviewed the Sam profile and asked him to initiate OxyContin for patients like him that meet the indication. Dr agreed and said he will. I explained the intermezzo indication, limitations of use and dosing specifics. Left dr with intermezzo packet. Dr said he is trying to remember it when talking with patients. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	3/19/2013	Led with insight #3 and asked dr what he thinks about that statistic? Dr said he agrees that communication isn't great because patients for the most part either don't tell the truth, lie or don't tell the whole truth. I asked dr about tracking pain experiences? Dr said he doesn't do anything between visits to know what patients are feeling. I asked if a pain journal would be helpful. Dr said maybe on select patients. I led into discussing Butrans by asking what his typical algorithm is when treating pain. Dr said NSAIDs, physical therapy, tramadol, vicodin then Percocet. I discussed the opioid experienced trial in combination with the patient profiles. I asked dr if there was a downside to using Butrans in the place of either tramadol or vicodin? Dr said he could not think of anything other than price. We discussed that he needs to use Butrans for his BWC patients and private prescription patients. Discussed pain management kit and dr said he will use some of the forms.

Dr said he thinks so but must be very selective in choosing the patients. I asked him to use them for new OxyContin patients to make them feel more in touch with their medication. Dr said that is a good idea. Nothing else learned.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	3/20/2013	I reminded Dr Hernandez of our previous Butrans conversation when he told me that he "doesn't worry about" patients taking hydrocodone 4 times per day & he leaves them on that medication. He said it is true- he doesn't worry about those patients. He added that typically, these patients are waiting for surgery scheduling & if they are steady on their dose of short-acting, he sees no reason to change it. He said his concern is more for patients taking high doses of opioids such as OxyContin & Opana. Asked how long patients typically wait for a surgery to be scheduled. He said 1-2 years due to paperwork & legal issues with BWC. He said this is one reason he does not want to work with as many BWC patients any more. He said they take up a lot of time & are very labor-intensive with paperwork. He said he likes self-pay or private insurance. Dr Hernandez said he likes Butrans, his patients like it, & that is why he will keep using it.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	3/20/2013	Discussed Butrans as an option for patients taking tramadol around-the-clock as a once weekly transdermal option. I asked how common this is in her practice. She said usually patients on short-acting like tramadol or Vicodin stay at low doses & are steady at the dose they are on or take it PRN. She said those who are taking the higher doses of Vicodin tend to want to stay on pills & object to a long-acting option. I asked what information she discusses with patients who she is considering for Butrans. She said she discusses dosing, how to use it, & possible side effects. She said some patients don't want to try it because they go swimming & their pool has a policy against it. Discussed patients taping the edges with first aid tape or covering with Bioclusive or Tegaderm if necessary. Roberta said she has one male patient who was taking Butrans who showed her redness & blisters from one Butrans patch, but when she checked the one he was wearing at the time, there was no redness or reaction of any kind. The patient wished to discontinue. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients taking short-acting opioids around-the-clock (up to 80mg total morphine equivalent per day) who are asking for a dosing adjustment. She asked about BWC coverage. Let her know they are paying for it with no restrictions at this time. Discussed Senokot-5 for opioid-induced constipation.

Dr said he is trying to no even use it anymore because of the headache it brings. I told him I can't understand how IR oxycodone doesn't bring that same thing or even worse? I showed dr the Sam profile and asked him to identify patients like him. Dr said he will try.CHUDAKOB's query on 03/27/2013Cliff, what did he say when you asked him about the same headaches with oxycodone IR?REICHL's response on 03/28/2013Don't remember.CHUDAKOB added notes on 03/28/2013That's the kind of information to include in our call notes. PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44302	3/20/2013	Spoke with Ronda and dr Petrus about the OxyContin essentials pack. I asked if they have patients who they ask to track their pain experiences? Dr said they do have some patients where it is necessary especially with OxyContin. I explained the kit and the value that it can bring to the patients and to the office. Dr and Ronda both agreed that they have at least 5 patients that they can give them to. I asked when do they typically move to OxyContin? Ronda said they continue to use it a lot for patients with cancer and patients who need more pain control over vicoden. I asked both to use OxyContin in that exact place and showed Sam profile. Ronda said they use it for those patients but many need a PA. I asked why and she said many patients are required to go to MS Contin first but she said that they can usually get OxyContin approved and said they are using the copy cards I left recently. I left the nancy profile for Butrans.CHUDAKOB's query on 03/27/2013Look at your next call objective. What did you mean when you said titration to max dose?,REICHL's response on 03/28/2013Do you titrate to the max dose of OxyContin if necessary?CHUDAKOB added notes on 03/28/2013I understand now. You meant to the 80mg. That would be the max strength. OxyContin does not have a max dose. It took me a while to figure that one out.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44304	3/20/2013	Led with insight #3 and asked dr how he feels his patients communicate with him about their pain? Dr said that some are honest and others lie to get more medicine. Dr said that pain journals can be good but only in patients he believes are in legitimate pain. I asked him if pain journals would be useful for him? Dr said maybe. I told him about partners against pain information. I discussed OxyContin and his experience with it. Dr said he uses it more than he would like to admit. Dr said he has a suboxone clinic in Norton so he sees it a lot. I explained OxyContin patient profiles and asked him if he will use OxyContin instead or IR oxycodone. Dr agreed to use more. Introduced Butrans discussing all key selling messages including patient profiles of Scott and nancy. I asked dr of Butrans make sense if patients fall tramadol? Dr said it does make sense to have another option that is not an oral narcotic. I asked dr if he likes prescribing vicoden? Dr said absolutely not. I told dr that Butrans is a good option instead of vicoden when the patients meet the indication. Closed for Butrans by asking him to use it clinically for a patient like Scott. Intermezzo introduction with all messages.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	3/20/2013	I asked Dr Yokiel what he likes about OxyContin. He said he likes that it works, he is comfortable with it, & patients only have to take it twice a day instead of more times. He added that he doesn't use it as much now as he used to due to abuse. I asked if he believes OxyContin is alone in that or if he has similar concerns with other opioid medications. He said there is a stigma with OxyContin that is not necessarily seen with other medications. He said patients will go to the pharmacy to get their OxyContin filled & they feel ashamed to be on it. Dr Yokiel added that he does like the idea of the reformulation. I told him he should be just as cautious in writing it now as before. He asked what Butrans is equivalent to with short-acting; for example, if he has a patient on Vicodin 4 times per day, can he put them on Butrans without fear of the patient withdrawing or Butrans not being enough for them. I showed him the range & showed that this patient would start at Butrans 10mcg & could be titrated after 3 days to 20mcg. Also reviewed use of supplemental analgesia if necessary. He asked about BWC coverage. I let him know BWC pays for Butrans currently with no restrictions. He said he has a patient who is he going to start on Butrans, adding that he didn't do it already because he figured it wasn't covered. Left Intermezzo dosing

He added that he has been getting calls from Walgreen's pharmacists who are telling him that buprenorphine plus oxycodone (or other short-acting opioids) is a drug interaction. Dr Moufawad said he explains to them that Butrans can be taken with other opioids, per the full prescribing information. He asked if we can help them understand. I let him know we are unable to speak with Walgreens per their corporate policy. Dr Moufawad said he has written 46 Butrans prescriptions in the last 30 days (including new & refills). He showed that he had a data company print out the information, but did not show it per our request. I asked if a patient comes to him on tramadol at what point they would become a Butrans patient. He said they usually come on tramadol plus other pain medications or are already on high doses of opioids. He said he tries to get them on Butrans as soon as possible & if the patient doesn't agree, he doesn't see them back. He said most patients who he writes short-acting only for are those who take it PRN. He said if they are taking it every day, they should be on long-acting instead. He requested Butrans patient education tear-offs. I told him I would try to get them for

I did meet with Karen(RN/CNP & office manager) at window. Introduced myself & my products. Asked Karen where Butrans would be appropriate for their migraine patients, she said when they are allergic to other agents, and can tolerate Buprenorphine. I let her know we have new dosing sliders available for them, and a trial offer and increased savings for monthly co pay for Butrans. I then transitioned to OxyContin. I let her know we've also increased monthly savings for OxyContin patients. Mentioned good Medicare Part D coverage for OxyContin. I did a quick Intermezzo reminder. I then mentioned my OTC products. Doctor said that everybody but said he typically just talks with his patients about how they rate their pain, what medicines they currently are on and what condition they are in for? I asked dr whom he believes is appropriate for Butrans and if I could provide materials to help him and patients communicate would he be interested? Dr said yes. Dr said he has only used Butrans once or twice and he knows patients on ultram or vicoden are good patients to us it for. I discussed all key selling messages and reviewed patient profiles, titration, and use of supplemental analgesia. Discussed approximate conversion guide and asked dr if he will identify more patients for Butrans? Dr said he will try. Explained OxyContin patient types and intermezzo indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	3/26/2013	Led with insight 3 for all hcps in attendance over lunch. Lisa said that it is a constant battle with trying to be on the same page as their patients because the patients are all over the place with what they want. Lisa said most patients expectations are not appropriate and a line has to be drawn on the best course of action for treatment. I explained some of the resources available for Butrans and partners against pain. Lisa said she really likes Butrans and is using it often. I asked where? She said for patients mostly that they want to get off oral narcotics. Vicoden and tramadol patients are being out on Butrans. Lisa said many patients who meet the criteria for the 5mcg and when it is initiated, the patient doesn't get enough relief and the dose is titrated to 10mcg. I discussed that the steady state is 72 hours and it be titrated at that point. I also discussed how soon she is tapering the dose of the IR products? She said sometimes right away. I explained the importance of keeping the IR on board at least until steady state is reached. Lisa said that she didn't remember that and it was a good point. I asked for more Butrans patients like nancy and Scott. Discussed OxyContin dosing and patient types and quick message about intermezzo.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	3/26/2013	Spoke with pharmacist Colleen & presented Intermezzo pharmacy information booklet. She said she would not think that there would be a generic substitution for it since it is relatively new. She looked in her system & said there is nothing there to suggest that there would be a generic alternative. I asked her in general how she determines whether or not to offer a customer a generic alternative to a medication. She said the only thing they do is to suggest someone speak to their doctor if the patient says the original medication is too expensive. She added that they do not & should not, make any type of medication suggestions for substitutions. I asked if she runs the insurance through before quoting pricing. She said they always do this & only give the cash price if someone insists on it. Reviewed automatic savings for Intermezzo, Butrans, & OxyContin through e-voucher.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	3/26/2013	Delivered communication insight to Myra. She said she has always felt that communication with patients is imperative. She said this is important with Butrans because patients are generally reluctant to try something long-acting, especially a patch. She added that when you take the time to explain usage & expectations, you can see a higher success rate. I told her it sounds like she is doing exactly what she should be & that perhaps this helps contribute to her success with Butrans. She said she continues to give out the kits despite still not receiving any reports. I asked that she also use the comfort assessment guides when she is out of the kits. Also reviewed trial/savings cards & Intermezzo indication, dosing, & managed care.

I asked her if the patient that did not get Butrans had come back in for a follow up and if there was another attempt to initiate butrans. Dr said the patient has not come back in but should in the next week or two. I reminded dr about appropriate patients are for Butrans and proper initiation. Gave dr invite to program and she said she might like to attend. Presented dr with intermezzo placebo pill and how to open.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44134	3/27/2013	Dr Hernandez said that it seems like pharmacists just want to be the ones practicing medicine these days, but they don't the responsibilities that come from that. I asked if any of the recent problems he has been having have been with Butrans or OxyContin. He said not that he can think of, adding that he thinks he has taught them enough by now that he doesn't get questioned quite as much. He said he has started some patients recently on Butrans. I asked him to tell me about them. He said one patient came in who was not yet taking any pain medications. He said she fit the Butrans criteria, so he started her on 5mcg & so far he believes she is doing well. PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	3/27/2013	Detailed both Sarah and Dr Kim at same time but obtained more time with Sarah after Dr Kim went into room. she said she recently tried to write Butrans for she believes, a Medicare part d patient, and Butrans cash price quoted was over $ 300 per month. she likes the idea of a weekly patch, and patients not having to remember to take a bunch of pills. She really liked dosing slider. Went over appropriate patient selection, and to keep in mind, 5,10 and 20mcg/hr equates to 5, 10 and 20 mg per week, so keep in mind some patients may need a cII such as OxyContin if Butrans does not relieve their moderate to severe chronic pain. She then asked if I had Butrans patch samples, I told her no, but I have a demonstration kit I can show her. Went through demo kit and patient guides. She thought the Butrans patient guides were a good resource for her pain patients. Also showed her pain assessment tear sheets for patient charts. It told her when I follow up next time, I will bring her our PAP (orange) web key, where she can print items from our pain management kit. She looks forward to receiving. I asked her not to give up on Butrans due to recent non coverage for her Medicare patient, and lets. Focus on where Butrans is covered, and that workers comp will pay for Butrans. And can I leave her Butrans savings cards, she responded absolutely, please do. I showed her our trial offer, and the savings for next 11 months. She set up cards and set patient guides where she could see them.

Transitioned to Butrans. Went over appropriate patient selection. The sliding doser was very helpful to Sarah. She also asked if I had Butrans sample patches, and I said no, but I do have a demonstration patch & disposal unit. Went through demo with both of them. Sarah said she wrote Butrans recently for female patient, who is Medicare D, plan wouldn't cover, she was going to have to pay over $300 per month. At this time the medical secretary, who takes call backs chimed in and said that is correct. I asked them not to give up on Butrans and try to focus on where Butrans is preferred, and keep in mind workers comp patients. Medicare part d will cover OxyContin. Dr said he has prescribed Butrans on two occasions since we spoke last. Dr said he prescribed it for an older man on tramadol under 300 mg a day and hated taking the pills. I gave him Intermezzo packet & delivered indication. Dr Kalin said he doesn't prescribe sleep medications. I asked him why he didn't titrate to the 20mcg? Dr said the patient said the vicoden worked better. I asked what the dose of vicoden was ? He said 7.5/500 4 times a day. I told dr that he should have initiated on the 10mcg dose and then titrated to the 29mcg dose. I reviewed the opioid experienced trial pointing out titration and success of 20mcg efficacy. Dr said ok and will keep it in mind. Left with intermezzo dosing information.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44313	3/27/2013	I told dr that he should use OxyContin for his patients failing on Percocet or those who tell. You they don't want to take all their pills. PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	3/27/2013	Dr Moufawad said he is having good success with Butrans, specifically in patients who have had a history of illicit drug use. He said one female patient who he recently saw had used cocaine in years past, but she did have legitimate pain. Dr Moufawad said patients like this can be tricky because most people don't want to treat them, but he said he told her he would not give her pills & that Butrans at 5mcg was what he was willing to treat her with. He said the patient agreed to try it & reports feeling great pain relief. Dr Moufawad said he has decided to stay firm with patients & insist they try Butrans if he finds they are appropriate for it. He said he is keeping patients to a maximum of 100mg morphine equivalent per day total. He said this can be achieved with Butrans 20mcg plus 1-3 hydrocodone for supplemental analgesia. He said he does offer OxyContin to some patients but he has found that some patients say they do not want it if it is going to be the "new OxyContin". Dr Moufawad said this is a red flag. He added that he knows we can't say that it is less abusable. I agreed & told him there is no data to support that. He said there is evidence that he has seen in his own practice & through his own research. I asked him to be just as cautious as always. Offered Intermezzo formulary grid, reviewing indication & patient type. He said there was no need for that as he does not plan to ever use it.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Sagamore Hills	OH	44067	3/27/2013	Started to deliver communication insight to Dr Manual, but was interrupted by him telling me that he treats zero patients with any type of pain medication. He said that the Ohio Medical Board recommends this. I asked if he was referring to the House bill. He said he is referring to what the Ohio Medical Board sends them. Dr Manuel said he is referring all patients on any pain medication out. I asked if he ever finds that after sending a patient to pain management they return for him to manage their medications. He said he "doesn't do any of that." Discussed OARRS as a way he can monitor patients and their pain medication usage. He said there is no need because he doesn't write anything. I suggested that it could still be worthwhile to enroll as it would allow him to see even if the patient was getting the medication from other physicians. He asked what medications I had. I told him Butrans & OxyContin primarily, but I also wanted to share some information about intermezzo with him. Reviewed indication. He again cut me off and said that is another area where he is not prescribing anything. He said he refers patients who complain of sleep problems to psychiatry.

I asked him to help me understand then why he continues to do this for patients, refilling it for some month after month, when their condition is chronic. He said he knows it does not make sense. I asked him what benefit that serves. He said there is no benefit, it is just lazy & easier. I asked him if clinically he believes that is what is best for those patients. He said he probably should be writing Butrans for some of them. He said he thinks I finally got to him today. I told him I have heard that from him before, yet he continues to not try it. I reminded him that he even has a patient who is doing well on it. I asked why not allow other appropriate patients to try it. Dr Jack said he should be doing that. I asked how we can ensure that this will happen when appropriate going forward. He said he just has to think about doing it the next time he is getting his pen & pad out to write Vicodin or Ultram or Percocet. He said he likes that Butrans is CII, that BWC pays for it, & that it is a patch that lasts one week. Reviewed dosing & patient type. I asked him to try it this week as soon as a patient like this presents. He said he would. Reviewed OxyContin as a q12h dose of oxycodone, pointing out it is the same active ingredient in Percocet, which he writes. He said that was a good point. Gave Intermezzo formulary grid & indication.

I recapped the last discussion and how he explained a majority of his patients have Medicare and Butrans and intermezzo won't be too applicable for his patients. I explained OxyContin dosing and asked him more about his clinical experience. Dr said that OxyContin is his go to product for patients that need long term control of their pain. Dr said many of his patients have spinal stenosis and finds that OxyContin is a great product for those patients. Dr said he doesn't believe that any of his patients are taking more than 40mg12h. Dr said he figures he has about 20 patients currently on it. Dr said he move to OxyContin after he has moved through vicoden or Percocet. I explained the patient profiles and formulary coverage for his Medicare patients. Dr admitted that he does have patients with private prescription insurance. He said that is not what he is seeing. I told him I will get information on the specific plans from Shannon but is the anything else that would stop him from writing OxyContin? Dr said what is the benefit to writing OxyContin which is more expensive verses writing a short acting 4 times a day. Positioned OxyContin for appropriate patients who have legitimate pain & who he is comfortable treating, who are taking Percocet daily. He said that is not very many of his patients. I told him that even one patient would be a start, asking what clinical benefit keeping them on short-acting oxycodone carries if they have a chronic condition. Doctor Bonyo said that he has been lied to many many times and realizes that patients abuse the medicine or sell it. I asked dr if he believes Butrans has a place in his office? Dr said he thinks it does because it is a patch instead of a pill, it is controlled release, and patients can use IR medicines for breakthrough pain. Doctor Bonyo said cost is the issue. PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	4/16/2013	Lunch & my first time meeting Dr. Reed. Asked what distinguishes a Butrans patient from an OxyContin patient in her practice? She says for patients that have issues with tylenol or GI issues, she will avoid OxyContin and use Butrans. Plus, Butrans as weekly pain patch, offers in her opinion, more steady, consistent pain relief vs. patients on oral pills, who will forget to take pills at certain times, or not follow exact schedule, leading to "peaks and troughs" & breakthrough pain. She really likes Butrans, but has had trouble in the past with coverage, and Medicare D coverage. We reviewed updated formulary coverage, and prior auth for Butrans after failing another agent for 30 days. I made sure to review updates with Diana who handles prior auth's. Also spoke with NEW nurse Katie Hudson (RN) while talking with Dr. Reed. Katie is pregnant, and has been waking up MOTN. She asked me if it's ok to take Intermezzo. T responded it's a Pregnancy Category C and walked her through FPI, reviewing pregnancy category C nursing mothers info. She was satisfied with the response, & says Benadryl has been providing some relief for loss of sleep. Dr. Reed, OxyContin 590 savings/month, Butrans tria/savings. Intermezzo 5-day trial w rx. Patients can print savings out @ intermezzo.com. Dr. Reed says Intermezzo has been working well for her patients, all positive outcomes. He said he asked one of his patients who is a pharmacist what she typically does when she sees that a particular physician commonly writes for Percocet at a large quantity month after month for a patient. He added that he suggested to the pharmacist that they discuss long-acting options with the physician. I reminded Dr Hernandez that he has in the past told me of his liking of OxyContin in appropriate patients. I asked what it was that he liked about it. He said it is effective for the right patient & he still does write it at low doses on occasion, he just does not like to have a patient on it for a long time. Dr Hernandez said it is a good medication for patients to use after a surgery while they are recovering. Reviewed q12h dosing & appropriate patient type. He said this is how he uses it. An acordion file in the sample closet is reserved for all copay cards. Dr said he started Butrans 10mcg for a patient on vicoden and has good insurance.provided dr with additional copay cards
PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	4/16/2013	Lunch, Karen let me know she cannot write CII, and has to have Dr. write scripts for her patients on OxyContin. However, she can write CIII (Butrans) She feels same as Dr. that Butrans is initiated when patients have GI issues/issues with tylenol. PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	4/17/2013	Dr Trickett said she is frustrated with what practice has become, adding that she is getting "a ton" of patients from primary care who are taking 240 Percocet per month for no apparent real reason. She said the House Bill has caused a huge increase in referrals to her, but many of the patients she does not feel are legitimately in enough pain to warrant so much short-acting medication, adding that if they have a chronic problem, they should be on something long-acting anyway. I asked her what type of patient she is currently using OxyContin in. She did not respond, but asked how Butrans is like Suboxone. I told her we do not have comparative data & added that Butrans is used for pain only & also reviewed dosing. She said she doesn't prescribe Suboxone but knew they contained the same molecule & had heard that there has been a problem with getting patients off of Suboxone. Dr claimed that Butrans is costing his patients too much money and he would rather keep them on the generic or refer out. I asked if the patients he is speaking about have commercial prescription insurance? Dr said he doesn't know and said that he prescribed intermezzo twice and in both situations his patients were upset because it cost them $185. I asked if those patients had private prescription insurance? Dr said he didn't know. I asked him to look because that is extremely important to what a patient must pay and there can be a considerable price difference! Dr did not look up the insurance information.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Euclid	OH	44117	4/18/2013	In-Services were completed at 3PM & 5PM for the Nurses on Pain Management. 11 were in attendance.Discussion and interaction took place on Barriers in Pain Assessment/Management and Consequences of unrelieved Pain in the elderly. The Patient Comfort Assessment guide and The Wong Baker Pain Scale was handed out and reviewed. I was able to meet briefly with the Medical Director, Juanita Castaneda prior to beginning the first in-service. I introduced myself and Purdue's NE Program. D/T the small amount of time, I was only able to present the key points about Butrans: (The indication, the first 7 day trans-dermal patch for moderate to severe chronic pain, & a scheduled III and the appropriate patient type). I gave her handouts of both Butrans studies to review. I explained that a prior auth. would be needed. She was talking with the Nursing Supv.,Charlene Miller, identifying possible residents. Charlene introduced me to the Director of Nursing, Madeleine Moore, I presented Purdue's NE program to her. She asked me for a list of in-service topics. I informed her that I did not have a handout of in-service topics, but that I had already met w/ Charlene and the topics were reviewed and in-services were scheduled. She did request unbranded/branded materials/ handouts the next time I come to do an in-service. I confirmed that I would be doing another in-service on 4/29 and I would meet w/ her then, if she is available. Positive feedback was received from the DON on the NE Program.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Independence	OH	44131	4/18/2013	Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients who require an opioid analgesic for moderate to severe chronic pain. I asked Dr Sundaram what the down side of trying one appropriate patient would be. Reviewed CIII & once weekly dosing. He said he wishes he could find someone for me & will keep trying. Reviewed OxyContin broad formulary coverage & Intermezzo indication & dosing with June & Terry.CHUDAKOB's query on 04/28/2013Perhaps using our clinical trial data to prove the efficacy of our product will be of benefit. Usually when a physician does not try the product it is because he/she is not convinced of the efficacy.APSEGAS's response on 04/29/2013-OK. I will try that again. Thank you.CHUDAKOB added notes on 05/02/2013-Thank you for taking the suggestion Dr Popa saw my OxyContin visual aid & said she "got rid" of all her patients on OxyContin & said she sent them "away". She added that she will not write CII medications & asked if she is correct that Percocet is CII. I told her this is true, as is OxyContin, both of which contain oxycodone. She said she doesn't write Percocet either. I told her this is one of the reasons I thought she might like to try Butrans for some patients, as it is a long-acting opioid option in the CIII class. I reminded her that it is still an opioid & therefore has abuse & addiction potential. I asked that she use just as much caution in prescribing Butrans as she does other CII medications. Showed her the Butrans initiation/titration guide table & discussed appropriate patient type/range. I asked her thoughts. She looked at the table & said she does have patients on Tylenol with Codeine & added that she will instead now try Butrans for some of those patients. Discussed titration & ability for patients to use supplemental analgesia if necessary. She asked to keep the initiation/titration guide to keep on hand. I introduced Intermezzo. She said she knows of it but it is too expensive when patients can just take generic Ambien. Reviewed indication & patient type.

Reviewed what was reported in Bup 3015 and dr said nothing stands out as an issue. Dr said he would treat a patient with a rash from a transdermal patch and would not discontinue it. I asked dr if a butrans seems like a medicine he would use more of and dr replied yes because he is trying to reduce the amount of narcotics his patients are taking and Butrans seems likes great option.CHUDAKOB's query on 05/03/2013Cliff, how does prescribing Butrans help the physicians reduce the amount of narcotics his patients take. I will specify going forward.CHUDAKOB added notes on 05/13/2013OK. I asked Janet what her experience is with a butrans? Janet said that she has used it some but not a lot. I asked her what her reservations are with Butrans to not be using it more? Janet said she doesn't really have any but it is difficult to find patients that are not already past Butrans and on high doses of viconden and Percocet. I asked if her intention is to provide her patients with product(s) that will deliver ER opioids? Janet said that if she can redu e the number if pills a patient is taking then Butrans becomes a good option. I explained the approximate conversion chart and titration. Janet said she will use more Butrans. Explained intermezzo indication and dosing.

Discussed BWC, CareSource, and private prescription plans with copy cards. Abby said she did NOT know about the CareSource PA and said it will make a big difference. Abby said they are seeing many new patients and suspects there will be more opportunity for Butrans.CHUDAKOB's query on 05/03/2013Just curious as to your thoughts on failing two (2) opioids (next call objective). Why 2?REICHL's response on 05/13/2013This was back in April. I do not remember however I think we may have discussed how when they get patients referred in that they are already on 2+ opioids.CHUDAKOB added notes on 05/15/2013OK. I was just curious. Thanks for the explanation.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44310	4/23/2013	I asked dr how he decides which pain medication to prescribe? Dr said it all depends in the patient and what is he treating them for. Dr said he typically will start with NSAIDs then tramadol or viconden. Dr said if a patient needs any more than 30-40mg of viconden he will refer to pain management. I asked him what the downside would be to initiating Butrans after tramadol or before a patient gets to 30-40mg of viconden? Dr said he didn't know but said it sounds like it could work. I exp,aimed the appropriate starting doses and asked if he would initiate Butrans on the next tramadol failure? Dr said ok.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	4/23/2013	Discussed Butrans with dr following program. Dr said he is still skeptical about Butrans. I asked him why and what is he skeptical about? Doctor said something about how patients are deviant and he's not sure how he is going to move forward with pain management. I tasked him what the downside is to using Butrans for a patient in chronic pain who is failing a IR opioid? Dr said he is going to a pain and addiction conference next week and it will give him a better idea on how to treat. I told dr that the patient type selection is critical to the success of a product, especially Butrans. I told dr I will follow up after next week to discuss the Butrans option for his moderate to severe pain patients.

Detailed Bup 3015 in depth discussing inclusion/exclusion criteria, study design, and outcomes. I asked dr if he would be happy if his patients got a 30% reduction in pain with Butrans? Dr said he uses Butrans early and is impressed how well it works for patients that fit the profile. I asked him what he believes the profile is? Dr said i works great for patients that have failed one or two opioids if you get them early. Dr said he does not see it being a good fit for a patient already on a ER opioid like Opana or high doses of Percocet or a combination of multiple drugs. Dr said he is working hard to reduce the volume of pills and Butrans is a good alternative. I agreed with dr and acknowledged that Butrans should not be on board with other ER products. Gave formulary coverage for private prescription patients, CareSource, and BWC. Dr said he will continue to find the right patients. Explained intermezzo indication, limitations of use and dosing.

Both boxes were on right hand side of closet and not easily visible, basically hidden. I asked if i could place them in main closet, in alphabetical order, which they said was fine. I asked them if they could remind Dr Price to hand them out. Dr Price, remember recommended q12 hr dosing for OxyContin, and that you have 7 doses avail for titration. Again, he and staff say he only writes for cancer patients. Well, for your patients with chronic lower back pain, osteoarthritis, spinal issues, you have the option of CII 1 x week transdermal patch, with ability to titrate to our max dose of 20 mcg/hr. Dr said he didn't know but has all different ages of patients on it. I told dr to continue prescribing OxyContin for his patients on Percocet and to "try" Butrans for his patients failing tramadol or vicoden. Gave him the initiation and titration guide. Left intermezzo dosing card with Tiffany.

Steve said they order the 20, 40, and 80 mg doses most. Dr told me that he just prescribed OxyContin this morning. I asked why he prescribed it and what w dose was. Dr said that the patient was already on it from the primary care doctor and he refilled it. The dose was 20mg and is doing well. I discussed the Butrans dosing with dr and asked him how he is feeling now titrating patients to the 20mcg dose? Gave brief detail of Bup 3015 and dr said he knows he has a couple of patients that should be titrated to the 20mcg. Dr said that he prescribed intermezzo a couple of times and was told that the patients need to fall Ambien first. I told dr that some insurance companies will ask for that step edit first. Dr said he thinks it is a great product and does discuss in the middle of the night insomnia with his patients.

The next call objective is more about what you will do or say on the next call to move the call forward. If you want to gain "mental access", what does that look like in a call. Building rapport will probably not gain mental access. The insight is the first step to gaining mental access.

She added that the patient had been on tramadol & hydrocodone for years. I told her to my knowledge, this should satisfy the requirement. She said she hopes so because she really has been trying to get more patients on it. Myra said she starts them on Butrans with the hope/expectation to decrease the hydrocodone amount the patient takes. Spent time with Dawn who told me that it is a pain for her when Myra has a patient on Butrans & hydrocodone. She said it is just harder to keep track of how much the patient is taking & make sure they are being responsible with the hydrocodone. I asked about titration. First is that 62% of the patients of the 1160 were on hydrocodone combinations. Second is that it was proven that 49% of patients on the 20mcg dose compared to 33% of the 5 mcg dose patients achieved at least a 30% reduction in pain. I asked dr if he thought 30% improvement was good? Dr agreed it was. I asked if it makes sense for him to know all information closer at his patients on hydrocodone medications as possible candidates for Butrans? Dr agreed. Dr said he needs to use it more often.Gave dr the dosing for OxyContin and asked for him to switch his Percocet patients to the q12h oxycodone. PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44130	4/30/2013	Dr Fedorko saw me & said he wishes he could help me but with me selling Butrans & OxyContin, he just doesn't know if he can. I asked what he meant by that. He said he does not "push" that type of medication. I told him I am not asking him to prescribe something if someone is not appropriate or does not meet the indication. I told him even if he has one or two patients in his whole practice, it would be good for him to know all information about all the treatment options. He said it is too bad Intermezzo does not have samples because he has been loaded with Edular samples, so it is just better to give that to patients. I reviewed indication & dosing. He placed a dosing card in his station & one in the sample closet near the trial/savings cards. I reviewed again how the patient would take it & showed how the prescription can be written. He said he would try his best.

I told him I was thinking about his practice & was wondering if how he approaches treatment of pain now as compared with several years ago. He said it has changed a lot. I asked him to tell me about that. He said now he has Butrans, which is a great, effective, safe medication. He went on to say that many patients don't even realize there is something wrong with what they are being treated with until they try something else like Butrans. He said this is why talking to patients is so important. He said he spends the time talking to them, asking questions, & educating them on other options. He said he has also been educating pharmacists, who seem to have no problem filling script after script of 120-240 Percocet per month. He said Percocet is only to be used for 2 weeks after surgery, not chronically like many physicians do. He then was called away by Regina to deal with a patient issue.

Dr said that the patients were both having pain with vicoden and she didn't want to give them anymore. I asked him to continue & he agreed. He also said he read that hydrocodone is now a CII. I told him I was not aware of that in this state. She said prior to starting Butrans the patient rated her pain at an 8 & during Butrans rated it as a 4, but the patient said she did not think Butrans was working. Roberta said she thought this was strange because that seems like a good pain score reduction. I showed her study results for Butrans & pain reduction seen. Roberta said it seems consistent with what this patient saw. Shared Intermezzo patient vignette from iPad app & reviewed patient type & dosing. Gave dosing card for her reference.

I told him it is a CIII, 7 day transdermal patch for moderate to severe chronic pain and explained the conditions treated in the clinical trials. After looking at the range, Dr Lin said she thinks most of her patients are beyond this range & are more in the "severe" pain category. She agreed to do this.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	5/9/2013	I asked dr how he sees himself explaining Butrans to a new patient? Dr said he would tell the patient how important it is for them to be on a more controlled release product for their pain and that Butrans is a patch to be worn for 7 days. I asked dr if that is it? Dr said yea but knows he needs to tell them more. I showed him the patient information guide and showed him some other points to hit. I gave him the Scott profile again and asked for his business. OxyContin for his failing Percocet patients and intermezzo for his Caresource patients. Dr said they don't accept managed Medicaid. Office staff confirmed that western Reserve pain does not accept Caresource at any location. Intermezzo dosing and indication.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Bedford	OH	44146	5/9/2013	Dr Moufawad said he is still having good success with Butrans & patients who are committed to helping their pain condition are the best candidates. He said he fires other patients. He also said he just read about OxyContin & how it is now allowed to be called "abuse resistant". I told him that there will be an OxyContin label change & let him know I would review those details with him as soon as I am able to. I also stated that OxyContin is not abuse resistant & still must be prescribed with caution as he would any CII opioid. I asked Dr Moufawad if he thought he could try Intermezzo for an appropriate Caresource patient & reviewed prior authorization requirements. He said it just seems like a "fancy" medication for people who just need 2 extra hours of sleep. I clarified indication & limitations of use, reminding him it is PRN & if the patient has at least 4 hours of sleep time remaining. Reviewed sublingual delivery. Dr Moufawad committed to trying Intermezzo today for a Caresource patient who meets the indication.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44305	5/9/2013	I asked dr when he is initiating a new patient on Butrans how he explains the product to the patient? Dr said that he tells them that they need a long term product for pain because the short acting isn't working. Dr said that he tells them its a patch that is worn for 7 days. I asked if there is anything else? Dr said it depends but that is mostly it. I asked if the patient information guide will help? Dr said he does give them out. I discussed proper skin preparation and disposal. I asked dr to be as thorough as possible. I asked dr to use OxyContin for his Percocet patients and intermezzo for his patients failing Ambien or have Caresource.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Beachwood	OH	44122	5/10/2013	Followed up with Helen on the Butrans program she attended two days ago. She said she thought the program was very good & had a lot of useful information. I asked what she found surprising or learned that she didn't know before. She said she understands where to use Butrans now/knows the right & wrong patient type. She said she also understands titration & supplemental analgesia usage. Helen said some of the physicians there are using Butrans, including their new physician, Dr LaSalle, who just had a patient this week started on it. I asked where she can see herself using Butrans. She said she sees both new & follow-up patients, so she would use it on those who are earlier on in opioid therapy, such as those taking Ultram or Vicodin. She said she probably would not use it on someone on Percocet. I showed her that if the patient falls within the range of 15-40mg oxycodone per day, they still may be a candidate for Butrans. She said she didn't realize that. Discussed the importance of teaching the patient how to use Butrans & letting them know about the possibility of titration up front so they don't abandon the medication. She said that was a good idea & agreed to do that. Gave her trial/savings cards & showed her each card & explained usage & eligibility requirements. I asked if she would use Butrans when she sees an appropriate patient next & she said she would. Gave Intermezzo indication & dosing information, alerting her to DTC marketing.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	5/10/2013	I asked Dr Gigliotti if he thinks Butrans works. He said he's sure it does, he just has to write it. I told him that he has probably seen many patients over the last week who may be appropriate for once weekly transdermal dosing of their opioid analgesic medication. He said he doesn't like treating those patients, adding that he is writing less OxyContin even. Positioned Butrans for appropriate patients taking up to 40mg oxycodone or hydrocodone total per day. I asked if he would agree that this includes a lot of his patients. He did not respond. He said he is going to write Intermezzo for me before heading into a room.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Parma	OH	44129	5/10/2013	Quick call- Dr Roheny said he was running too far behind this afternoon to stop. He added that he hasn't found anyone since last week. I told him this is surprising considering he probably sees appropriate patients for Butrans, OxyContin, and Intermezzo every week in his office, maybe even every day. He said he will keep trying & walked into a patient room. Spoke with Terry & Kathy & asked if they know why Dr Roheny hasn't written Butrans or Intermezzo. They said they never understand what he does, so they were not sure. Reviewed appropriate patient types for both medications & they confirmed that they see both of these patient types frequently. They said they would try to help.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44319	5/10/2013	Spoke with Sara the pharmacist and asked her if she knew who was prescribing the intermezzo? She said she remembers one of them being Scott Higley. I asked her if a patient has a chronic condition if it makes sense to go from tramadol or vicoden. Another IR opioid? Angela said it doesn't and she said she can see why Butrans would be a good fit. Reminded of managed care coverage specific to their office and copy card

	Akron	OH	44333	5/10/2013	Discussed where he is finding success for Butrans. Dr said he continues to find success for the older patient who doesn't like all the pills and has a chronic condition. Dr said he is finding that a majority of his patients are controlled on the 10mcg dose. I asked dr what prompts him to titrate to the 20mcg? Dr said it depends on the diagnosis and pain level. Dr said if a patient asks for more break through medicine he will titrate to the 20 but its not often. I explained the Bup 3015 trial and focused on the forced titration. Dr said he realizes it will be more efficacious but if the patients doesn't need it he will not titrate just to do it. Discussed OxyContin doses and his use of it in specific patient types. Dr said the patient type range is broader with OxyContin than Butrans and tries to make the dose specific to the pain levels and not the age or sex of the patient. Discussed intermezzo dosing, indication and limitations of use. Discussed Caresource coverage.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	5/10/2013	Dr told me that he just initiated a patient on Butrans 5mcg who is a 78 year old female. I asked why he used Butrans? Dr said that the patient has dimensia and has trouble remembering to take her medicine. I asked r rheat the patient was taking prior to Butrans and he said OxyContin 10mg q12h. I asked dr if he will titrate if the patient says she is still in pain? Dr said he would for sure. Dr said His OxyContin patients are doing well. I asked him if he is having new starts? Dr said he is each week anywhere from 1-4 patients coming from various IR opioids. I showed dr the dosing guide and reminded him he can titrate every 1-2 days. I asked him to continue to reevaluate his Percocet patients as good candidates for OxyContin. Introduced intermezzo and told him to look for Caresource patients. Dr said he liked the idea and will give it a shot.

He said "no one" can get OxyContin anymore & "no one" is paying for it. I told him I understand this can be frustrating, but added that OxyContin does have broad formulary coverage on a variety of lives. He said he doesn't care what I say, he knows it is always getting denied. He brought me back & introduced me to Christina, who does the prior authorizations. She confirmed that they get "almost half" denials of OxyContin. I asked her what plans. She said Caresource comes to mind, but was certain there were others. Another MA came out & asked Roman what quantity he is writing. He said 90. I told him that some insurance companies do have quantity limits at 60 since it is dosed q12h & only one month can be written at a time. He said he doesn't think that's it. I asked Christina to keep a list of denials she had & let her know I would return to follow up to get her list to see if there was anything I could do to shed some light on the topic. She agreed. He responded, if patients' current meds are working, "if it ain't broke, don't fix it." I don't want to start messing around with changing meds, nor am I trying to grow my business. In fact, my goal is to scale back a bit. He just doesn't think of Butrans often. I told him that I'd like him to consider Butrans more often because BWC pays for Butrans. I should have asked him about his perception of Butrans. Does he perceive it is not to work? Do patients perceive it is to work? Need to dig deeper. OxyContin, please review section 9.2 in FPI. He says that's old news. Why are we presenting revised FPI now? The company has completed studies & that's what we're sharing in the revised FPI. Intermezzo, left him re-assessment guide. Dr said he is. I asked if he thinks he is prescribing more IR opioids than ER? Dr said more IR and he knows they have been on them too long. I explained the Tom profile and he said he gets it. I told dr that the is no direct to consumer advertising for Butrans like there is for Intermezzo. I told him that when patients hear about the option of Butrans is will most likely come from him. I asked how he would describe Butrans to a patient? Dr said that he would tell the patient it is a patch that is kept on for 7 days and is a more controlled release than the medicine they are on. I told dr that that is a good explanation and discussed the patient information guide and to give one with each copy card. I asked dr to try it. Link all and allow it to prove itself in the patient who is on ultram around the clock and is still in pain.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44333	5/13/2013	Dr told me once he saw me that he thinks he finally found a candidate for intermezzo who will actually be able to get it. I told him about the Caresource coverage however they do not see Caresource patients. I asked dr if his patients are seeing adequate reduction in pain scores for Butrans? Dr said they are getting good relief. I reviewed the Bup 3015 trial results with pain score reductions. Dr said he is getting those type of results. Dr told me about a patient he is treating with Butrans 20mcg/day and 20mg of Percocet a day and is still in pain and wanted to know what he should do. I told him he is on the highest dose of Butrans and dr said he will not give any more and 4 Percocet 5mg a day. I told dr that he may want to consider OxyContin. I explained conversions from Percocet. Dr said he would go to Exalgo. Dr said the patient is on an AARP plan and has had trouble with OxyContin on Med D plans. I expressed that since the patient is already on oxycodone why he would switch molecules? Dr said its no big deal to that.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Akron	OH	44312	5/13/2013	Good discussion about Butrans as dr told me the last patient he initiated on a butrans from vicoden called him after day 1 telling him it wasn't working and she wanted her vicoden back. I asked dr if he told the patient to give it three days minimum before following up on how it is working. Dr said he did and told the patient give it a couple of weeks. I asked dr what he did and said that he discontinued the a butrans and told the patient she needs to get off the vicoden. Dr said he prescribed his last vicoden for the patient. I explained to doctor that he needs to evaluate his Ultram patients and the patient on Ultram around the clock who complain of pain, are ideal candidates. Dr agreed and said he will continue to prescribe. I discussed again how he needs to explain the information guide along with the copy card. Dr agreed. I asked dr to also evaluate his Percocet patients and look for candidates for the q12h option in OxyContin. Reminded dr of intermezzo indication and dosing.

Met with his office coordinator & she says Monday is good day for all of them to attend evening speaker program. He feels more comfortable initiating Butrans than OxyContin. Directed him to OxyContin revised section 9.2. He promises to read over. He says that reformulation of OxyContin is very good idea. PPLPMDL0020000001	Westlake	OH	44145	5/23/2013	Dr says his treatment algorithm is methadone, fentanyl mscontin and then OxyContin. Dr algorithm for butrans is patients who cannot tolerate Vicodin, gastro bypass patients and those who cannot swallow. Dr says patients on long acting need to be rotated every 6-9 months so they don't build up tolerance. Gave insight and he said the % was high. I asked what he did to keep a lower discontinuation rate and he said he starts at 10. I asked why and he said 5 is not enough and I agreed that 5 is for the opioid naive patient. He has some cancer pain patients on 20. I asked would he ever consider Butrans before Vicodin and he said sometimes if the patient comes from primary care on high doses and he needs to switch them. He said sometimes these patients are thought to be addicted but they are pseudo addicted and I asked what he meant and he said they seem addicted but they have built up tolerance. Megan said I writes when he is reminded. He puts OxyContin last in the rotation because of the image. Dr was not aware of the $50 savings card which is good for a year. Dr said use short extended release and not long acting and immediate release and not short acting when speaking with primary care or internal med. Dr writes with refills and sees patients in 4 months.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44113	5/29/2013	Discussed with Dr. product portfolio, Ease of use and insurance coverage important to him and his staff. Previously had difficulty with getting Butrans approved.Intermezzo indication and dosing-CHUDAKOB's query on 06/07/2013Mark, ease of use could be a comparative statement. We have no data to show that Butrans is easy to use. Easy implies that it is easier than something else. This is the reason for more specific call notes. Exactly what happened on the call, as perhaps this was only your paraphrase. Does this make sense?-GUTKOMA's response on 06/09/2013Yes it makes sense...Ease of use was referring to Prior Authorization, call backs etc.-CHUDAKOB's query on 06/12/2013Still not sure I understand. Are you saying that Butrans will provide fewer call backs?-GUTKOMA's response on 06/13/2013No, Dr./I were referring to getting prescribed products approved, Prior Authorizations,step edits,are all very time consuming for him and his staff. I should of probably typed ease of prescribing instead,-CHUDAKOB added notes on 06/16/2013You want to be as specific as possible. All you have to say is Butrans has good managed care coverage. This does not mean that it will be easier for the patient to prescribe to the patient to get. Make sure to just stick with statements of facts.

Ronda told me that she did not remember Butrans as a product to be used early and she understands now that they would have been more successful if they used it eatr on in treatment. Left the nancy profile and asked them to use it again.
PPLPMDL0020000001	Cleveland	OH	44102	5/29/2013	Brief discussion with Mike RPH, no new prescribersVicky-Pharm. I asked him how often he finds that a patient who starts on 5mcg ultimately ends up on the 20mcg after proper titration. He said he definitely finds that he uses the 20mcg much more often than the other doses. He went on to say that if he gives them 20mcg & that is too strong for the patient, he has the patient cut the patch into smaller units (ie in half or in quarters) to titrate more exactly. I reminded him that we did not study nor do we recommend doing that. He said he knows, but he is the one with a medical license. He said this is what is effective for his patients, so he feels comfortable doing so. Reviewed OxyContin's q12h dosing interval & asked Dr Hernandez to adhere to this as well as to titrate patients when appropriate rather than increasing the dosing interval. He agreed.
	Bedford	OH	44146	5/29/2013	I asked Dr Moufawad how often he finds that he has to titrate a patient from 5mcg to 10 & then to 20mcg. He said it all depends, but it does happen. Referenced opioid-naive trial in background, showing that these opioid-naïve patients were titrated all the way to 20mcg ultimately. Dr Moufawad said Butrans is a great medication & he likes OxyContin also, adding that he just wrote a script for it. Reviewed Intermezzo dosing. He said he will try it.

PPLPMDL0020000001	Westlake	OH	44145	5/30/2013	Dr said he has brought back some of his pain patients even though he did not want to but business was so ban that he had to. He said these were the good patients. I said he should consider Butrans which is a schedule 3 and gives him an option after ultram and before Vicodin. He said that sounds like a good strategy and will allow him to not see the drug seeking patients. I asked if he was going to use any OxyContin or would he continue to refer out. He said he found out some of the pain physicians he was referring to did not have good things to say about him to his patients so he will keep his better patients but he is not sure about prescribing OxyContin again. We discussed the opportunity he had to help patients with motna and how Intermezzo fits into his practice. Dr said he will consider these options but right now his patient load is so low that he does not have an opportunity to
PPLPMDL0020000001	Westlake	OH	44145	5/30/2013	Asked dr why he was reluctant to write Butrans since it made sense to me that 4 patches a month of buprenorphine patch. Instead of giving Vicodin or Percocet was a logical thing to do. Dr said Purdue made a mess with OxyContin and its addiction and he does not trust what is being said. I asked him if I review the clinical trials that showed efficacy would he be inclined to write his first script. Dr said that would be fine and I reviewed the inclusion criteria for the opioid naive study and pain reduction scores. Dr said so far he is in agreement and had to see patients. I told him I would continue with our review and I welcome him to question anything that does not make sense to him.<font color=

	Stow	OH	44224	5/30/2013	Good discussion about Butrans and the types of medicines his patients are on. I asked dr what medicines his patients are on when they present to him in the office or before a procedure? Dr told me that many are on dilaudid, MS Contin, ER morphine, owned/ or many of the IR opioids. I asked dr what his thoughts are to have IR opioids for a chronic condition? Dr said the good things is at most work quite well but its a matter of taking the medicine throughout the day. Dr told me that unfortunately when he gets patients they are on an entire cocktail of opioids. Dr said he strongly believes the need for ER opioids for chronic pain but told me it is very difficult to get a patient to psychologically buy into a patch for their pain. I discussed with dr how Butrans should be presented to a patient and that opioids and non opioid analgesics can be used for breakthrough pain. I asked dr if he has any subset of patients who would like to have a transdermal system? Dr agreed there are some that would like it. I asked dr for that business? Dr told me that he has had good success with his patients failing vicodin. I asked dr what his goal is when a patient is on two or more medicines for pain? Dr said his goal is to get them to an ER product. I asked how he does that? Dr said he has to have a long discussion about how the need for an ER product is necessary for their condition. Dr said it is the hardest part. Spoke to dr about insight #3 communication. Dr said he agrees that that he will continue looking at discussing Butrans more often. PPLPMDL0020000001	Lyndhurst	OH	44124	6/3/2013	Followed up on call from last Friday May 31. Reviewed Maria profile. For patients first opioid, please consider Butrans 5 mcg hr. She confirmed as she did last week, she wants to use Butrans, but so far, her patients prescription coverage has not approved Butrans. Lets focus on Caresource, Aetna, Med Mutual, Medco, Express Scripts, and any new BWC patients. Does tht sound reasonable ? Sarah replied yes. Sarah, although you ve told me you're not comfortable writing OxyContin, & you've also stated today, that you don't like writing Percoset, should you have a future patient, whose pain is on more severe side, please consider q 12 OxyContin dosing, 2 pills. Day, vs potentially 3 or 4 or more pills daily. Reviewed START principles, half life, Black Box warning, etc. Intermezzo, we discussed last week, for your Caresource patients, who fail on one other Zolpidem product. She will consider.CHUDAKOB's query on 06/19/2013Jenny, This is a quote form your call notes."2 pills. Day, vs potentially 3 or 4 or more pills daily." Can you please clarify what you mean by making this comparison of pills?BALLIE's response on 06/19/2013This is typo & incorrect sentence. It should just say, OxyContin q 12 h dosing, or 2 pills daily.CHUDAKOB added notes on 06/20/2013OK. Please be careful what you type in your call notes by reviewing them before submitting. As you are aware, we cannot make any comparisons to other products in any way as we do not have clinical data to support those comparisons. The term versus (vs) implies comparison. Thanks for the clarification.

Dr said it's a pain to get it approved and convince the attention to use it instead of a pill. I told him I respectfully think those are his thoughts and maybe not reality. I asked dr to continue prescribing OxyContin and to Met with Helen first, and also left Butrans & OxyContin formulary & savings flashcards with OM Ellen T. Discussed Butrans opioid naive clinical trials, doses available, steady state at 72 hrs for titration. She had to get in room with patient.CHUDAKOB's query on 06/21/2013Jenny, remember the first order of business is proving efficacy. Pick a point from the clinical trials such as pain reduction scores for example and sell her on this. Gain her agreement that this is significant. She will not prescribe Butrans if she doesn't believe it works first. What are your thoughts?BALLIE's response on 06/23/2013I will make sure to discuss a point from Butrans trial next call. During this total office call, my main objective was to deliver Butrans Formulary updates, however, I do agree I should have discussed efficacy first with Karen.CHUDAKOB added notes on 06/26/2013This strategy will usually not work as a main strategy if she does not believe Butrans works. Managed care should be the icing on the cake. Dr told me that he just saw a patient in for a follow up Monday who he has on Butrans and intermezzo. Dr said the patients loves intermezzo and Butrans. I asked which dose of Butrans she is on? Dr told me 5mgc from tramadol under 300mg. Dr said he may need to titrate to the 10mgc on the next visit. I asked dr what his success rate is for Butrans when he explains it for the first time? Dr said close to 100%. Is asked him what he says to the patient when he is selling it to the patient? Dr told me his patients trust him and he tells them that he is going to place them on a controlled release patch for 7 days and you will only get 4 patches in one month. He gives them the experience kit and information guide and makes sure to review the patch locations. I asked for his continued support and reviewed new formulary card. I asked for more OxyContin business and intermezzo for his patients with in the middle of the night insomnia.

Dr said she will and believes in it that it works. I asked her for intermezzo patients and gave dosing card.

They asked about onset and I explained that steady state is reached in 3 days.
